LOYALISTS ORDER MOBILIZATION OF ALL CIVILIANS TO DEFEND CATALONIA AGAINST 100,000 REBELS

Chamberlain Warns Hitler Britain May Fight

DECLINES PLEDGE, HOWEVER, TO TAKE FIELD FOR CZECHS

NON-INTERVENTION IN SPAIN UPHELD

Asks Speedy Rearmament, Assures Aid to France and Belgium.

LONDON, March 24.—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today let Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler know Great Britain might have to fight if Germany started a war in central Europe.

But he balked at a prior pledge of armed help for Czechoslovakia in event of armed aggression as he laid down the broad lines of British foreign policy in a 57-minute statement in the crowded house of commons.

Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to the Court of St. James, sat in the diplomatic gallery for the first time with diplomats of other powers. Envoys of Germany and Italy apparently were absent.

Lord Halifax, foreign secretary, repeated Chamberlain's statement, the most important declaration by British prime minister since the World War, in the house of lords.

Rejects Russian Proposal.

In his broad address, the lanky prime minister also:

1. Rejected Soviet Russia's call for a conference of "non-aggressive" powers to resist aggressors.
2. Urged that the League of Nations be nursed "back to health" and be made into a "front of overwhelming power."
3. Reaffirmed the government's view that non-intervention still was the best policy in Spain.
4. Reiterated that quickening rearmament, especially for the royal air force, and air raid precautions were essential.

He said Italy had pledged her willingness "loyally to assist" in carrying out the British plan for withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain's civil war and reiterated her declaration she had no territorial or economic aims in Spain or the Balearic Islands.

Would Fight for Treaties.

The prime minister declared Britain "would fight" to uphold existing treaties, notably those for aid to France and Belgium if there should be unprovoked aggression, and for her "vital interests."

But he refused to make military promises regarding "areas where our vital interests are not concerned in the same degree as they are in the case of France and Belgium."

He offered Britain's help to Germany and Czechoslovakia, with their 3,500,000 Germans, in making peace on the issues of minorities and other problems.

Though declining to give military promises where Britain is not

Fails in Alimony Plea

MRS. RALPH FORRESTER.

Merry Mixup Of Divorces Dazes Judge

He Gives Home and Auto to Mrs. Forrester as She Seeks Alimony.

The Ralph Forresters and the Claude Smiths are mixed up, much married and much divorced couples. It's all very complicated. So much so that Judge Virlyn B. Moore was not quite sure about the decision he should make yesterday when Mrs. Ralph Forrester, formerly Mrs. Claude Smith, appeared before him seeking temporary alimony pending decision on her divorce complaint charging cruelty.

To unravel the case one has to go back some time when yesterday's complainant in court was pretty Mildred Williams. That was her maiden name.

She first was the bride of Claude Smith but she divorced him and married Ralph Forrester. She said yesterday that her former husband then married the former Mrs. Forrester. It took Judge Moore some little time to get this straightened out in his judicial mind, and he insisted upon delving into the romances of Mrs. Smith-Forrester's life. She told the court she did not know the present whereabouts of her former hus-

ROOSEVELT PLANS ANOTHER HOSPITAL AT WARM SPRINGS

Chief Executive Sleeps Late To Begin First Day of Spring Vacation at His Home in Georgia.

BULLITT TO VISIT F.D.R. DURING WEEK

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., March 24.—(AP)—President Roosevelt started his spring vacation under a warm Georgia sun today, driving his own new low-priced car around the infantile paralysis grounds and stopping in the middle of a dirt road to discuss plans for a new hospital.

He slept late after his busy day of speech-making yesterday, read editorial comments on his Gainesville plea for higher wages in southern industries, and then ordered his shiny blue, five-passenger car for a spin around the grounds. Like the car he drives around his Hyde Park (N. Y.) home and farm, the new one is specially constructed with complete hand controls. Its Georgia tag bears a prominent "FDR."

Drives From Home.

With Miss Marguerite LeHand, personal secretary, in the front seat and Basil O'Connor, former law partner and head of the new national foundation for infantile paralysis, in back, the President, bare-headed and in a light weight gray suit, drove from his white cottage on the summit of Pine mountain down to the Warm Springs administration center. He stopped in front of the office of Henry J. Toombs, foundation architect, and went over plans to relieve the patient congestion at the infirmary by construction of a new 35-bed hospital.

On his arrival yesterday, he found Kress Hall, formerly used for guests' living quarters, filled with young crippled patients who could not be placed in the crowded infirmary. Both he and O'Connor, who accompanied him from Washington, are interested in seeing to it that all patients are taken care of without crowding. They asked questions and made several suggestions to Architect Toombs for the new building.

Visits Farm.

After this little informal chat in the middle of the road, the President drove out to his 1,000-acre farm, a few miles from here, but did not stop to inquire about spring planting, deferring this until later. He expects to stay here

AUSTRIAN, GERMAN REFUGEES TO GET U. S. ASSISTANCE

Nine European Countries and All American Republics Asked to Co-operate in Movement by Hull.

SECRETARY SEEKS TO HALT SUFFERING

Immigrants Will Be Limited to Existing Quotas Under Nation's Law.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP)—The United States took the lead today in an international effort to get political refugees out of Austria and Germany.

Secretary of State Hull addressed telegrams to nine European governments and all American republics asking them to co-operate in setting up a special committee for this purpose.

He suggested that the emergency removals be financed by private organizations within the respective countries.

To Avert Suffering.

Secretary Hull's telegram said it would be understood that no country would be expected, or asked, to receive a greater number of immigrants than its laws permit.

The United States, the State Department said in an official communication, "has been prompted to make its proposal because of the urgency of the problem with which the world is faced and the necessity of speedy co-operative effort under governmental supervision if widespread human suffering is to be averted."

Nine European Countries.

The European governments to which Hull's telegrams were addressed were: Great Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Switzerland and Italy.

Under the United States laws the immigrants to this country

Philadelphia Crowd Starts Anti-Nazi Riot

PHILADELPHIA, March 24.—(AP)—An anti-Nazi crowd tonight stormed what police described as a meeting of the German-American bund and turned the gathering into a riot.

More than a score of persons were injured in the fist fighting. The rally was intended as a celebration of Hitler's seizure of Austria.

As police separated the participants in the "free-for-all," members of the citizens' anti-Nazi committee paraded in the street with signs reading "Down With Hitler and His U. S. Followers."

NEW YORK, March 24.—(UP) Effigies of Adolf Hitler were burned today as 5,000 students of Brooklyn and Manhattan colleges left classrooms to take part in demonstrations against war and against an embargo on shipments to Loyalist Spain.

American Legion Founder Dies in N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—George Brokaw Compton, 54, lawyer and a founder of the American Legion, died today of heart trouble at St. Luke's hospital.

After serving as a captain in the World War, Compton participated in the organization of the Legion at St. Louis in 1919 and at its first convention the following year was chairman of the political restrictions committee.

Emory Co-ed Has Two Interests in Spain's Civil War

Constitution Staff Photo—Wilson.

Spanish civil war is "personal" issue to Miss Beverly Hook, Emory University student, who corresponds with two young soldiers, one fighting with the Rebels and the other allied with the Loyalist cause. Miss Hook began the correspondence with the young men, who do not know each other, six years ago. "I do hope they never meet on the battlefield," she said. In her hands are letters and mementoes she has received from her two friends who are foes. The correspondence began six years ago while she was in high school.

F. D. R. Tells of Session To Halt '33 Bank Panic

Widespread Unemployment Which Accompanied Collapse Had Created Feeling of Utter Helplessness, Writes Roosevelt.

EDITOR'S INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

(On March 4, 1933, the people of the United States everywhere interrupted treir work or their play to listen to the inaugural speech of the man who stepped into the nation's highest office in the midst of the gravest economic crisis in its history.

(It was a tremendous moment, for America, for the world, and for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

(The immediate emergency was the banking collapse. Following is President Roosevelt's own story of his steps to meet the situation.)

Those who lived through the months immediately preceding March, 1933, do not require a description of the desperate condition into which the American economy had fallen since the crash of 1929.

By Inauguration Day, 1933, the banks of the United States were all closed, financial transactions had sunk to their lowest levels. The widespread unemployment which accompanied the collapse had created a general feeling of utter helplessness. I sought principally in the inaugural address to banish, so far as possible, the fear of the present and of the future which held the American people and the American spirit in its grasp.

For many months the people had looked to government to help, but government had looked away. I promised a program of action. First, to put people to work; and second, to correct the abuses in many fields of human endeavor which had in great measure contributed to the crisis. I promised action immediately, stating that if necessary I would ask for and would use all the war powers of the executive to wage war against the emergency.

CALLED CONGRESS IN EXTRA SESSION

The first thing I did was to call the congress into extraordinary session. Events were happening so quickly, in fact, that there simply was not enough time in which to do all the things which had to be done.

(Editor's Note: The congress elected in 1932 was called for its first meeting by the proclamation of March 5, 1933.)

Even before the actual stock market crash in 1929, many banks throughout the country had suspended operations. During the years 1930 to March 3, 1933, inclusive, a total of 5,504 banks had closed their doors to the public, with a total of deposits of $3,432,000,000.

The crisis was being intensified by an ever-increasing wave of withdrawal and hoarding of gold. More than two-thirds of these withdrawals from bank deposits were concentrated in the week ending March 4.

This situation was indicative of the fear, bordering on panic, which had seized the people of the nation as the depression deepened, as unemployment increased, and as the government remained stagnant in the face of impending disaster.

In the absence of any governmental action to assist in the general unemployment situation and in the industrial and agri-

Loyalist, Rebel Write To Girl Here

Beverly Hook, Emory Student, Says Youths Don't Know Each Other.

Miss Beverly Hook, student at Emory University, has two personal interests in the war in Spain.

She corresponds with two young men engaged in the bitter civil war—one fighting with the Rebel forces, and the other allied with the Loyalist cause.

The two young soldiers do not know each other. Nor are they aware they have a mutual American correspondent.

Wanted Examples.

"When I was a student of foreign languages at Augusta High school in 1932," she said, "I wanted examples of modern Spanish. I secured the names and addresses of the two boys, and wrote to them.

"At that time, one of them was a college senior. His name is Francisco Raguera Blanco. He's now 25 years old, and has been with the Insurgents since the war broke out.

"The other one is Ramone Salvat, who was a high school senior when I first corresponded with him. Now he is 21. He joined the Loyalist army only a few months ago.

Hopes They Don't Meet.

"I do hope they never meet on the battlefield."

Miss Hook said Blanco's present letters reflect the same friendly personality, while Salvat's correspondence has changed a great deal.

"He is taking the war very seriously," she went on, "and seems to hate the Rebels with a genuine passion. He calls them traitors, rogues and other names."

Blanco's letters are heavily censored and little mention is made of the war. The Loyalist, however, writes fully of his war adventures and tells of air raids in which he has participated.

"When the war first started," Miss Hook continued, "Blanco asked me to save American news-

FRANCO VICTORY 'WITHIN WEEKS' NOW PREDICTED

TROOPS CLOSING IN ON MEDITERRANEAN

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, March 24.—(UP)—The Loyalist cabinet at Barcelona tonight ordered mobilization of the entire civilian population to defend Catalonia against Generalissimo Franco's 100,000 troops that are closing in on the capital in a gigantic pincer movement.

The Insurgents, driving close to the Catalonian border along a 120-mile front extending from Huesca in the north to Aliaga in the south, were reported to have cut the important Saragossa-Lerida highway.

Loyalists Admit Defeat.

The Barcelona government also reported that its air force was defeated in a battle involving 100 Loyalist and Rebel planes over the Lerida-Saragossa road on the Aragon front.

A communique said the defeat was due to "enemy superiority."

Two Russian Chatos collided but the pilots parachuted to safety. Four other Loyalist planes were shot down.

(Rebel dispatches said that four American Curtis planes also were shot down.)

The government also admitted reverses in the Huesca sector, where Loyalist troops were forced to evacuate Nueno, eight miles north of Huesca.

Highway Seized.

Insurgent field headquarters at Quinto, near Saragossa, said Moroccan cavalry had seized the highway close to Bujaraloz.

Bujaraloz is 46 miles west of Lerida, the general headquarters of General Sebastian Pozas' Loyalist army attempting to stem the triple-blow enemy drive to the seacoast and prevent Franco from penetrating Catalonia.

Franco's three columns closing in upon the Mediterranean seaboard in the "nut cracker" offensive averaged 10 miles each in their advances today.

River Crossed.

In the north, the Insurgents reportedly crossed the Flumen river north and south of the long-besieged Insurgent stronghold of Huesca and took up positions on the east bank "completely to

Grand Duchess Marie Arrives Here; Declares American Men Are Dull

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Her once-royal highness,' the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, stepped off the train at the Terminal station last night and announced that she had never been given a chance to live like an ordinary citizen.

"Royalty is given no privacy," she said. "We are always treated like members of the royal family and there is no chance to really live like the Americans."

The grand duchess, who lost her royal status in 1917, fleeing from St. Petersburg when 21 members of her family were slain in the Bolshevik uprising, lectures at 8:30 o'clock tonight in Bucher Scott gymnasium at Agnes Scott.

Home Tested Recipes :: —By— SALLY SAVER

Questions will be answered if you will write or phone Sally Saver, the editor of this column, at WAlnut 6565.

A party is a happy occasion in the life of every child, an occasion that is joyously anticipated and happily remembered.

Pictured here is a Merry-Go-Round cake that will make a hit at any kiddies' party. The chocolate-covered cake pleases all children. The peppermint stick decorations together with the animal crackers placed on top to give it a merry-go-round appearance, will make it a cake long to be remembered.

It is worth the effort it takes, when one sees the happiness it creates among the little folks.

Merry-Go-Round Party Cake.

Two and one-half cups sifted cake flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup butter or other shortening, 1 1-3 cups sugar, 3-4 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3 egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly; add sugar gradually, creaming until light and fluffy. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla; fold in egg whites, quickly and thoroughly. Bake in two greased 9-inch layer pans in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Spread chocolate frosting between layers, on top and sides of cake. Decorate top of cake with assorted animal crackers and candy peppermint sticks.

Double recipe to make three 10-inch layers.

Chocolate Frosting.

Four squares unsweetened chocolate, 1 1-4 cups milk, 1 cup sugar, 4 tablespoons cake flour, dash of salt, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Add chocolate to milk and heat in double boiler. When chocolate is melted, beat with rotary egg beater until blended. Combine sugar, flour and salt; add gradually to chocolate mixture and cook until thickened, stirring occasionally. Add butter; cool. Add vanilla and spread on cake. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layers.

Spring Bridge Luncheon.

When next you entertain your bridge club serve them a variety of fruits. The following menu and recipes will really be enjoyed:

Broiled Grapefruit
Crab and Shrimp Salad
Apricot Muffins Butter
Ripe Olives
Minted Apples Cream Cheese
Coffee

Broiled Grapefruit.

Two grapefruit, 1-3 cup dark brown sugar, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Cut fruit in halves. Discard seeds and remove center fiber. (Notch the edges to give a festive appearance.) Sprinkle with rest of the ingredients. Place on a flat pan or broiler shelf and broil slowly until the tops are browned. (About 10 minutes.) Serve chilled or warm.

Apricot Muffins.

Two cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 1-3 cup granulated sugar, 2-3 cup dried apricots (washed and chopped), 4 tablespoons fat, melted, 1 cup milk.

Mix dry ingredients. Add rest of ingredients and beat one minute. Half fill greased muffin pans and bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven.

Minted Apples.

(Colorful and Full of Flavor)

Eight apples, 2 cups granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon chopped mint, 2 cups water, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, green fruit coloring.

Select medium-sized apples. Peel and core but do not cup apples. Boil sugar, water and mint together for two minutes. Add sufficient coloring to give a green tint. Add apples and juice and cook slowly for about 15 minutes or until the apples are very tender when tested with a fork. Remove the apples to a shallow dish.

Minted apples may be served as an accompaniment for the main course of a meal or for dessert. They should be thoroughly chilled to bring out their flavor.

These delicious meat recipes will vary your everyday and company menus and you will score a hit with each of them.

Cushion Style Lamb Roast With Pineapple Pocket.

Have the bones removed from a shoulder of lamb. Sew on two sides to make pocket. Wipe with a damp cloth. Season. Fill the cavity with pineapple dressing. Sew up the opening, and roast in a slow oven (300 degrees F.), allowing 25 to 30 minutes to the pound. Serves 6-8.

Pineapple Dressing.

2 tablespoons melted butter.
2 cups soft bread crumbs.
Salt.
Pepper.
1 tablespoon minced parsley.
1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple.

MURPHEE SUGGESTED AS ALABAMA JUDGE

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP) Alabama senators recommended today the appointment of Thomas A. Murphree, Birmingham lawyer, for a new federal judgeship in the northern district of Alabama.

Senator Bankhead, speaking for himself and Senator Hill, said the state's congressional delegation had the assurance of the White House that President Roosevelt would sign the new judicial post. The senators selected Murphree from a list of about 30 applicants.

LENDABLE FUNDS IN U. S. BANKS GAIN

$100,000 Is Highest Since May, 1937.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP) The Federal Reserve Board reported tonight a $100,000,000 increase in the lendable excess reserves of the nation's banks in the week ended March 23.

The boost listed excess reserves to $1,560,000,000, the highest since May 1, 1937. Officials said the increase probably was due to a sharp falling off of bank deposits, although definite information was lacking.

The board also reported a $3,000,000 decline in money in circulation during the week.

The 12 Federal Reserve banks sold $10,000,000 worth of treasury bills and bought $8,000,000 worth of treasury bonds and $2,000,000 worth of treasury notes.

WOMAN, 68, IS SWEPT OVER NIAGARA FALLS

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., March 24.—(AP)—Tracy G. Le Vee, superintendent of Niagara reservation police, said a woman he identified as Mrs. Myrtle Morrison, 68, waded into upper Niagara river and was swept over the falls at noon today.

Le Vee said Girolono Belloini, of Niagara Falls, saw the woman take off her coat and hat, lay them on the ground with her purse, climb the guard rail and wade into the river.

JIM DANDY CORN MEAL

"A friend recommended JIM DANDY to me. She said it was the best meal in the world. I was skeptical, but now I heartily agree with her. It is quite different from all other corn meal I have used. And, aside from the delightfully different flavor of the bread it makes, it is more economical than ordinary meal. No sifting is necessary for all bran and other foreign matter has been removed."

Sold on money-back guarantee by All grocers.

Here Is the Recipe Mrs. Morris likes and recommends. Try it, if You Want the Best Cornbread You Have Ever Tasted:

1 cup JIM DANDY Meal; ½ teaspoon baking soda; 1 teaspoon baking powder; 1 teaspoon salt; buttermilk to make thin batter; 1 whole eggs; 2 tablespoons melted shortening. Pour into well greased hot pan. Bake about 25 minutes in preheated oven, 375 degrees.

U. S. SEEKS MEANS OF 'PUMPING' CREDIT

Roosevelt Orders Study of Methods to Aid Business Financing.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP) Federal finance officials, acting under President Roosevelt's orders, are searching for some means of pumping credit into the veins of lagging business.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau disclosed today that the President had set up a committee to make the study. Morgenthau is chairman of the committee, but neither he nor any other member of the group would say what proposal was under consideration.

James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the President, attended the committee's first meeting last night.

The finance officials determined to analyze hundreds of letters and other proposals in the hope of finding one or more methods of putting into the hands of businessmen money to hire more workers and throw off the paralysis of recession.

Questions to be studied include: Whether changes can be made in the securities act to facilitate private financing, whether the federal prohibition against banks underwriting securities should be lifted, whether the Reconstruction Finance Corporation can liberalize its lending terms, whether some new federal agency might be set up to insure industrial loans and underwrite securities and whether bank examining regulations can be modified safely.

KENNEDY DECLARES WAR IS FAR OFF

Ambassador Counsels Americans to Forget Worries Over Europe.

LONDON, March 24.—(AP)—United States Ambassador Joseph rick Kennedy counselled Americans at home tonight to put out of their minds "worries that a general war in Europe is in the immediate offing."

The ambassador listened to Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy address to the house of commons and then went to an American Club dinner, where he declared:

"I feel safe in predicting that no such thing (a European war) will happen for the rest of this year at least."

Kennedy saw some basis for a belief that economic conditions in England would "get better in short order."

He pointed to the prime minister's statement that Britain's rearmament program would be pushed ahead "at a speed never seen in peacetime" and said that British heavy industry would be keyed to peak production.

"Money will be spent rapidly," he continued. "Acceleration of trade here and maintaince of high rates of activity seem inevitable."

Kennedy said there were "still plenty of problems to solve at home" without "the added handicap of worry over Europe's difficulties and the likelihood of war."

The ambassador asserted that unless the United States and Britain were able to solve their economic problems, "nothing else will matter much . . . We must get some permanent economic solution for unemployment, security for workers, and other fundamentals which have gone wrong."

SENATE SETS ACTION ON REORGANIZATION

Agrees to Accept or Reject Bill Monday; Will Not Revive Lynch Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP) The senate, after voting to abolish the comptroller general's office agreed today to adopt, or reject the administration's reorganization bill not later than 4 p. m. (Atlanta time) Monday.

In response to demands from cautious bloc of southerners, however, it made certain that the anti-lynching bill, which they had talked to a standstill in the first six weeks of the session, would not be revived as an amendment.

Administration leaders sailed the reorganization measure past its last major amendment reef when they defeated, 47 to 36, a proposal by Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, to preserve the comptroller general's office.

The bill would abolish that office and divide its duties between the director of the budget and a new officer, an auditor general.

Before the vote the chamber heard charges that abolition of the comptroller general's office would turn over the purse strings to the chief executive, and counter charges that the comptroller general had not complied with the law in making reports to congress.

Senator Schwellenbach, Democrat, Washington, asserted the comptroller had made no report from 1926 up to March 4 of this year, despite a law which, he said, required annual reports to congress.

Sally Can Sing, Lay Eggs, Too! She's a Pullet

INDEPENDENCE, Kan., March 24.—(AP)—Sally is a performer who can lay an egg and still be an artist—she's a harmonizing hen.

Sally can cackle the scales and do a fair job of following a tune when her mistress, Miss Callean Wagoner, plays the piano.

She practices singing every day. She also lays an egg every day.

The Wagoner family first noted Sally's talent when the pullet (she's a year old) hopped to the piano bench while Miss Wagoner practiced the scales. Sally tuned up with a few preliminary cackles and swung up the scale from C to C. Since then she's enlarged her repertoire.

RAIL WAGE CUTS HELD IN ABEYANCE

Government Plans to Rehabilitate $26,000,000,000 Industry Awaited.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(UP)—Proposals for a 10 to 15 per cent cut in the wages of 1,000,000 railroad workers will be held in abeyance pending the outcome of government plans to rehabilitate the $26,000,000,000 industry, railway labor and management executives agreed at a conference today.

A comprehensive program to aid the carriers was air mailed to President Roosevelt at Warm Springs today by a three-man committee of Interstate Commerce Commissioners headed by Chairman Walter M. W. Splawn.

Officials Confer.

The union leaders, headed by George Harrison, president of the railway clerks, conferred for four hours with the executives during which time all phases of the rail crises were discussed.

"We talked over the whole economic situation," Harrison said. "We talked about wage reductions, about traffic conditions and about employes laid off. They told us how poor they were—and we told them how poor we were. Then we both agreed to wait a little while."

To Await Plans.

Earlier he had told newspapermen the unions would not accept the proposed wage cut which executives said was made necessary by the refusal of the I. C. C. to approve their demand for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates.

J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, said after the conference:

"We decided to wait and see what the President is going to do."

Harry Langdon 'Broke,' He Tells Alimony Court

Langdon said his earnings since December, 1935, totaled only $1,090.

MEXICAN MAYOR FLEES ARMED POLITICAL BAND

DOUGLAS, Ariz., March 24.—(AP)—Martin Burgueno, mayor of Agua Prieta, Sonora, Mexico, fled across the international boundary and sought refuge here today when armed bands, said to represent an opposing political force, took possession of the town.

A police sergeant and a patrolman were wounded during the unseating of the administration which had been under fire since it took over last September.

WENDEL SUES SEVEN IN KIDNAP TORTURE

Former Attorney Seeks $450,000 as Aftermath to Lindbergh Case.

NEWARK, N. J., March 24.—(AP)—The ramified Lindbergh kidnap-murder case and its bizarre Wendel kidnap-torture aftermath took two new tangents today at the federal building.

Paul H. Wendel, former Trenton attorney, filed suit seeking $450,000 damages from former Governor Harold G. Hoffman, Ellis H. Parker Sr. and Jr., and five others for alleged conspiracy in the kidnaping and torture he said forced him to confess falsely to the Lindbergh kidnaping.

United States Attorney John J. Quinn announced he would seek a court order tomorrow for removal of the Parkers to Brooklyn to face new federal indictments charging them with the Wendel kidnaping. Their appeals from penitentiary sentences, imposed in Newark federal court on conspiracy charges in the same case, are pending.

Wendel charged in his suit that Hoffman, who reprieved Bruno Richard Hauptmann and still contends his electrocution did not completely solve the Lindbergh crime, "directed and controlled" Wendel's "imprisonment" and "the acts of cruelty and torture."

Wendel's suit, filed with the clerk of the federal district court, sought $150,000 damages on each of three counts. The claims listed against the defendants individually and collectively totaled $3,600,000, but court attaches and counsel agreed $450,000 was the most that could be collected.

Imagine, Girls! Two Roberts and a Franchot at the Same Time

JOHN DRYSDALE, 62, FOUND DEAD IN CAR

Body of a man identified as John Drysdale, 62, of 29 Glenwood drive, N. E., was found slumped in an automobile yesterday on Wesley avenue near Woodward way.

County Police Lieutenant Cal Cates and Patrolmen Smith and Flournoy said he had been shot through the head and that a pistol was on the seat beside him together with a note directed to his wife.

A coroner's inquest has been called for 3 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill to determine the cause of death.

Drysdale, a former employe of Bob's Laundry, was a native of Connecticut and had made his home in Atlanta for about 20 years. He was a member of the Brookhaven Methodist church. Surviving are his widow and a son, Dewey Clarke.

Appeal for Atlantans To House Rural-Urban Conferees Renewed

Mrs. Robin Wood Urges Several Hundred More Accomodations for Women Delegates to Tuesday's Meeting, Thanks Public for Response Thus Far.

With reservations already made for between 4,000 and 5,000 women at the Rural-Urban conference next week, Mrs. Robin Wood, conference chairman and director of the women's division of the State Agricultural Department, renewed her appeal yesterday for Atlanta women to volunteer to house one or more delegates next Tuesday night.

Thousands of Atlanta women have already extended invitations to rural women to be their guests, but Mrs. Wood pointed out several hundred additional homes are needed.

Businessmen and leaders of the state and city have praised the purpose of the first conference of country, town and city women which will be held at the city auditorium next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Among the distinguished speakers at the conference will be Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who will come up from Warm Springs to speak Tuesday night; Dr. Charles H. Herty, industrial chemist; Dr. Clarence Poe, editor of the Progressive Farmer; Judge Camille Kelley, of Memphis, and Julia Peterkin, Pulitzer prize winning author.

Judge Kelley, an authority on juvenile matters, will expound her theory of "making good boys and girls." Her talk, Mrs. Wood said, will be of especial interest to the thousands of mothers who will attend the meetings, beginning Tuesday morning.

The P.-T. A. and the women's division of the Chamber of Commerce are co-operating with Mrs. Wood in finding homes for the rural delegates Tuesday night. Mrs. R. A. Long is housing chairman.

"The public response has been generous," said Mrs. Wood yesterday. "However, we need still more accommodations." She urged Atlanta women to notify the Women's Chamber of Commerce if they can take a guest for Tuesday night and for breakfast Wednesday morning. The conference ends Wednesday afternoon.

A full program of entertainment and amusement will be provided in addition to the study of problems common to rural and urban women, Mrs. Wood said.

COURT DISQUALIFIES 5 OF 7 CANDIDATES

Judge Refuses to Dissolve Order in Savannah Beach Dispute.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 24.—(AP)—Superior Court Judge John Rourke Jr. refused today to dissolve a court order which disqualified five Savannah Beach aldermen from holding office or voting in the suburban municipality.

The aldermen who had served several years, and 200 other property owners, were disqualified yesterday on grounds they did not live in Savannah Beach. The order left only 166 persons qualified to vote in the April 4 electiton, in which today was the deadline for candidates to enter.

Judge Rourke declined to grant a supercedeas to stay the injunction until the issue could be tested in the state supreme court. He declared his unofficial opinion was that anyone transferring his local legal residence from Savannah to Savannah Beach after yesterday's decision in order to qualify for the election would be in contempt of court and subject to be ruled therefor.

Savannah Beach is 18 miles from Savannah.

TWO DIXIE BELLES INVADE HOLLYWOOD

Atlanta and Chattanooga Talent Contest Winners Chat With Stars.

Two southern girls are having the time of their lives out in Hollywood these days.

They are Miss Jerry Hughes, of Atlanta, and Miss Dolores Tatum, of Chattanooga, winners of trips in the search-for-talent contest conducted by Astral Productions in these two cities. The Atlanta contest was sponsored by The Constitution.

After arriving in the film capital aboard an American Airlines sleeper plane, the two winners began a tour of the city they have often dreamed of visiting.

They chatted with their favorite movie stars, and during their tour of one of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's studios the filming of "The Three Comrades" was halted temporarily in order that the two girls from the deep south might have their photographs taken with Robert Taylor, Franchot Tone and Robert Montgomery.

The two will spend three weeks visiting studios and making screen tests, and who knows, one of them may turn out to be the long-sought Scarlet O'Hara.

CHURCH TO RETAIN OWN INDEPENDENCE

Newnan Methodists Guarded Against Unification Loss by Trust Clause.

NEWNAN, Ga., March 24.—Because the customary "trust clause" does not appear in its property, the Newnan First Methodist church may find it possible to remain a separate, independent unit, if the plan to unify the northern and southern branches is given approval April 28 in Birmingham.

This fact was revealed at a board of stewards meeting at which unification was discussed, Dr. L. W. Collins, pastor, said today. It was found that instead of reading, "This property is to be held in trust for the M. E. Church, South," (as all southern units' deeds traditionally read), the Newnan deed reads, "Held in trust for the congregation of the church." Thus it belongs not to the governing board of the M. E. Church, South, but to its own congregation.

The local church plant has an estimated value of $500,000.

COTTON INDUSTRY JOINS TO FIGHT TAX

Agree 'To Redouble Efforts to Defeat Proposal for Processing Levy.'

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP) Northern and southern cotton manufacturers and representatives of the rayon and allied industries agreed today "to redouble efforts to defeat a proposal for a processing tax."

Claudius T. Murchison, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, said after a conference of the millmen that "the senate finance committee's refusal to consider a processing tax as part of the tax bill is gratifying and encouraging, but does not preclude consideration of the proposal in the senate."

Some persons indicated that Senator Pope, Democrat, Idaho, sponsor of the proposed amendment to the tax bill, might attempt to insert it in the pending tax revision legislation on the floor. Pope's proposal would revive the processing tax, invalidated by the supreme court in 1935, to raise $212,000,000 for payment of parity prices to farmers under the recently enacted farm legislation.

Murchison said textile men agreed "unanimously the proposed measure or any processing tax not only threatened the welfare of cotton processors and distributors and their employes, but would have the much graver result of causing higher prices to consumers.

"The inevitable result of higher prices would be reduced consumption of cotton, thus in the long run the farmer would lose more than he would gain by imposition of such a tax."

Analysis of the tax proposal, Murchison added, "shows that contrary to assertions the proposed tax is lower than that effective under the old AAA, the new tax would be even heavier."

Those who conferred on the proposed tax today included representatives of manufacturers' organizations from Alabama, Georgia, Texas and North Carolina.

Seventh Graders Prove Efficient In Mathematics

The low seven pupils in all the city schools scored an average of 3.6 points higher than the "norm," which is the average of a group of 10,000 or more.

In fact, says Dr. H. H. Bixler, director of research and guidance in the city schools, the pupils are almost as good at figures as the average student half a grade higher.

Tests were given all low seventh graders in all schools this year, a total of 978 pupils. Some classes averaged as much as the norm for ninth graders, Dr. Bixler said. However, in all the 978 tests only one pupil had a perfect score of 100. Six made between zero and four.

LIQUOR IN DRY COUNTIES BANNED

Alabama Court Upholds $50 Fine for Having Beer.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 24.—(UP)—The Alabama supreme court today ruled possession of alcoholic beverages in dry counties is illegal.

The ruling upheld a court of appeals decision and affirmed the conviction of Welder Williams, of Walker county, fined $50 and costs for posesssing beer in a dry county.

Williams' attorneys contended the Alabama alcoholic beverage control law was to prohibit only sale and manufacture of liquor and beer in dry counties and not possession for personal consumption.

WINDSORS DEPART FOR RIVIERA VACATION

Associates said they expected to remain in southern France for two weeks.

FOOD PRICES SOAR AS PESO DECLINES

Mexican Government Moves for Speedy Organization of Oil Industry.

MEXICO CITY, March 24.—(AP) The pinch of higher prices was felt today from depreciation of the peso following upon expropriation of Mexico's $400,000,000 oil industry.

While foodstuffs cost 15 to 50 per cent more than last week, the government moved for speedy organization of the oil industry under its direction.

Vicente Cortes Herrera, undersecretary of communications, was appointed general manager of the new national petroleum council to administer the industry.

The peso slid downward in the relation to the dollar, with banks selling dollars at 4.35 to 4.45 and buying them at 4.15 to 4.25. This represented a loss of 20 to 25 points in the peso since Tuesday.

The Central Bank of Mexico reported it had exchanged approximately 15,000,000 silver pesos for bills since Saturday and had authorized coining up to 50,000,000 more.

The largest dealer here in United States food products increased all prices of imported goods a flat 15 per cent. Some establishments boosted the price of meats as much as 50 per cent.

Austrian, German Refugees Offered Assistance of U. S.

The quota for Austria is 1,413, that for Germany 25,957.

Last year only 30 per cent of the Austrian quota and 48 per cent of the German quota was filled.

It is reliably understood that within a short time the quotas of the two coutries will be combined because of Germany's absorption of Austria. Austrians then could make use of the unfilled portion of the German quota.

U. S. Communication.

The State Department's communication read:

"This government has become so impressed with the urgency of the problem of political refugees that it has inquired of a number of governments in Europe and in this hemisphere whether they would be willing to co-operate in setting up a special committee for the purpose of facilitating the emigration from Austria and presumably from Germany of political refugees.

"Our idea is that whereas such representatives would be designated by the governments concerned, any financing of the emergency emigration referred to would be undertaken by private organizations within the respective countries.

"Furthermore, it should be understood that no country would be expected or asked to receive a greater number of immigrants than is permitted by its existing legislation.

"In making this proposal the government of the United States has emphasized that it in no sense intends to discourage or interfere with such work as is already being done on the refugee problem by any existing international agency.

"It has been prompted to make its proposal because of the urgency of the problem with which the world is faced and the necessity of speedy co-operative effort under governmental supervision if widespread human suffering is to be averted."

London Is Sympathetic Towards Hull's Appeal To Help Refugees

LONDON, March 24.—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull's request for co-operation in setting up an international committee to get political refugees out of Germany and Austria was received sympathetically in London tonight.

Comment of informed quarters was restrained pending full consideration.

It was pointed out, however, that Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary, promised liberal interpretation of the aliens' act in dealing with admission of Austrian refugees.

OSLO GOVERNMENT WITHHOLDS COMMENT

OSLO, Norway, March 24.—(AP) The Norwegian press received sympathetically tonight Secretary of State Hull's suggestion that an international committee be established to get political refugees out of Germany and Austria.

Government circles temporarily withheld comment.

DENMARK RECEIVES APPEAL FROM HULL

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, March 24.—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull's appeal for international action to aid German and Austrian political refugees was received by the government late tonight and will be considered early tomorrow.

U. S. JEWS READY TO AID REFUGEES

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—Jewish organizations here indicated tonight they were prepared, within the limits of their resources, to aid in the rehabilitation of refugees from Germany and Austria as rapidly as they could be evacuated.

Simultaneously with Secretary of State Hull's proposal in Washington to establish an international committee to facilitate emigration of refugees, the United Palestine Appeal launched its New York campaign for funds to settle Jews in Palestine.

With immigration quotas on the one hand and German restrictions on the withdrawal of capital on the other, one Jewish leader remarked, the principal difficulty is not in rehabilitating refugees but in getting them out of Germany.

SMALL MUSE FIRE BRINGS BIG TURNOUT

A minor blaze in the basement of the George Muse Clothing Company brought downtown fire-fighting equipment to the store at 52 Peachtree street at about 11 o'clock last night.

The short-lived fire, which started in a closet containing clothes of negro porters, was extinguished by a sprinkler system before arrival of companies No. 1, 3, 4 and 8.

Water from the sprinklers flooded the Broad street corner of the basement ankle-deep. O. T. Brewer, store manager, who arrived a short time after the sprinkler system sounded the alarm, said damage was negligible.

The ringing of the alarm bell outside the building and arrival of fire apparatus drew scores of spectators to the scene. Police rerouted automobile traffic around the store building, a seven-story structure.

Under direction of Chief O. J. Parker, four pumpers, three aerial ladders, a water tower and salvage and rescue wagons were at the store, which extends along Walton street, from Peachtree street to Broad street.

Firemen inspected the building from basement to top floor to make sure the corner of the basement was the only spot where fire had broken out. Cause of the blaze was undetermined.

U. S., England Scrap Limits On Battleships

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP) Giant battleships exceeding 35,000 tons each apparently are to be added to the fleet construction programs of the United States and Great Britain.

The two nations, holding naval consultations in London, have determined to invoke the escalator clause of the London naval treaty, officials disclosed today. This clause permits the nations to scrap a provision limiting battleships to 35,000 tons.

Britain desires to set a new upper limit, possibly 42,000 tons. The United States prefers at this time not to be hampered by a new limit, at least not until the plans of Japan become better known and our own are more matured.

POLICE PUSH BROOM AFTER AUTO CRASH

First Call Is Received by Specially Equipped County Patrol Cars.

County police assumed new duties yesterday—that of road cleaners.

And to their patrol car equipment was added a push broom for sweeping up glass after accidents.

The first accident call under the new orders was answered yesterday by Lieutenant W. A. Wells and Patrolmen Paul Dowis and Burton Carroll. The wreckage was removed and then the officers pulled the push broom from the car and swept up the broken glass.

It's all the result of Wednesday's order from Chief George Mathieson. The chief said the glass was dangerous when left in the road and ordered his men's cars equipped to eliminate the road hazard.

Brooms used by the county police force are "double-jointed" so that the handle can be bent in the center and thus take up less room in the police car.

TOWNSEND REVOLT AT QUIZ ASSAILED

Ex-Pension Official Says Move Was Premeditated.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP) Representative Smith, Democrat, Oklahoma, former national vice president of the Townsend old-age pension movement, told the house late today Dr. Francis E. Townsend's defiance of a congressional investigating committee had been planned in advance by his board of directors.

Smith, who said he had been "booted out" of the pension group because he would not submit to the "personal domination" of Townsend, asserted the organization's directors met in Baltimore and planned to make Townsend "a martyr" long before the house ordered its investigation of the movement.

Townsend did stalk out of a meeting of the investigating committee and was convicted of contempt of the house and sentenced to 30 days in jail. His appeal from the sentence is being carried to the supreme court.

Of the 3,000,000 lepers in the world, continental United States contains merely 1,200.

women to the men," she said. "The women here seem to have the ability of adapting themselves to any situation which arises. They seem to be interested in everything that is going on. They want to learn more and take a more active part in current affairs. But the American men—I find them very dull."

Asked if it were true that she had recently become a citizen of Sweden, her highness said:

"How could it be? I'm already a Swedish citizen. So is my son, Lennart Bernadotte. I plan to return there in the near future." Press dispatches February 16 reported her announcement that she had become a Swedish citizen.

Bernadotte is the son of the Grand Duchess and Crown Prince William of Sweden, whom she divorced 24 years ago.

She has lived in the United States for 10 years and during that time has written two books, "A Princess in Exile" and "The Education of a Princess," done radio work, lectured, and has been successful as a fashion consultant for leading dressmaking establishments.

Niece of Late Czar.

A daughter of the brother of the last of the Russian czars, the grand duchess formerly was lady-in-waiting in the Russian imperial court and later when she fled to Paris, became a dressmaker. Recently she returned from a world tour which she made as a representative of a Swedish newspaper syndicate. She wrote a series of articles on women in India, and reported the coronation for newspapers in this country.

Marie and Titiana Solovieff, who recently arrived in New York and described themselves as granddaughters of Rasputin, "The Mad Monk of Russia," are not among acquaintances of the grand duchess Marie. She said: "I never heard of them, but maybe that doesn't matter. Russia is a large place."

Girls Denied Entry.

The two girls were denied entry into New York by immigration authorities, after their arrival from Paris to visit their mother, Mme. Boris Solovieff. They were permitted a brief reunion and a motherly embrace, but officials said they feared the girls would become public charges.

Upon her arrival last night, the grand duchess wore a lightweight dark blue wool coat over a blue and white printed silk. Her hat was a small blue Russian toque. She was limping a bit due to an ankle injury.

She speaks with a decided foreign accent.

"'S OF Freshness WE SING !"

MRS. S. R. DULL

LOOK FOR THE BEAUTIFUL Round Cake SPECIAL

So beautifully and so expertly packaged, Merita's Round Cake Specials reach you oven-fresh, with the icing intact and the whole cake perfect in shape. The recipes and ingredients for these delicious cakes are approved by Mrs. Dull, and are available every day at your grocer's in a variety of flavors and sizes.

No matter how tempting a cake may look on your grocer's counter, the test of its real goodness is the length of time it will stay fresh and moist after you buy it. That item of freshness has long been a matter of extreme interest to Merita Bakers. "How long," they asked themselves, "can we make a cake stay fresh?"

Into the Merita Research Laboratories went Merita Cakes. Tests were then made to determine their keeping qualities. The results showed that Merita Cakes stay fresh until the last crumb is eaten. "BAKED-IN FRESHNESS," Merita's own baking process, is responsible for this lasting MERITA freshness.

Chamberlain Warns Hitler Britain May Have To Fight

Declines, However, To Pledge Armed Aid of Nation to Czechoslovakia.

bound by treaty, the prime minister significantly added:

". . . Where peace and war are concerned, legal obligations are not alone involved, and if war were to break out it would be unlikely to be confined to those who have assumed such obligations.

"It would be quite impossible to say where it would end and what governments might become involved. The inexorable pressure of facts might well prove more powerful than formal pronouncements."

Policy on Spain Booed.

There were derisive opposition cries of "shame" when Chamberlain dealt with Britain's policy of non-intervention in Spain.

Clement A. Attlee, Laborite and leader of the official opposition in commons, opened the attack on the government's policy with a charge that "Chamberlain has yielded to force."

He said: "There is nothing so dangerous as a policy of weakness, drift and uncertainty."

"Rearmament work," he declared, "must have first priority in the nation's efforts."

Purely European in scope, the declaration avoided mention of the Orient.

Chamberlain declared that Britain's friendship talks with Italy were "full of encouragement to those who regard appeasement in Europe as an objective to which the efforts of all men of good will should be directed."

Suspicion of "Conniving."

Both Attlee and Sir Archibald Sinclair, opposition Liberal leader, intimated they suspected Chamberlain of "conniving" with Italy and Germany to obtain a victory for the Spanish Insurgents because of the delay in volunteer withdrawals.

Winston Churchill, war-time cabinet minister, regarded as the leader of a potential anti-Chamberlain revolt among conservative party members, expressed satisfaction with the prime minister's speech.

He warned, however, that Nazification of the whole of the Danubian states is a danger of "first capital magnitude to the British empire."

Hitler's Might Growing.

Churchill declared "the might behind the German dictator increases daily. His appetite may grow with eating.

". . . Is our system of government adapted to the present fierce and swift movements of events? ". . . Is it a system which can reach decisions from week to week with men at the head of the dictator states? The system broke down hopelessly in the war.

"Very likely this immediate crisis will pass. After a boa constrictor has devoured its prey, it often has a considerable digesting period."

He said, however, he dreaded lest "the impulse now given to active efforts may pass away . . .

"I rejoice to hear from the prime minister that a further supreme effort is to be made to place us in a position of security. "Now is the time to rouse the nation and perhaps it is the last time it can be roused with any chance of preventing war or a chance of coming through to victory should all efforts to prevent war fail."

Says Franco Has Rearmed.

Philip Noel-Baker, Laborite who summed up the debate for the opposition, talked of intervention in the Spanish war and said it was obvious that Insurgent Generalissimo Franco had received new armaments.

"In recent battles," he said, "his material has been absolutely overwhelming."

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, who concluded for the government, said Chamberlain's statement "without doubt has made a deep impression on the people of Europe and not France alone."

It was interpreted that he meant Chancellor Hitler would weigh Chamberlain's words carefully.

Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for co-ordination of defense, meanwhile appealed to representatives of the Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions, representing about 160,000 workers, on patriotic grounds for cooperation in the rearmament program.

The opposition in commons declined to force to a vote the issue of the government's foreign policy.

Attlee Praises Hull.

Attlee during his speech praised United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull for a statement which Attlee quoted as:

"The interests of the United States are not measured by the number of American citizens in particular areas."

Sir John Simon, in replying to this, caustically observed:

"The truth of the matter is that the United States are busily engaged in rearmament."

The house adjourned at 10:58 p. m. (4:58 p. m., Atlanta time).

Pertinax Sees Britain Ready To Curb Hitler

By PERTINAX.

(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

PARIS, March 24.—(By Wireless)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's statement in the house of commons was hailed in diplomatic and political circles here as an event of far-reaching international importance.

Hereafter, the solidarity of France and Great Britain, which really came into being as far as defense of the Rhine frontier is concerned in March, 1936, extends beyond that limit and can be regarded as valid for central Europe.

Nobody had expected that Chamberlain would subscribe to fresh international commitments and, therefore, no disappointment whatever was caused by the passage in his speech in which he deals with them and rejects them.

But if the legal position of the British government has not been altered, its political position, its de facto policy have moved ahead and the categorical phrases used by the prime minister in that respect cannot be misunderstood.

Britain Would Follow.

Now it can be taken as certain that if France and Soviet Russia were compelled to rush to the help of Czechoslovakia in the discharge of their obligations of mutual assistance under the treaties they signed with that country on May 2 and 16, 1935, respectively, Great Britain would follow suit.

That development is likely to give a strong impetus to the resistance to Pan-Germanism of the national Slav states which are threatened by it. They will not doubt any more that, in a general war which might follow their refusal to surrender to Hitlerian requirements, the last word would probably belong to the western powers, no matter what happens meanwhile.

A very direct warning is thus given Germany that she will not be at liberty to trample upon international treaties and escape the consequences of her deeds.

French Strife Must End.

However, it would be futile to imagine that Chamberlain's statement is enough by itself to make both the western powers equal to their arduous task. If a cabinet of national union, strong enough to rally to itself the whole of the French people in an emergency, does not speedily emerge from the parliamentary confusion, Chamberlain's words will speedily vanish in thin air.

Moreover, if France and Great Britian really mean to check expansion of Pan-Germanism and, if necessary, fight for Czechoslovakia, they must without further delay closely investigate strategic possibilities and see to it that the most effective weapon left in their hands, the blockade, be carefully adjusted in advance.

Hence the urgency of consultations between the French, British and Russian general staffs and of a joint diplomatic action intended to bring back to the fold of the alliance for the maintenance of peace such governments which of late have been inclined to reinsure themselves on the German side, such as Poland, Yugoslavia and Rumania.

BRITAIN'S POLICIES WIN CZECHS' FAVOR

Chamberlain's Willingness to Meditate With Berlin Gratifies Praha.

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, March 24.—(AP)—Czech political circles seemed favorably impressed today with British Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign affairs speech, even though it contained no binding guarantees for aid to Czechoslovakia.

Chamberlain's expression of hope that Czechoslovakia would fulfill reasonable demands of national minorities within her borders was received with satisfaction.

It was believed here Chamberlain would not insist that Czechoslovakia, in dealing with her 3,500,000 Germans, yield to any demands not compatible with democracy and Czech constitution.

Chamberlain's offer of mediation between Praha and Berlin was noted with gratitude.

The German drive for autonomy in Czechoslovakia, meanwhile, has given a big impetus to similar aspirations of the Slovaks, which thus far have met with little success.

Their champion, sturdy, 73-year-old Father Andreas Hlinka, leader of the Slovak Catholic people's party, made known today that German and Hungarian minorities in Slovakia had joined in the battle for autonomy.

(The population of Slovakia is approximately 3,300,000. Hungarians number 550,000.)

As a counterweight for the German-Sudeten (Nazi) party, which now numbers 55 and is the biggest bloc in parliament, plans were afoot for an alliance of Czech agrarian, Czech tradesmens' and national union parties, which would form a bloc of 75.

Rockefeller Foundation Reports Barriers in Aid to Education.

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—The Rockefeller Foundation reported today that it appropriated more than $9,500,000 in 1937 to assist in pushing out the boundaries of knowledge.

At the same time, Raymond B. Fosdick, president, said the foundation's objective is encountering increasing difficulties because of new international barriers against the advancement of knowledge.

"In some fields," he said, "it is now profitless to go where we formerly went.

"We find ourselves stopped at some frontiers—not because the frontiers have any greater geographical significance than they had a few years ago, but because behind them the search for truth by eager and skeptical minds has been made impossible.

"Particularly in the broad range of subjects covered by the social sciences, and in the humanities as well, the world has recently witnessed in several countries the progressive disintegration of creative scholarship," he added.

In 1937, the foundation established by the late John D. Rockefeller, gave $2,400,000 to the medical sciences, $2,200,000 to public health, $2,000,000 to the social sciences, $1,100,000 to the natural sciences, $800,000 to the humanities and $400,000 to rural reconstruction in China.

Its principal, on December 31, was $150,259,942, the report said.

LITHUANIAN CABINET OF TUBELIS RESIGNS

New Government Formed by Army Chaplain Mironas To Check Bitterness.

KAUNAS, Lithuania, March 24. (AP)—Resignation of the Lithuanian cabinet amid widespread bitterness over the nation's capitulation to Poland was announced officially tonight.

President Antanas Smetona accepted the resignations of Premier Juozas Tubelis and his ministers, and Chief Army Chaplain Mironas formed a new government.

Mironas is a good friend of the President. All new ministers were members of the government party.

The government has been under fire since last Saturday, when it yielded to a warlike Polish ultimatum demanding that relations between the two countries be "normalized."

Tubelis was named minister of agriculture in the new cabinet, and Foreign Minister Stasys Lazoraitis, who offered to resign Monday, remained as acting foreign minister. Stasys Rastikis became acting minister of defense.

Minister of Justice Stasys Silingas also had offered to resign Monday. It was learned that at that time the premier telephoned his resignation to the President from Zurich, Sitzerland, where he has been on a vacation for his health.

A coalition proclamation had been circulated, demanding a new government on the ground present officials were "humiliated by coercion" and could not suitably defend the country's interest.

The proclamation demanded three things:

1. Resignation of the present government.
2. Formation of a coalition government.
3. Adaptation of the democratic system of government to the existing needs of the country.

Among signers of the proclamation were former Presidents Dr. Aleksandras Stulginskis and Dr. Kasmir Grinius, and former Premiers Eustace Kairys, a signatory to the nation's declaration of independence; and M. Slezevicius, a Populist.

smash the government front in northern Aragon."

The civilian mobilization call in Barcelona, crowded with more than 1,500,000 residents and refugees from other war-torn sectors of Loyalist Spain, was decided upon at a four-hour cabinet meeting presided over by Premier Juan Negrin.

Urgent measures for the defense of towns and villages along the Catalonian border in the path of Franco's offensive also were taken.

Franco Victory Seen.

Military observers along the Franco-Spanish frontier predicted a final victory for Franco "within a few weeks" if he maintains his present whirlwind advance.

(London dispatches also told of prevailing belief among military experts of an early Insurgent victory.)

As in his recent Alfambra valley and Teruel offensives, Franco is keeping his three "nut cracker" columns separate. The objective of the Huesca army is Barbastro, 28 miles east, and thence southward into Lerida in the final phase of the pincer operation.

The middle army under command of General Juan Yague is driving due east along the highway into Lerida from the direction of Franco's Saragossa base.

The southern column, only 38 miles from the Mediterranean coast, is holding up near Alcaniz before striking out for Gandesa, 10 miles inside the Catalonian border and 26 miles from the sea.

The Nationalists have driven four deep wedges into the Loyalists' crumbling lines on the three fronts and threaten to encircle all of General Rojo's army in the upper Aragon.

Insurgent dispatches said that Loyalists within the Sargossa salient were beating a frantic retreat back to their defense lines along the Rio Cinoa, 15 miles west of the walled base of Lerida and their last natural barrier between Aragon and Catalonia.

"Soon you shall be in a good book case."

GRAND JURY HEARS GRAFT WITNESSES

Three More Special Sessions Called Next Week.

Investigation of allegations of graft in local law enforcement agencies were resumed by the Fulton county grand jury in a special session yesterday which lasted nearly nine hours.

More than 20 witnesses were heard during the day, among them a group of prisoners from the county chain gang who have been held at the Fulton tower for the last week. These included several who have been identified with the bootleg and lottery rackets here.

A regular session of the jury for routine business has been set for this morning and it is understood that three more special sessions have been called next week. These will be in addition to the regular sessions on Tuesday and Friday.

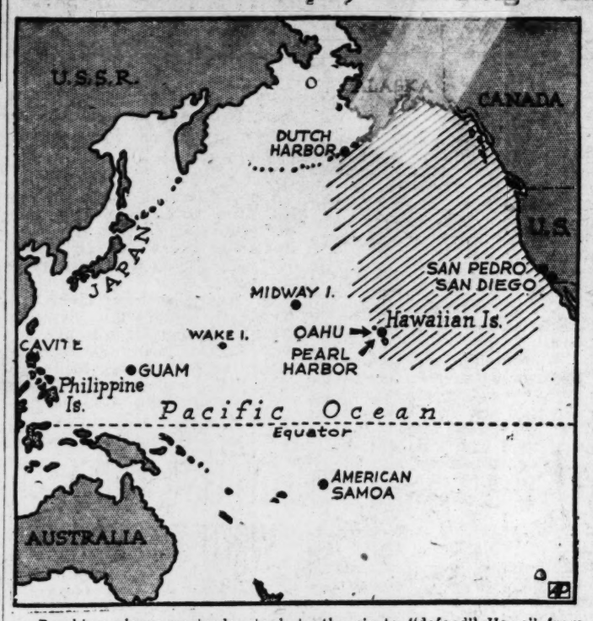
Uncle Sam's Ships, Bombing Planes in 'War Zone'



Bombing planes yesterday took to the air to "defend" Hawaii from an "enemy." The bombers will seek to prevent a "surprise attack" upon the islands by an "enemy" fleet much more powerful than the defenses of America's most vital Pacific base. The shaded area is the "war zone" for the United States fleet maneuvers. As commander-in-chief of the battle fleet, Admiral Claude S. Bloch, right, is directing the defense against imaginary foes.

50 BOMBERS IN AIR TO 'PROTECT' HAWAII

'Defense' Planes Outnumbered Two to One; More Ships in 'War Zone.'

HONOLULU, March 24.—(AP)—About 50 big bombing planes roared off to sea today in an effort to prevent a "surprise attack" upon Hawaii by an "enemy" fleet much more powerful than the consolidated defenses of America's most vital Pacific base.

Operating in a radio silence, some of the naval planes were destined to stay in the air 36 hours or longer as they deployed out over a circle perhaps 1,600 miles in diameter.

Each plane carried a full wartime crew.

Defense forces reached their full strength with the arrival of the cruiser Detroit and 18 destroyers. Two other cruisers, a seaplane tender and several submarines and minesweepers made up the rest of the naval force in the defense.

The over-all defense force embraced some 215 fighting planes, 22,000 soldiers and coastal fortifications.

Anticipating an attack tomorrow or Saturday, the defenders relied upon the planes to locate the enemy and give submarines and minelayers a chance to stop the fleet at sea.

But the defense planes were outnumbered more than two to one. Aboard aircraft carriers and battleships were 500 pursuit planes.

TREASURY HALTS 'KICK' ESTIMATES

Morgenthau Rules Against Income Tax Practice.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP) Kicking mail bags is no way of estimating the nation's revenues, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthan ruefully admitted today. He ordered his collectors to abandon the practice.

On March 15, letters containing income tax payments poured into collectors' offices too fast to tabulate. So the collectors counted the mail bags, prodded them with their feet to get the feel of the weight, and dashed off an estimate that the collections were 18 per cent ahead of a year ago.

By March 21, the collectors had counted the payments and found the increase was only 5.1 per cent.

Davison-Paxon Co. Announces Prize Exhibit Of U. S. CAMERA SALON

Davison's announces the exhibit of the U. S. CAMERA SALON, through Thursday, March 31st. The exhibit, consisting of more than 200 outstanding photographs, will be held in the sixth floor Restaurant.

This unique picture exhibit graphically demonstrates the great interest in photography which has been aroused throughout the United States. At the Radio City showing in New York, over 50,000 visitors attended and enthusiastically acclaimed this exhibition of vivid photographs mounted attractively on 16x20-inch mounts. The exhibit offers the public the best of the year's work, amateur and professional. It consists of photographic illustrations, pictorialism, portraiture, miniature camera masterpieces. The pictures run the gamut of expression from still life to mass violence, to science. Whether or not it proves that photography has come of age as an art, or ever will, is a moot question. But the educational value of photography in creating a broader understanding of and a more inquisitive mind toward the better things in the realms of arts and sciences are proven facts.

The committee judging these photographs selected from thousands submitted were Edward Steichen, Arnold Genthe, Anton Bruehl and Paul Outerbridge, Dr. M. E. Agha, Lajaren A. Hiller, Charles Sheeler, Will Connell, James Dolittle and George Hurrell.

The exhibit will be open from 9 to 5:30 through March 31 on Davison's sixth floor. Of course, there is no admission charge.—(adv.)

cultural crisis, people began to fear for their savings in banks and were withdrawing large amounts in the form of currency and gold, and putting the money in various places of hiding. No action was forthcoming from Washington to stem this tide or to do anything to meet the impending disaster.

(Editor's Note: Many of the states declared bank holidays or otherwise restricted banking, beginning with Louisiana and Michigan in early February and culminating with New York on March 4.)

By Inauguration Day practically every bank in the country had either been closed or placed under restrictions by state proclamations. All the leading exchanges ceased operations. It can be said that financial and banking business in the United States had stopped.

CONSULTS WALSH ON BANK JURISDICTION

For nearly two months I had discussed the gloomy banking situation with a number of people. In order to meet it successfully, it was necessary to discover some constitutional method of obtaining jurisdiction over the entire banking system of the nation.

I had come to the conclusion, after consultation with Senator Thomas J. Walsh, who had been slated to be the attorney general in the new cabinet, until the date of his death on March 2, 1933, that the "Trading With the Enemy Act" of October 6, 1917, as amended September 24, 1918, was still in effect. This act gave the President power to regulate or prohibit transactions in foreign exchange and in gold and silver, and also to prohibit the hoarding of gold, silver coin, bullion and paper currency.

I determined to use this power to close all the banks in order to prevent complete chaos on the Monday following Inauguration Day, which was a Saturday. I accordingly issued a proclamation at 1 o'clock in the morning of March 6, declaring a national bank holiday, to be continued through the four days ending Thursday, March 9, which day was the date set for the convening of congress in extraordinary session.

Although this proclamation was actually the second one issued, it was already prepared and ready for signature before the first proclamation which called the congress into extraordinary session. It had been prepared on March 5, after continuous conference extending over several days among Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, Attorney General Cummings, the outgoing officials of the Treasury Department, and myself.

The purpose of closing all the banks at this time was fourfold. First, to prevent continued runs on banks which would enable one depositor to obtain an unfair advantage over another. Second, to permit the reopening of all sound banks in an orderly manner. Third, to keep closed the many banks which were insolvent and to permit their liquidation in a just and orderly fashion. Fourth, to permit a resumption of banking under circumstances which would instill confidence in the people as to the solvency of their banking system.

EMERGENCY ACT ON BANKING

As soon as congress met on March 9, I sent them a message on banking.

(Editor's Note: It asked for temporary executive control over banks and for legislation to provide additional currency to meet all demands.)

The message was accompanied by the draft of a bill, which was enacted into law by the congress on the same day as it was sent, March 9, 1933. The actual draft was not completed until about one-half hour before the extraordinary session of the congress convened.

The prompt co-operation and vigorous action of the congress on this first day of the extraordinary session did much to restore the confidence of the people of the United States and to convince them that they had a legislature and executive anxious to work together in the emergency.

This emergency banking act confirmed all of the emergency measures which had been taken by the President and the secretary of the Treasury since March 4, 1933; and also gave the President further emergency powers to control foreign exchange transactions, gold and currency movements, and banking transactions in general.

The act also made it possible for any member bank to meet all demands for currency so long as it had sound assets, regardless of the technical eligibility of these assets under the former permanent law, by borrowing against these assets from the Federal Reserve banks.

On the previous Sunday, March 5, when the proclamation closing the banks was determined upon, it was obvious that we should strive to allow the banks to open just as soon as we could obtain reliable assurance of the solvency of each bank. To obtain this information throughout the United States would require at least a week. However, we thought it best to limit the first proclamation to four days.

It was necessary, as we had expected, to issue a second proclamation extending the bank holiday indefinitely until further proclamation.

Because of the excellent co-operation given by the Federal Reserve System and by the various state banking departments, the Treasury Department determined that it would be safe to permit solvent banks to reopen on Monday, March 13. This was also done by the March 10 executive order.

The banks began to open on March 13. Before the first of them was actually opened, I made my first so-called fireside chat.

ALLAYS FEARS BY EXPLANATION

There had always been so much mystery thrown around the banking business, there was so much fear in the minds of bank depositors during these days of the banking crisis, and so much had happened during this first week that I decided to use the radio to explain to the average men and women of the nation who had their money tied up in some bank, what we had done and what we intended to do in the banking situation.

It was my endeavor to explain these things in nontechnical language, so that the great mass of our citizens who had had little or no experience with the technicalities of banking would be relieved of their anxiety as to whether they would ever see their money again.

(Editor's Note: The fireside chat was delivered on Sunday evening, March 12.)

By this time there had been such restoration of confidence that as soon as the banks were reopened a large volume of currency was redeposited.

During the first three days after the banking holiday, about 76 per cent of all the member banks of the Federal Reserve System were opened, and by April 12 state banking authorities had licensed approximately 72 per cent of nonmember banks other than mutual savings banks.

There were still some persons who had been waiting for the government to issue a formal order directing the return of gold in their possession. An executive order was, accordingly, issued on April 5, requiring all holdings of gold coin, gold bullion and gold certificates (with certain exceptions) to be delivered by May 1, 1933, to the Federal Reserve banks.

This order was the first step to that complete control of all monetary gold in the United States, which was essential in order to give the government that element of freedom of action which was necessary as the very basis of its monetary goal and objective. It was a step toward the fulfillment of the Democratic national platform of 1932 pledging "a sound currency to be preserved at all hazards."

JOBLESS RELIEF IS NEXT SUBJECT

Unemployment relief will be the subject of President Roosevelt's article tomorrow. This will be fourth of the series composing the President's own story of the New Deal, and published exclusively by The Constitution in Georgia.

The several forms of relief organized for the millions idle early in 1933, and an explanation of the purpose of each, will be disclosed in the President's commentary, together with an outline of the background of the needs of the time and the inability of existent agencies to cope with the problem.

Five forthcoming books by the President, "The Public Papers and Addresses of Franklin D. Roosevelt" contain the notes and comments which make up this series of newsppaer articles.

Hearing Halted In 'Balm' Suit Of Ex-Film Star

LOS ANGELES, March 24.—(AP) A week's hearing on the $150,000 breach of promise suit brought by Vera Reynolds, former film star, against Robert Ellis Reel, actor-writer, was halted temporarily today by Superior Judge Knight.

"This appears to me to be a situation which might be settled out of court," he said.

A conference of attorneys followed, but no announcement of the outcome was made.

Miss Reynolds testified they were married in Greenwich, Conn., September 16, 1926, by a "Mr. O'Brien," who was represented as a justice of the peace, and she believed herself married to Reel until 1935.

"He carried the money, but I furnished it," she said, in describing their honeymoon trip to Europe on which they spent $5,000.

Reel denied they ever were married or that he promised to marry her, although admitting they lived together.

SENATE CONSIDERS RIVAL PROPOSALS FOR TVA PROBE

House Issues Stern Admonition That It Must Be Represented.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(UP)—The senate today unexpectedly began consideration of rival proposals for a congressional investigation of the $400,000,000 Tennessee Valley Authority after a stern admonition from the house that it must be represented on the inquiry committee.

The issue was thrust on the floor of the upper chamber after the senate agreed to sidetrack the government reorganization bill until Monday to consider a resolution by Senator Norris, Independent, Nebraska, co-author of the original TVA act, for a $50,000 probe of the agency by a five-man senatorial committee.

House Warning Voiced.

The Norris resolution promptly crashed into a substitute proposal by Majority Leader Barkley for a $50,000 investigation by a joint committee of five senators and five representatives. Barkley warned the house would launch its own inquiry if not allowed representation.

It was understood Barkley's resolution carried administration indorsement. A final vote is expected tomorrow, after which the house will act quickly.

Barkley Resolution.

The Barkley resolution would empower the committee to determine whether TVA's operation has been "efficient and economical," whether internal dissension among the directors handicapped its work and whether any director "aided or assisted private power companies" in suits or injunctions against it.

The committee, which would elect its own chairman, would be given powers to hold hearings and subpoena all necessary witnesses and documents.

Earlier, objections by Minority Leader McNary, Republican, Oregon, to interrupting debate on the reorganization bill, had balked Norris in getting his resolution to the floor.

Bridges Defeated.

Decision to press for swift action on the inquiry came after administration objections smothered a dramatic gesture by Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, bitter foe of TVA, to impound the agency's records pending the inquiry.

He sought to force immediate action on his resolution ordering the senate sergeant-at-arms to sequester TVA's books, records, papers, and documents, arguing that they might be altered or destroyed during the congressional squabble over jurisdiction of the investigation.

Bridges said he feared Dr. Harcourt A. Morgan, who was elevated to the TVA chairmanship, and director David E. Lilenthal might seek to "cover up" charges of malfeasance and dishonesty leveled at them by Chairman Arthur E. Morgan, who was ousted Tuesday by President Roosevelt.

OUSTING OF MORGAN CRITICIZED IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP)—House Republicans criticized President Roosevelt today for removing Arthur E. Morgan from the chairmanship of the TVA and for permitting what was called a "demoralizing national scandal" concerning postmaster appointments.

Representative Hoffman, Republican, Michigan, said the President's explanation of his action against Morgan had a hollow ring.

ASSEMBLY TO SEND REPORTER TO JAIL

Canadians Claim Story as 'Misrepresentation.'

EDMONTON, Alta., March 24.—(Canadian Press.)—The Alberta legislature voted tonight to send John C. Brown, Edmonton Journal reporter, to jail "during the pleasure of the assembly," because he wrote two paragraphs which were declared to be "scandalous misrepresentation."

J. L. Robinson, of Medicine Hat, member, had complained of the paragraphs, which said Robinson had opposed having chiropractors included specifically in provisions for treatment under the provincial workmen's compensation act.

A chiropractor himself, Robinson declared the statement untrue and written by a writer who knew it to be false.

DIPLOMAT FORESEES RUSSIA IN NEXT WAR

Troyanovsky Declares Treaties Involve Soviet.

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—Alexander A. Troyanovsky, Russian ambassador to the United States, asserted tonight "it is very likely that the Soviet Union will be involved" should there be a world war "because of treaties with other countries."

He made this assertion in the second of two speeches; the first was broadcast and the second was delivered to an audience in Mecca Temple. In both, he said of the Red army: "We can take care of ourselves.

"Our defensive treaty of mutual assistance with Czechoslovakia provides that we have to come to the help of Czechoslovakia in the event that she is attacked by any aggressor if France also comes to the assistance of that country. So, our treaty with France makes it obligatory for us to come to her assistance if she is the subject of unprovoked aggression by a third country."

THE PATMAN BILL

An example of legislation concocted almost solely for political effect is to be found in the Patman bill. Ostensibly for revenue purposes, the bill will, if enacted, actually destroy the chain store systems of the nation. In justification of his measure, Congressman Wright Patman, of Texas, advances the old, fallacious argument that the independent merchant is being driven out of business.

The bill would levy a maximum tax of $1,000 per store, multiplied by the number of states in which the chain operates, to get the total tax against the entire system. The estimated "take" from the industry as a whole would come to $2,028,000,000. Inasmuch, however, as the chains would be quickly forced to the wall, depriving many states of legitimate income as well as people of their livelihood, all revenue anticipations are merely figures of speech.

In the process of cutting its own financial throat under the proposed bill, the nation's most extensive chain of food stores, based on current operations, would have to hand over $569,000,000 per annum to the federal treasury. This would consume 62 per cent of its annual gross income. A large shoe store system would be mulcted of $18,990,000, over 50 per cent of its annual gross business. And so on, down the line.

The contention that the independent merchant is being driven out of business is not sustained by the facts. In 1929, according to the United States Bureau of Census, there were 234,082 independent food stores in operation. This constituted 76 per cent of the country's total. Six years later, in 1935, the independents had expanded to 304,389, or slightly more than 85 per cent of the total. The volume of sales, during the same period, rose from 56 per cent to 60.5 per cent.

Instead of the chains destroying the little merchants, the feeling is growing in informed retail circles that their relationship has about reached a proper balance; that they have about adjusted themselves to each other.

The chain reached maturity somewhat after the fashion of its predecessor, the department store. Both survived many false alarms of similar type as to destructive effects on independent units. But the independent merchant modernized his store, entered into co-operattive buying agreements and inaugurated other measures which have improved his competitive position.

Continuation of the chain system in the economic life of the nation is essential. It is justified, if for no other reason, by the savings inuring from efficient management. The people as a whole have adjusted themselves to the system. The chains, also, have probably moved nearer than any others toward solution of the problem of distribution. This is the most pressing question of all in the nation's economic structure. If the Patman bill ever comes to a vote it should be overwhelmingly defeated.

FOR WORLD PEACE

Sane realization of the world situation is evidenced in the bi-partisan movement begun in Washington for a repeal of the neutrality act which, as it now stands, carries merely a false promise of security to the American people. The very fact of its existence has, however, revealed the basic fallacy in its structure and should make easier the task of those working for its repeal. They will, of course, have to overcome the certain opposition of pressure groups.

Repeal of the neutrality act will not bring the United States closer to war in Europe and Asia. It would, instead, be a major step toward the preservation of peace throughout the world, serving warning on aggressor nations that the United States will be able to supply peace-loving countries the goods they need for self-defense and for the defense of the democratic ideals in which this land believes.

As Secretary Hull recently pointed out in a reaffirmation of American foreign policy, isolationism is no longer a guarantee of peace. The citizens of the United States have but to examine their history books to find the answer to that policy. Prior to 1812 a neutrality act remarkably similar to the present law was enacted. This country then went to war with Great Britain. Britain, fortunately, was occupied on the continent, and United States warships kept the seas free. From 1914 to 1917 our efforts to remain out of the World War were as determined as ever they could be, yet the United States finally entered the maelstrom.

Americans have a rich stake in world peace, repeal of the neutrality act will serve notice to the world that the United States is coming to a better understanding of the forces which alone can maintain peace.

FIRST ATLANTIC CROSSINGS

The landing of an airplane from Mars would hardly create a greater sensation today in New York harbor than the arrival of the good ship "Sirius" did 100 years ago. Although the vessel, a 700-ton paddle-wheeler, made the run with 40 passengers in the unprecedented time of 17 days, the event does not now seem particularly exciting to those who have seen an airplane span the same distance in 17 hours. New York is now celebrating the centennial of the event.

But the sensation, of course, lay in the fact it was the first vessel ever to cross an ocean entirely under the power of steam. Nineteen years previously, the steamship "Savannah" made the trip from Savannah to Liverpool in 25 days. Most of that voyage, however, was made under sail.

Built for the London-Cork service, the voyage of the "Sirius" across the Atlantic was purely experimental. It was so successful a tremendous upsurge in marine construction immediately followed. Regularly scheduled sailings were established as fast as ships could be built, launched and equipped.

One of the most serious difficulties to be overcome in those early days of self-propelled ocean vessels was the problem of carrying sufficient fuel for the trip and at the same time leaving room for revenue-producing cargo. The engines consumed four times as much per horsepower as present-day marine engines. But the problem was tackled vigorously and technical improvements in machinery, rather than enlargements of storage space for fuel, made the venture more profitable.

Looking back to that day, a century ago, when the "Sirius" slowly chugged up to the dock, marine circles, both in America and England, are marking the event with appropriate ceremonies.

It is a far cry from that period of transoceanic inconveniences and 17-day crossings to the modern method of spanning the Atlantic in four days.

CHARLESTON AWAKES

Perhaps it would not be fair to imply that the ancient city of Charleston, S. C., has been pleasantly dreaming in soporific quiet through all the modern years. Yet there has long been the connotation, whenever the city was named, of peaceful self-sufficiency, of the sedate old manner of life, oblivious to the clangor and rush and pressing social problems of younger, upstart municipalities.

Evidence of the awakening, if awakening was needed, is seen in the program of the Fifth Azalea Festival, to be held in the Carolina coast metropolis April 22 to 27. The importance of the event is evidenced in the action of the national congress which, accepting a special invitation from Mayor Burnet R. Maybank, will adjourn from April 21 to 25 so congressmen, their wives and families, the personnel of executive departments and other Washingtonians, may visit the festival. There will be a special train, the "Congressional Azalea Festival Special," to convey the national lawmakers and law enforcers to the city by the sea.

Fifty South Carolina queens of beauty will adorn great floats in a huge parade. World-famous orchestras will play for numerous dances and balls, knights panoplied in the armor of ancient days will vie in tournament to win the right to name a "Queen of Love and Beauty." There will be visits to Charleston's world-famous gardens. A water carnival will turn night into day on the historic Ashley and Cooper rivers. There will be a "pirate pageant" on the Battery. Sail and motor boat races are scheduled. Notable stage productions, a street criers' contest, a street carnival occupying ten blocks of the business district and innumerable other events are listed.

Veritably, stately, sedate and peaceful Charleston is going modern!

The world, aghast, is wondering on what meat our present Caesars feed. It's been months since any of the boys asked for vanilla.

If the worst happens before '39, New York could hold a what-is-left-of-the-world's fair.

It is now pretty generally recognized that Hitler doesn't smoke, drink or run around at night. His weakness is power.

A condition has arisen in which Washington can't open a daily newspaper without adding 15,000 tons to a proposed battleship.

Editorial of the Day

PUMP AND PROSPERITY

(From the Boston Herald.)

A familiar statement of the school which believes a nation can spend its way out of a depression is that the present condition of industry was caused by a reduction in federal appropriations for relief. Bernard M. Baruch took a shot at that theory in his testimony before the senate committee on unemployment and relief. He introduced the following table, which shows "federal relief expenditures of all sorts in 1937 as compared with prior years":

1934	$4,502,404,000
1935	4,348,941,000
1936	5,725,682,000
1937	4,579,197,000
Average	4,789,056,000

The high figure of 1936 is explained by the distribution of the veterans' bonus. Even with that included, the relief spending in 1937 was only $210,000,000 less than the average of the four years. Can it be reasonably argued that a decline of this relatively small sum made the difference between recession and nonrecession, or that a lavish program such as that of 1936 would have headed off our difficulties? Mr. Baruch asserted that "after almost four years we are not as well off as we were after the truly remarkable 1933 recovery as it stood on July 1 of that year."

AMERICA SPEAKS

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, March 24.—The typical American voter has not been following the arguments for and against the undistributed profits tax, a bitterly criticized levy which has agitated the business world for more than two years. But a substantial majority of those who are familiar with the tax, now being debated in congress, think it should be repealed or reduced.

These facts are brought to light by an American Institute of Public Opinion survey in which two questions were put to a scientifically selected cross-section of voters. The first question read:

"Have you followed the arguments for and against the federal undistributed profits tax?"

The vote:

Yes	30%

REPEAL OF TAX RAVORED BY POLL

Those who indicated that they have been following the tax controversy were asked: "Should the federal undistributed profits tax be repealed, reduced, or left unchanged?" Their vote was:

For Repealing the Tax	40%
For Reducing the Tax	29%
For Leaving It Unchanged	31%

The undistributed profits levy, passed by congress in 1936, is a graduated tax on corporation earnings that are not paid out in dividends.

Two conclusions are indicated by the survey results. First, since the tax does not stir up wide public interest, pressure for changing it is not likely to be resisted by the mass of ordinary voters. They seem to have little desire to rally to the defense of the measure.

Second, among those who know about the tax there is little sentiment for "soaking the rich"—for making corporations "pay through the nose" so far as this particular tax is concerned. On the contrary, the majority want the undistributed tax burden eased.

WHY THE TAX IS OPPOSED

Their opposition to the tax springs from two main reasons. The majority declare, first, that it impedes business progress, that an easing of the burden would help restore prosperity. In the words of one typical voter, "the tax is a log-jam that holds up recovery.

The second reason given is that corporations must be allowed to keep reserve funds for future needs. "If companies haven't got surpluses to keep them running in bad times," said one voter, "many workers will lose their jobs."

The fact that the public has no strong feeling in favor of the tax undoubtedly explains why senators and representatives have felt free to run counter to the Roosevelt administration in advocating drastic reductions or outright repeal. They have relatively little to suffer from the voters back home.

As revised in the house bill, the undistributed profits tax was greatly reduced. But even this measure faces a revolt in the senate, where many members favor outright repeal.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

Poor stumbling man demeans himself
In servitude to Mars—
While all the while the way is plain
To lift him to the stars.

Wanted—
Thirty Dollars.

There is, in Atlanta, a young mother and two little children. They are faced with real hunger, privation, homelessness and tragedy.

But they can be saved. The price of their salvation is Thirty Dollars.

The little family has lived for two months in a humble shack, without heat, often without food. But always that little place they have called home has been clean. That is the kind of woman this young woman is.

Six weeks ago the husband and father left them. Probably driven by despair, as he found no means to support his little family, he deserted them. The mother can find no work. Various organized charitable agencies have been appealed to, but the sole result has been visits by "investigators." All plead lack of funds as the reason for their inability to do anything save "investigate"

Neighbors have helped as much as they can, by providing milk for the children and meals for the woman. But neighbors have their own problems and can do only so much.

The owner of the little place the mother and her babies occupy is herself poor. She has given them the shelter rent free for two months, but cannot continue this, for her own sake.

There's Help
In Connecticut.

In Connecticut, the mother's old home, there is help, if they can go there.

Her family is willing to provide a home, even though they are financially hard pressed themselves. There are two brothers and a sister working for low wages. Her father is jobless and there are three younger brothers going to school.

But the young mother has been assured she can have her old job back in the factory where she was formerly employed, if she can only reach Bridgeport again.

And it will cost $30 to provide everything needed to transport these three from Atlanta to Bridgeport.

There seems to be no way of getting that $30 unless there is some generous soul, who can spare it, who will make the gift.

The $30 means the difference between safety and self-respecting independence in Bridgeport and utter starvation and despair in Atlanta.

The need is urgent. The response must be today. If help isn't forthcoming the little family will be out of their home, such as it is, by tonight. For the owner of the shack has a tenant who can pay rent waiting to move in. The owner's own situation is so desperate no one can blame her for demanding her property.

A telephone call to Silhouettes will be all needed for anyone who can furnish the $30. I'll put you in touch with the proper party who is striving to help a young mother and two little boys, 6 and 3 years old.

A Verse
Of Friendship.

A. G. Brooks, writing in "Spotting the News," organ of the Southeastern Photo-Engravers' Association, contributes a little verse under the title, "Friendship," which, for various reasons, is well worth republishing here. I think you'll like it. Here it is:

I am a Yank,
But want to thank
That Providence Divine,
Which gives me friends away down south,
Below the M-D line,
That southern drawl—
Its accents fall
Athwart my Yankee twang
But when our voices joined in song,
How sweetly that song rang!
The point is this—
Let's never miss
The joys of harmony.
Although we may not think alike,
We always can agree.

"The city of Atlanta today faces a suit for damages as the result of the death of a horse last Saturday morning by stepping into a hole in the asphalt pavement at the corner of Peachtree and Linden streets—a suit which could have been averted if the continued protestations of hundreds of people had been answered by the city and a safe and level pavement furnished."

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

OUR JEWISH FRIENDS.

Continued persecution of the Jews throughout war-torn Europe brings to mind that revealing sentence of the late Senator Zebulon B. Vance, of North Carolina: "There is a lonely river in the midst of the ocean of mankind—the Jewish race." Senator Vance likened the Jewish race to the Gulf Stream, concluding the illustration with this striking statement: "Its (the Jewish race) fountain is in the gray dawn of the world's history, and its goal is somewhere in the shadows of eternity."

I say this continued persecution brings to mind the above sentence, as it brings to mind the immortal words of Lord Macaulay: "I think it may be truthfully said that there is more of average wealth, intelligence and morality among the Jewish people than there is among any other nation of equal numbers in the world." Originally an agricultural people, the Jews have been driven from one place to another, scattered throughout the world, but wherever they have been given a chance, they have proved themselves good citizens.

Why then, I find myself continually asking, why do men—how can men—who regard themselves, whether others do or not, as wise enough to be national and international leaders close their eyes to the work of the Jew? Moreover, why do they close their eyes to the lessons of history which unmistakably teach us that the Jew is here and here to stay—that he has a divine mission to perform and that man cannot set aside the purposes of God? Let us learn to appraise the Jew, as we appraise other men, by his merits.

One of the many reasons why I am grateful to be an American is the fact that the Jew has met with less persecution in our nation than in any nation of the world. Bernard Baruch recently said: "My father was an immigrant and a refugee from attacks on freedom in another country. My mother's people have been here since the Revolution. They were both of a race and a religion which have not always been granted liberty and equality of opportunity in the other lands. For them, and for myself, I feel grateful to the political and economic system which has nourished and honored us." And he might well have added, the religious liberty which is only to be found in the United States.

Grateful to a people who have given us monotheism, who have given us so much of art and science, who have been willing to work for a living, who have guarded the sanctities of the home, who have observed the laws of God and man, who have proved themselves good neighbors unvaringly—grateful for our Jewish friends, let us remember them daily in our prayers.

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Is It Coming To This?

SAN FRANCISCO, March 24.—As George Spelvin, American, was shaving himself one day last week, all of a sudden, wham! a half-brick fans our friend's ear and busts a gouge of plaster out of the wall. Mr. Spelvin took a look out the window and saw a whole mob of guys walking up and down wearing signs reading "George Spelvin unfair to organized labor," "George Spelvin is a dirty fink," "Spelvin is a scab," and so forth.

"Hey, what's your trouble?" Mr. Spelvin demanded.

"Boo!" "Lousy scab!" "Fink!" "Rat!" The mob yelled back.

"Why, you no good bums,' Mr. Spelvin yelled, losing his temper, "I been a union man 20 years, and most of you dirty bums couldn't even get into a union, who the hell sent you around here, anyway?"

"The barbers' union sent us," yelled the spokesman. "The barbers declare George Spelvin unfair because he shaves himself."

"Well, that's a hot one," Mr. Spelvin said. "According to that, the barbers ought to beat the ears off the whole crowd of you mugs because you ain't even washed your ugly mushes in a year, much less bought you a shave."

Well, just about then Mr. Spelvin's loving old lady pokes her head out of the kitchen and yipped:—"Hey, pa, come here. There's a lot of bums out in back here walking up and down insulting me!"

"No kidding," said George. "What about?"

"Union Stuff"

"Come on and look, you dirty coward!" Mrs. Spelvin yelled back. "Why would I be kidding about blokes insulting me? I haven't been insulted that way in 20 years. These mugs are insulting me about union stuff." So George went back to the kitchen just as a target egg skushed against the window and some cabbages and things landed on the porch.

"Hey!" George yelled. "Are you guys out of your mind? What's the idea heaving stuff at my love bower and yelling insults at my dream girl?"

"Your old lady is unfair to organized labor," one guy hollered.

"For gossakes, brother, you're leaping," George said. "My old lady ain't union, mister, non-union or anything else. Union is just—no, never mind one way or another with her. She's a home girl. She don't have no job. Try next door."

"No, not next door. George Spelvin's old lady is a dirty fink, scab, rat, bum! boo" the one guy yelled. And the best of the crowd kind of liked the sound of that, so they started dancing up and down and yelling, "Fink!" "Scab!" "Rat!" "Bum!" "Boo! over and over.

"Puddin," George said to his wife, "no foolin, have you been two-timing me, out holding down a job on me while I'm away at work?"

The old girl gave him a look.

"Somebody must be nuts," she said. "Where would I be getting time to hold down a job? And, anyway, do you think I'm that crazy about work?"

"George Spelvin's old lady is unfair to the laundry workers," a mug yelled. "She does her own washing."

Does Own Washing

"Oh! Now it comes out," the old girl said. "Well, my hero, it looks like you will have to stake me to laundry dough after this."

"And Spelvin's old lady is unfair to the teamsters," another guy said. "She carries her groceries home from the cash store to save delivery expenses. She is unfair to the bookkeepers, too, by not having a charge account. And unfair to the garment workers because she makes her own clothes. And George is unfair to the waiters because he carries his lunch—the dirty fink, scab, rat, bum, boo! And he's a crumb to the bus drivers' union because he walks to work, and the brewery workers are on him because he boycotted them when he went up the pole New Year's. Dirty fink, scab, rat, bum, boo, and so is his old lady!"

George's manhood got sore at that, and he was just about to tear out and start belting when the phone rang. It was George's own union, and the guy on the other end said, "Everybody turn out and picket 222 Slug street. Barbers, laundry guys, teamsters, bus drivers, bookkeepers, garment guys and waiters got some guy down for being unfair. It ain't our headache, but we got to stand together. Bring your old lady, too."

So what do you know? Day after day old George and the No. 1 doll have been flatfooting up and down in front of their own love nest and heaving stuff at their own windows and yelling, "Fink, scab, rat, bum, boo, and so is his old lady!"

One Who Conquers Himself Is Greater Than One Who Takes a City

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

All of us have some capacity for stubbornness, but the most perversely mulish person is the one who knows he is in the wrong. If being in the wrong makes him a failure, he is caught in a trap from which there is no escape except by doing violence to his pride.

Years ago, when standards were different, a youngster in our town lost his social standing by drinking too much.

He began by fortifying himself with a little Dutch courage to overcome his bashfulness when he had a date. When one drink loosened his tongue, he reasoned that another would do it better, and it wasn't long before he got so noisy that girls were afraid or ashamed to go out with him. Not one would give him a date.

Of course he blamed the girls. They were stuck-up and silly and narrow, and they could all go to thunder as far as he was concerned.

When his friends suggested that he make some concession to get back into favor, he became sullen and said he'd see everybody in Tophet first. The girls could take him as he was, or he could get along without girls.

You see, his masculine pride was involved, and it wouldn't permit him to change his ways because that would require an admission that he was in the wrong. He was trapped by his own perversity.

Yet when his friends gave up and let him alone, he soon saw the light. Pride was costing him too much, so he decided to reform. After that, the way back was easy.

When any man fails to get ahead as fast as others of his class who are no more intelligent or more capable, there is a reason for it and the reason is usually in himself. His ideas or beliefs or standards are wrong.

If failure has made him bitter, he will argue perversely that he is right and all the world wrong. He will be enraged by any suggestion that he change. He wouldn't "sell himself"—i. e., change his mind—for mere filthy lucre.

That, of course, is nonsense. In his heart he knows that he must be wrong and the others right—else why do they succeed while he fails? It is stubborn pride that hamstrings him.

Surrender is always hard; yet in this instance it shouldn't be, for it really means conquering himself, and there is no disgrace in a victory.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Be it ever so humble,
There's no place like home."

And be it ever so small, there's no industry like the home industry. The south "will miss its opportunities," thinks Editor George H. Armistead, of The Nashville Banner, "if, in eagerness to attract million-dollar industries, it fails to advantage itself of smaller industries which can be locally developed, and which would pay heavy dividends through taking up the unemployment slack and providing an outlet for crops which too long have gone begging." Another equally great advantage of small local industries, we believe Editor Armistead will agree, is that they look to the locality for their markets and have an interest in building up that market through wages and farm prices as high as possible. Still another is that such industries are likely to be locally owned and to keep their profits turning over at home.

Lecturing at Mt. Dora, Fla., last week, we were refreshed in our love for the cleanlines of New England. Mt. Dora is a community made up mostly of New Englanders and Pennsylvania Dutch, and if there is a dirty or unpainted house in the whole place we couldn't find it. Using a little soap and paint doesn't cost much money, and it makes all the difference in the world. We southerners, with all our charm, could do with more of both about our houses and hotels.

Our old schoolmate, William Barnett, who has a big orange grove at Mt. Dora, doesn't worry about a possible return some day of the Mediterranean fly which did so much damage to Florida vegetation ten years ago. He thinks the visitation that year was the result of extraordinary weather—or, rather an extraordinary combination of weathers—which isn' likely to be repeated this century Another old friend we ran into i Florida was George Simons, o Jacksonville, former president o Civitan International, whose inter est in planning and beautificatio does not end with the pavement but runs now to ways and mean of preserving the south's forest for and against paper mills.

WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Terrorizing Civilians.

NEW YORK.—Nothing like this was seen in the Great War: 1,350 civilians slain in less than 24 hours by air aids over Barcelona. A maternity ward in a hospital wiped out; mothers, newly born infants and unborn infants all mixed together in a bloody mess, quivering chunks of human flesh dangling on the telephone wires outside the wrecked building. A school hit in another district, the entrance of a subway where scores had sought refuge obliterated at another point.

And all this for no military reason at all, that is, no military objectives were envisaged by the raiders, simply to terrorize the inhabitants, to drive them in panic to bring pressure to bear on their government to surrender in the face of overwhelming odds. It is a ghastly spectacle and I think that if our hearts had not been hardened to calamity and injustice, if we had not been poisoned with our own blood in the last war, a wave of indignation would sweep the world in the presence of such a holocaust of innocents.

To think that all this is being done "to restore respect for religion and the traditional morality of Spain," one wonders what sor of a morality that can be. It i certainly not the morality of Hi who said: "Suffer little childre to come unto Me." . . . You can not instill respect for anythin by tearing little human beings t pieces. This is the way to ki whatever religious sentiment ther remained in the hearts of th Spanish people. This is bringin back the blackest middle ages.

Ickes Takes 'Crack' At Bold Newsman

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP)—Reporters told Secretary Ickes at his press conference today that lights along Mount Vernon highway, a petters' paradise, recently burned all day but were turned off that night.

Ickes glanced speculatively at the reporter's bald pate.

"If you weren't so darned old, you would," he replied.

Park police explained the lights had been turned on in the daytime for testing and replacement of burnt-out bulbs, and that they had been turned off that night by mistake.

War Fears in Europe

McGill Discusses How Nazis Attain Power—Using Minister of Interior Is Favorite Trick.

This is the third in a series of articles by Ralph McGill, sports editor of The Constitution, who is touring Europe on a Rosenwald fellowship. The fourth of this series will be published tomorrow.

By RALPH McGILL.

LONDON.—(By Mail.)—When Germany was informed that Dr. Seyss-Inquart had been made minister of the interior, a newspaperman with whom I talked drew his finger suggestively across his throat.

It is part of the Hitler policy—this minister of the interior business. When he had just enough party in Germany to demand some privileges, he asked for just one office. They gave him a choice and he asked for the office of minister of the interior for one of his friends, Captain Goering.

This gave him the police. The police would be under the Nazi wing. Nazis could create disorder and not arrest it. They could have their demonstrations and the police would not interfere.

It was, ironically enough, this Dr. Seyss-Inquart who sent the famous telegram of March 11, telling Herr Hitler there was such disorder in Austria he had best send the German troops to restore peace and order. The police had been his for three weeks and all the old Nazi prisoners were out of jail and back on their beats again.

"I AM IN HABIT OF SHOOTING"

When Goering stepped in as minister of the interior in Prussia in 1933, he was the best worker Hitler had. Goering, now second in command in Germany and the man to whom Hitler's mantle will fall, was the one who said, on February 26, 1933, at Dortmund. "I am in the habit of shooting from time to time. And if I sometimes make a mistake, at least I have shot."

That is the German policy. In Germany they do not think much of right or wrong. You will search far in any political history to find a more sordid statement than that of Hermann Goering. He means it today. As I write he has announced to the press that Germany has the greatest army in the world and the most planes and that German's guns are ready to shoot.

The German military class which shoved the Kaiser into a war was no more rabid than this war class of today. Germany is a nation which, like Italy and any other Fascist nation, respects no pledge and knows no law but its own.

Germany has not changed much since the World War. Then the German representative in England, when the invasion of Belgium was protested, retorted, "Necessity knows no law."

CREATE DISORDER TO ATTAIN POWER

The Nazi plan is to create disorder and to then cry that the Nazi party must correct and quell the disorder. Nazis are a bad combination of intelligence and ruthlessness.

There is much they have accomplished. They have done wonders with motors. They have had the best roads in all Europe. They are building more. They have managed their currency so as to keep it stable. They have done almost unbelievable things in their drive to become self-sufficient. If one would wipe away all their crimes, their brutality and their motto of shoot even if it is a mistake, there would be much to admire about their accomplishments.

DUCHESS DISCLOSES ITALO-GERMAN PACT

All yesterday afternoon and last night until near midnight I sat in the press gallery at the British parliament and watched the appearance of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain on one of the most important days in English history since the World War.

He was to speak on the German situation and he did, rebuking the German version of its dealings with England.

That will be another story. There was one feature which will do for this. The Duchess of Atholl arose from her bench in the Liberal side of the house and said:

"I have in my hand a photostatic copy of an agreement made by Italy two years before the revolution in Spain to help restore the royalty to the government. Yet, when the revolution came in Spain both Germany and Italy professed to be fighting Communism. And just the other day Germany, through Hitler, announced it would not permit any Communism in Spain. The specter of Communism was a mere blind to their real intentions."

The Duchess of Atholl was speaking on behalf of the people of Spain and the Spanish government waging war against Fascism and was asking that England and France abandon the non-intervention agreement and permit France to send arms and men as Italy and Germany have done.

The Communism "bogey" in Spain was, at the time the revolution began, a real bogey. Since then the government has become Marxist in its policies. That has been due to Russian aid and to the failure of the government to halt Franco before he reached the outskirts of Madrid.

DER FUEHRER'S THREE HATES

Hitler keeps repeating over his three hates. He hates Communism, the Jews and the Treaty of Versailles. The Communism bogey is his present loudest hate. He keeps the people inflamed with it. He beats the drums against Russia. He speaks as if Russia would not be permitted a single connection with Germany. Yet there is some trade and Intourist (Russian travel agency) carries on business in Berlin with a large office.

There was no threat of Communist dominance in Germany. Hitler claims to have saved the nation. It is the old, old plan. There is ample evidence to sustain the charge that the Reichstag fire, presumably set by the Communists, actually was set by the Hitler organization to supply the necessary public "demand."

Through an American who visited Berlin at the time of the Olympic games, I was able to visit one Jewish family. The parents are old and are waiting to die. Their children have gone to other countries. The parents cannot go to see them. The children cannot come home. The new laws make it impossible for a Jew to retain his passport if he leaves the country. There are many tragic stories of children wanting to see their parents who are sick or in need. It is impossible. That is tragedy enough.

THE CHILDREN ARE REAL TRAGEDY

But the children are the real tragedy. As surely as the mills of the gods grind slowly there must be some terrible punishment ahead for the leaders of the German government for their treatment of a helpless people and for their treatment of children who are allowed no rights on playgrounds, who are made to feel fear and shame at schools, who are deprived of all mental peace.

And now it is beginning in Austria where dwelt a friendly, happy, cultured people.

It is to be most profoundly hoped that the democracies of the world will not be confused by the noise of the two camps, the Communists and the Fascists, into believing one must choose one or the other. There still remains free government. It is, as the dictators charge, slow because it listens to the voice of the people. But it has more power once it is heard. In England there is very grave fear. England sees small nations slipping away into the maws of a nation which operates with the motto: "I am in the habit of shooting from time to time. And if I have made mistakes I at least have shot."

(In tomorrow's article, Mr. McGill will discuss "Hitler and his opposition in Germany.")

$600,000 PAY BOOST ANNOUNCED BY POSTAL

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—The Postal Telegraph Company announced wage increases today for 15,000 employes throughout the nation effective April 1, with the major share of a $600,000 annual pay boost going to those making $75 a month or less.

R. A. Gantt, operating vice president, fixed the scale of increases at $4 a month to those getting under $75; $3 a month to those getting between $75 and $100, and $2 a month to those getting between $100 and $160.

INFANTRY SCHOOL MAY GET $83,340

Major General Lynch Discusses Needs of Fort Benning Unit.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga., receives $83,340 for its activities during the next fiscal year, an increase of $12,010 over last year, in the military establishment appropriation bill reported to the house yesterday.

Major General George A. Lynch, chief of infantry, told a subcommittee of the house appropriations committee, which drafted the measure, that the appropriation would be used for the procurement of books, publications, instruments, and materials and other necessary instruction at the infantry school.

He pointed out that the amount included in the budget estimate for the next fiscal year was only $63,840, a decrease of $19,500 under the amount actually recommended by the committee.

Anti-Tank Guns.

In discussing items of equipment for use by the infantry school, General Lynch testified:

"It is understood that the estimates of the chief of ordnance include amounts to provide anti-tank guns for infantry use. This gun is still in the process of development and it is anticipated that a pilot model will be available during the spring of this year.

"At present the infantry has no effective anti-tank gun. As a substitute, the 50-caliber machine gun is being employed and the estimates for 1939 include 11 of these guns in order to complete the program for active regular army regiments. It is still effective against many of the tanks in use in foreign armies."

Semi-Automatic Rifles.

He also urged further modernization by our infantry by wide use of the semi-automatic rifle "which has been adopted as standard to replace the present 1903 rifle and presents as much improvement over the 1903 rifle as that rifle did over our old Spanish-American war weapon or the Krag-Jorgensen."

The infantry school appropriation also includes, General Lynch said, funds for 18 medium tanks, or the number required to complete the equipment of one medium tank company, the only medium tank organization now activated. It also includes funds to provide 314 infantry hand carts and further development of modern field ranges at Benning.

General Lynch advised the committee there were many other projects under development for which no funds were being asked.

Colonel Rapp Brush, of the office of the chief of infantry, told the committee that because of the lack of sufficient WPA funds, Fort Benning had been unable to include air conditioning equipment there. He testified it would take approximately $19,500 for this purpose.

NEW CABINET CRISIS IS FACED BY FRANCE

Hostile Senate Rejects Blum Financial Bill, Asks His Resignation.

PARIS, March 24.—(AP)—France tonight faced a new cabinet crisis when the hostile senate rejected one of Premier Blum's financial bills and made it clear it wanted him to resign to make way for a national union government.

Many deputies said the days of his second People's Front government, formed March 13, were numbered.

Strikes grew in the Paris region among metal workers and 6,000 chemical workers in factories in the Lille district quit work for an hour and a half.

Blum Bill Rejected.

The senate in its action against Blum rejected by 193 to 88 votes a bill already approved by the chamber of deputies to permit the premier to transfer a surplus from the exchange equalization fund to the special national defense account.

France to meet current expenses. The margin was 156 votes to 137.

Blum did not pin the fate of his government on the stabilization fund question and therefore remained in power.

The possibility he might resign without attempting to force his bill through the senate was seen by political observers in the announcement that an extraordinary cabinet meeting was called for 10 a. m. (4 a. m., Atlanta time) tomorrow.

In the senate debate on Blum's bill, five senators called upon the Socialist to resign in favor of a national union government.

Question Box On the Bible

By W. L. PETTINGILL.

CAIN'S WIFE.

Who was Cain's wife, and to what tribe did she belong?

Cain's wife must have been his own sister. Since the whole race has come from one pair it follows that the second pair must have been brother and sister. In Genisis 5:4 it is written that Adam who lived a total of 930 years "begat sons and daughters." It was one of these daughters who became Cain's wife. Of course, such a union is forbidden today as incestuous, but it was the only way for the race to be propagated in the beginning.

Business Improvements Are Noted By Head of Travelers' Association

Optimistic Reports Made By Salesmen After Trips Over State.

Business conditions throughout Georgia are taking a decided change for the better, N. T. Chambers, newly elected president of the Atlanta post of the Travelers' Protective Association, declared yesterday.

"Traveling men are unusually optimistic about business for the rest of the year," he said. "Atlanta has suffered less than any other part of the state, but all sections are now showing signs of improvement.

"Stocks of merchandise for the most part are at the lowest ebb they have been for many months, and merchants are forced to replenish—a situation which makes for better business," he continued.

Chambers said the textile industry is improving slowly, and added that "there is a better feeling of optimism than at any time since the recession started."

Other new officers of the Atlanta post are B. M. Clay, Walter L. Richard and T. Ralph Grimes, vice presidents; Otis Hathcock, attorney; Ralph L. Ramsey, chaplain; Dr. John W. Turner, surgeon, and Carter C. Harrison, secretary and treasurer.

Members of the post will meet at 12:30 o'clock today at the Robert Fulton hotel to discuss plans for the state convention to be held in Augusta May 13-14.

JAPAN PUSHES PLAN FOR GREATER ARMY

TOKYO, March 24.—(AP)—Japan today pushed forward plans to mobilize her manpower and economic resources both at home and in China.

At the same time a navy spokesman expressed the island empire's fear that the United States navy's $1,121,000,000 expansion bill indicated the United States was considering naval operations against Japan.

The lower house of parliament unanimously adopted bills to create agencies for exploitation of conquered territories in China. The cabinet decreed that a new government in central China be established at Nanking, former capital of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, "under the umbrella" of the Japanese-sponsored Peiping regime in North China.

Mobilization Approved.

A subcommittee of the house of peers passed the government's national mobilization bill which, apparently, was assured of swift approval by the upper house.

The mobilization measure would give the government almost unlimited authority in wartime. It was passed by the lower house last week when bitter opposition collapsed suddenly after a secret session in which, according to reports, the army ordered a favorable vote.

The bills for economic exploitation proposed organization of the North China Development Company, with a capitalization of 350,000,000 yen ($102,000,000), and the Central China Promotion Company, to be capitalized at 100,000,000 yen ($29,000,000).

Covers Fifth of China.

(The area the two companies would cover embraces about one-fifth of all China—about 400,000 of China's 2,000,000 square miles.)

The navy spokesman told a press conference the United States would not need a fleet such as is contemplated "if Americans are not thinking of overseas operations."

He declared self-defense still was the principle behind Japan's plans.

CHINESE ATTACK FOE AT MENGHSIEN GARRISON

SHANGHAI, March 25.—(Friday)—(AP)—Chinese asserted today they had forced back a Japanese outpost from the north bank of the Yellow river, on the northwestern side of the vital central front.

Taking advantage of Japanese troop withdrawals to aid the stalemated Suchow offensive, the Chinese said, two regiments crossed the river and ousted a Japanese garrison seven miles west of Menghsien. They said 400 Japanese were killed.

Menghsien, which the Chinese said was being attacked, is on the north bank of the Yellow east of Hengchow, where the east-west Lunghai and north-south Peiping-Hankow railroads cross. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has been reported personally commanding Chinese forces in that sector.

A Japanese garrison at Wenhsien, about 20 miles east of Menghsien, the Chinese declared, also was encircled.

Bette Davis Stars in 'Jezebel' Opening Today at Fox Theater

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

The picture "Jezebel," over which there was quite a stew among Hollywood producers because of its similarity to the forthcoming production of "Gone With the Wind," opens at the Fox today, while Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald are featured in "Girl of the Golden West," opening today at Loew's Grand.

Another musical with "train-loads" of stars is offered at the Paramount in "Sally, Irene and Mary." The Rialto is bringing back the late Jean Harlow's hit, "Reckless," in which she starred with William Powell and Franchot Tone, and "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" has been moved from the Fox to the Georgia. The Capitol is offering, beginning Sunday, "City Girl," a picture of rackets, and an eight-act vaudeville.

Only one midnight show is scheduled for tomorrow night and that is "Romance in the Dark," at the Fox. The stars are Gladys Swarthout and John Boles.

Opening Monday at the Atlanta theater will be "The Night of January 16," produced by the Atlanta federal players and in which the trial jury is chosen from the audience.

STAGE TRIAL TO BE AT FEDERAL THEATER

An exciting melodrama of courtroom scenes will be offered Atlanta theatergoers in the Federal theater's production of "The Night of January 16th," which opens Monday night at the Atlanta theater.

The trial is presented before a jury drawn from the audience, thus insuring the outcome of the play will be kept a secret until the verdict is delivered. Throughout the trial, the jury from the audience will sit on the stage.

"The Night of January 16" concerns the trial of Karen Andre for the murder of an infamous Swede —an elaborate bit of melodrama which includes a bit of the Krueger Match King saga. The play is produced under the direction of Albert Lovejoy and stars Miss Adele Albert, of New York.

"JEZEBEL" OPENS AT FOX THEATER

Cast in the role of a tempestuous New Orleans beauty is Bette Davis, academy award winner, who achieved fame for her acting in "Of Human Bondage."

The scenes are in old New Orleans during the decade before the outbreak of the War Between the States and finds Henry Fonda and George Brent rivals for the pretty Bette. Margaret Lindsey is cast as a northern girl whose romance conflicts with the desires of the selfish Bette.

Warner's imported southern educators from Louisiana universities to coach the cast in the dialect of the section in an effort to make the southern accents authentic.

MacDONALD, EDDY SING AT GRAND

Music predominates when Nelson Eddy and Jeannette MacDonald, the singing sweethearts of many movie musicals and operettas, are reunited in the film version of David Belasco's "Girl of the Golden West," which begins a week's run at Loew's Grand today.

Miss MacDonald is seen as the only woman in a frontier mining camp and Eddy is a bandit. Walter Pidgeon is the sheriff who has long sought Jeannette for his wife, but Eddy wins the love of the girl at a Monteray dance when he sings to her.

Climax of the story is reached shortly after the sheriff tracks the bandit to the girl's house. Leo Carrillo is the bandit chief's lieutenant. Others in the cast are Buddy Ebsen, Cliff Edwards and H. B. Warner.

ALICE FAYE TO OPEN ON PARAMOUNT SCREEN

Among the song hits introduced by the movie are "I Could Use a Dream," "This Is Where I Came In," "Help Wanted Male" and "Half Moon on the Hudson."

The story is of some show girls and their sponsor who can't put on a show for lack of money. Louise Havock falls for Tony and agrees to back the show until she finds out Tony is in love with Alice Faye. Then Jimmy Durante comes to the rescue — adding laughs.

"SNOW WHITE" MOVED TO GEORGIA THEATER

"Snow White" and all her little playmates have been moved uptown to the Georgia theater after completing a two-week run at the Fox theater.

This is the cartoon feature-length picture produced by Walt Disney to the astonishment of the movie world. No one believed he had a picture the public would go to see—but throughout the nation, moviegoers have flocked to theaters showing the fairy tale film.

HARLOW'S "RECKLESS" OPENS AT RIALTO

Of special interest to Georgians is the fact Man Mountain Dean, the wrestler whose home is at Norcross, appears in a wrestling scene in the film.

"Reckless" is a story of New York aristocracy and its night club and theatrical life. It is packed with human interest and thrills and shows Jean Harlow in one of her best roles.

In "Sally, Irene and Mary" at Paramount

LIVING PROOF of an Ordinary Man's Extraordinary Success

Your family would have five primary needs for money if you should die: (1) an immediate cash sum; (2) a monthly income until the children are grown; (3) a reserve for emergencies; (4) an educational fund; (5) a permanent life income for your widow after the children are grown.

And if you live, you want a regular monthly income starting when you retire.

These and other money needs can be economically fulfilled through the Northwestern Mutual's remarkably flexible Ordinary Life Contract. Many years of experience have given Northwestern Mutual agents a specialized knowledge of just how to arrange these extraordinary Life Plans, and how to keep them up to date.

SENATORS REMOVE PROFIT TAX LEVY

Finance Committee Also Changes Capital Gains Impost Clause.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP) The senate finance committee torpedoed two administration tax proposals today and substituted levies more pleasing to business.

In a day-long session designed to hasten enactment of the tax revision measure, the committee clipped out the undistributed profits tax and drastically revised the capital gains levy. Both had been approved in the house.

Chairman Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, of the senate group, said he believed the changes would stimulate business, resulting in increased revenue to the treasury.

"We think the change in the capital gains levy probably will do more good than any other feature of the tax bill," Harrison said. "It should release capital that now is frozen up."

Fight for Profit Tax.

Administration leaders indicated they would fight on the senate floor to restore the undistributed profits tax, which President Roosevelt has been reported to favor. They said there would be less sentiment for restoring the capital gains provisions.

For the profits levy the committee substituted a flat 18 per cent rate on corporation incomes. Special treatment would be provided for small companies.

In place of the house-approved sliding scale of capital gains rates, the senate committee approved a flat rate of 15 per cent. This generally will apply to long-term capital gains, or those realized on assets held more than 18 months.

Under both the house and senate committee proposals, capital gains were divided into two classifications—short term and long term.

Excess Gains Taxable.

In both proposals, the excess of gains over losses would be taxed, but short-term losses could offset only short-term gains and long-term losses could offset only long-term gains.

In both the programs, the excess of short-term gains over short-term losses would be added to ordinary income and taxed at the applicable normal and surtax income rates.

Harrison said the senate committee had decided to approve the house method on short-term gains because these generally represent "speculation."

"We have no thought of protecting the speculator," he said.

Hotel Executive Hits Government Interference in Business

Harold Orman Attacks Roosevelt Address in All-Southern Convention Talk.

By LUKE GREENE.

Washington should stop criticizing business and clean its own house, Harold Van Orman, hotel executive of Evansville, Ind., said yesterday in an address before the All-Southern Hotel Exposition, which opened a three-day meeting at the Ansley hotel.

Van Orman, who is a former lieutenant governor and state senator from Indiana, said he wanted "a moratorium declared on all laws that are detrimental to business and industry."

He attacked President Roosevelt's address made in Gainesville Wednesday, saying "I can't understand why anybody should talk about feudalism in America."

Management Should Dictate.

"A man is worthy of his hire, but you can't pay it all out in wages and still make a success," he explained. "Labor should have good wages, good working conditions, and opportunities for progress, but management should continue to dictate the destinies of business.

"The backbone of America is industry and business, and when you tear them down you tear down the basic principles upon which the country was built. Take from this country the profit motive of enterprise and you tear down our whole structure."

Van Orman said business is strangled with "unwieldly and burdensome taxation."

Urging businessmen to get into politics, he declared that the legislatures and governing bodies are filled with "lawyers and politicians whose heartstrings are not in sympathy with what has made this country great."

Less Government in Business.

"I want more business in government and less government in business," he said.

He recommended that business, government and labor get together, adding that "wealth ought to be divided in a democracy, but before it can be divided it must be created."

Frequent applause from the hotel men greeted Van Orman's emphatic statements concerning the relation of business and government.

He pointed out that the people are not taking enough interest in the problems of this nation, and urged them to "read and study the editorials in your newspapers."

Three hotel executives exchange greetings at the fifth All-Southern Hotel Exposition which opened yesterday at the Ansley hotel. Approximately 200 hotel men are attending the meeting. The sessions will continue through Saturday. Left to right are Harold L. Dayton, president of the Georgia Hotel Association; Carling Dinkler, exposition general chairman, and Thomas D. Green, president of the American Hotel Association.

Arguing the other side of the question, Judge Charles N. Feidelson, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, said there was "a very welcome bluntness" in President Roosevelt's comment on wage conditions in the south.

"The southern wage differential eventually will have to go if the south is ever to stand upon an equality with other sections," he said.

Workers Defended.

"The sensible course is not to hold fast, in spite of hell and high-water, but to face facts and to act accordingly. Workers want a place in the sun—they feel the urge to rise above the level of wage-slavery—they want the benefits of economic democracy."

Feidelson predicted that "the right to organize without molestation and the right to collective bargaining will some day be established for intrastate business as it is being established for interstate business.

The speaker said the essence of sound labor relations is to make the worker feel that he really is sharing the rewards of the business.

Approximately 200 hotel men from 13 states are attending the exposition, which will continue through Saturday. The guests were honored at East Lake Country Club last night at a dinner-dance and floor show at which Van Orman was master of ceremonies.

This morning's session will be held at the Ansley hotel roof garden. A luncheon is scheduled at the Georgian Terrace hotel, and the delegates will come back to the Ansley for the afternoon meeting.

Rivers Welcomes Group.

Governor Rivers welcomed the group to Georgia. Others on yesterday's program included J. E. Kavanaugh, J. Ben Wand, editor of the Southern Hotel Journal; Thomas D. Green, president of the American Hotel Association; Alfred T. Levine, general counsel for the Tennessee Hotel Association; Murray Rappaport, and J. J. McGuire, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Washington.

Several Atlantans are scheduled on today's program. They include Paul T. Harber, William G. Hastings, who will speak on "Georgia Historic and Scenic Points of Interest;" Faber A. Bollinger, executive vice president of the Atlanta Convention and Visitors' Bureau, and H. G. Mitchell, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce Better Business Bureau.

The annual banquet of the Georgia Hotel Association will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the Henry Grady hotel. This afternoon delegates will be taken on a sight-seeing trip of historic points in Atlanta.

M'NUTT ARRIVES BACK IN PHILIPPINES POST

MANILA, P. I., March 24.—(UP)—Paul V. McNutt, United States high commissioner, returned to the Philippines today after a sojourn in the United States in which he was boomed for the Democratic presidential nomination.

In an interview, McNutt reiterated his belief that a "realistic re-examination" of the questions of independence for the Philippines was desirable and said he had found considerable strong sentiment in the United States against changing the Tydings-McDuffie act, by which the Philippines are to become entirely independent in 1946.

HOME OF GOVERNORS WILL BE RESTORED

A benefit bridge party to raise funds for redecorating the mansion will be sponsored by the Atlanta alumni group at 8 o'clock tonight at the Henry Grady hotel.

Those in charge of the party are Mrs. Howard Pattillo, chairman of arrangements; Miss Julia Fillingim, chairman of prizes; Mrs. R. H. Milby, chairman of tables, and Mrs. J. S. Short, co-chairman of prizes.

Dr. Guy Wells, president of G. S. C. W., is now living in the historic Milledgeville home.

FRENCH FIGHT NAZIS IN ALSACE-LORRAINE

Boncour Charges Hitler With Breaking Pledge To Leave Territory Alone.

PARIS, March 24.—(AP)—Joseph Paul-Boncour, foreign affairs minister, told the chamber of deputies foreign affairs committee today that Nazi Germany was conducting a large propaganda campaign in Alsace-Lorraine.

He told committee members that despite Hitler's pledge that Nazis have no territorial demands against France, attempts constantly were being made by German agents to turn citizens of the Alsace-Lorraine region, which was German before the World War, against France.

Paul-Boncour said instructions have been given French police in the recovered provinces to stamp out "Hitlerian intrigues."

Even partial success of Nazi propaganda among the recovered provinces, many of whose 2,000,000 citizens speak only German, was seen by deputies as threatening smooth French mobilization on the eastern frontier.

They referred especially to France's Maginot line, built along the German frontier in Alsace-Lorraine.

Receipt of a diplomatic protest from Poland regarding the "attitude" of certain sections of the French press during the Polish-Lithuanian crisis was more than offset in official eyes by British Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign affairs speech in commons.

The fact that the prime minister admitted Britain would find it hard to remain aloof from a general European war was seen by French officials as a warning to Hitler that Britain would be on the side of France even though she were unable to make concrete promises at this time.

NAZI-CATHOLIC PEACE DECLARED REALITY

VIENNA, March 24.—(AP)—Joseph Buerckel, director of the April 10 plebiscite on Austria's union with Germany, indicated today peace existed between the Nazis and the Austrian church, which is predominantly Catholic.

"If there are disagreements here and there between the church and the party it does not mean one side or the other is to blame," Buerckel told 30,000 cheering persons in an address opening the plebiscite campaign.

"It means that both have acted wrongly," he said.

Field Marshal Goering has said he would announce the economic program for Austria in his address scheduled for Saturday. (He left Berlin for Austria tonight.)

Funds for Old Governors' Home To Be Raised

Georgian, Home From Denmark, Seconds McGill's Good Opinion

Thomas C. David Declares Scandinavian Nation Is What United States May Be 50 Years From Now in Agricultural and Social Security Program.

Ralph McGill and Thomas C. David, two Georgia "boys," have been traveling in Denmark. Yesterday, Mr. David returned.

The readers of McGill's column in The Constitution have learned already what he thinks of the tiny north European country. David's conclusions, voiced as he came back to Atlanta after a ten-month study tour made possible by the Rotary Educational Foundation of Atlanta, resemble Mr. McGill's closely.

Denmark, declared David, who hails from Danielsville, is what the United States may be 50 years from now—in some ways. He pointed out the agricultural and social security programs of Denmark as examples of what he meant, asserting that these are functioning with the efficiency of the American postal service.

"America is just beginning programs which Denmark has perfected," the youth declared. "Soil conservation there is not a theory; it's a fact. The Danes don't know what soil erosion is, they don't tolerate forest fires and waste nothing."

The young Georgian traveled throughout Denmark, visiting experiment stations, studying cooperatives and visiting farms. For one entire month, he did farm work. He found that more than 90 per cent of the population own their own farms.

"Farm work there is dignified as professional work," he added. "Farm laborers are looked upon as apprentices learning a trade of importance, being treated as members of families by employers."

Aside from the agricultural program, David also complimented Denmark's old age pension plan, its forward outlook, its unusual customs. Everyone, he said, speaks a little English.

Yet, he does not consider the United States "second-rate" in any way, being convinced that when many of the programs of this country get under way, America will achieve on a gigantic scale what Denmark has done in a small way.

The youth, a graduate of the State College of Agriculture in 1933, was awarded the Rotary scholarship last summer. He had worked with the Resettlement Administration in Cedartown until his departure.

Stenographer, 18, Shot To Death By Student, 16, in Suicide Pact

Her youthful sweetheart, Donald F. Carroll Jr., aimed his father's .45-caliber army revolver at the synthetic flowers, District Attorney Charles P. Sullivan said, and squeezed the trigger.

Then, instead of turning the gun on himself as he had intended, Sullivan said, young Carroll stumbled down the stairs and called the police.

A few minutes later an ambulance surgeon leaned over Charlotte's body and pronounced her dead.

Police reconstructed the tragedy from the story told by Carroll, 16-year-old New York University student and son of a retired army lieutenant, and from a note found on the kitchen table.

Police Inspector John J. LaGarenne said the young couple apparently had entered into a suicide pact because the girl feared she was about to become a mother.

The note read:

"Please bury us together.

"Please collect Charlotte's salary and my Bowery bank savings account and pay off (1) Charlotte's Arnold Constable bill and (2) Charlotte's dentist bill.

"Donald F. Carroll,

"Charlotte Matthiesen,

"The 24th of March, 1938."

Carroll probably will be held, Sullivan said, on a technical charge of homicide.

BOARD WILL MAKE PAROLES PUBLIC

Action Follows After Rivers Tells of Hearing Reports of 'Peonage.'

A full and complete list of all pardons and paroles granted by the pardon and parole commission will be made public each week, Chairman Vivian L. Stanley, of the commission, announced yesterday after a conference between the board and Governor Rivers.

During the course of the conference, the Governor said he was "anxious to avoid" suggestions of peonage in connection with the release of prisoners and their subsequent employment. He intimated that he had heard reports of a number of prisoners being released to one individual but the board assured him that in no case had more than two prisoners been released to any person or corporation.

Follows Jury Probe.

The conference with the commission in the Governor's office came on the heels of a grand jury charge by Judge J. T. Grice, of the Atlantic circuit, that the pardon and parole board had "usurped the function of the courts" and was setting itself up as "a super supreme court."

Chairman Stanley said the parole board had liberated "several hundred" men and women since it took office February 15.

"No more than two prisoners ever are released to one individual or a corporation," Chairman Stanley told the Governor.

25 Freed in Day.

During the course of the conference, Chairman Stanley said some days the board orders the release of between 25 and 30 prisoners.

"In practically every case," the board chairman explained "the offense is one of a minor nature and many of the prisoners are young and serving their first sentences."

In his charge to the Bryan county grand jury at Pembroke several days ago, Judge Grice declared that in some instances "prisoners were freed without serving a day or paying a penny fine."

Judge Stanley said the board was going through all of its files as required by law and that where releases were needed they were ordered.

Parole Law.

The law creating the pardon parole board requires the commission to look into the advisability of releasing prisoners whether they have made an application for freedom or not. Sponsors of this provision in the legislature asserted at the time the law was passed that it was included so prisoners without family or friends could have the same consideration as those who had someone interested in their cases.

After the conference, Judge Stanley said that a list of all of the cases handled during each week would be released to the press of the state every Saturday. He added that if reporters were interested in any phase of any case acted on the board would be glad to supply needed information.

Downing Musgrove, secretary of the State Executive Department, said two youths listed as John Von Vorst, 18, of Glenwood Landing, N. Y., and Marvin Berlin, 16, of Cincinnati, were paroled by Governor Rivers February 26. The order, on recommendation of several officials, cited the offenders' "extreme youth."

The youths were convicted in Liberty county five days previously on a charge of stealing an automobile.

ROOSEVELT SPEECH IS HELD WARNING

Political Observers Believe President Will Take Hand in Elections.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP) Political observers here interpret President Roosevelt's speech at Gainesville as a defiant notice to opponents of his reform policies that he intends to take a hand in this year's primaries and elections.

If these onlookers read the speech aright, it is the beginning of a personal drive by the President to fasten voter attention on the social and economic principles of the New Deal. It tended to confirm an impression here that the President is accepting the challenge of his Democratic critics—a challenge typified by the defeat of his court reorganization bill.

Test of Favor.

The Gainesville speech came at a time when the White House had sharply indicated in connection with senatorial primaries in Kentucky, Wisconsin, Florida and elsewhere that loyalty to New Deal ideals is the only test of White House favor for Democratic office-seekers.

That the speech was intended to light a fire under southern Democrats who have blocked house action on a wage-hour standards bill was obvious. Yet observers found it far more significant as an indication of the type of campaigning Mr. Roosevelt is planning for the summer and autumn months than for the effect it might have toward getting a wage-hour bill through at this session.

There have been hints that Mr. Roosevelt might travel extensively in the months after congress adjourns. It appears possible that much of the country may catch a glimpse of him between now and election day and hear at first hand his message that it is the reform policies for which he stands that the voters must pass upon, not local issues that tend to obscure the decision.

If that is a correct construction of the Gainesville speech, the President is inviting a definite mid-term referendum on the New Deal, much as many Democratic office-holders would like to escape that test in a recession-haunted campaign.

Home Ownership, Building Easiest In History, Says Lumber Official

Don A. Campbell, Speaking at Southern Convention Here, Explains Advance of Family Housing With the Aid of Government and Dealers.

"It is easier to build and buy a home now than it has been at any other time in the history of America," Don A. Campbell, of Lebanon, Ky., president of the National Retail Lumber Dealers' Association, declared yesterday.

Campbell, a speaker at sessions of the Southern Lumber and Builders Supply Dealers' Convention, likewise pointed out it is easier to build a good, substantial dwelling on long-time payments now than ever before. He explained:

"The government, contractors and building material dealers all want to help an interested would-be builder or buyer. However, don't try to build a home costing more than two and one-half times your annual income and don't bind yourself to monthly payments amounting to more than 20 per cent of your monthly salary."

300 Delegates.

His opinions were voiced before approximately 300 delegates to the convention being held in the Biltmore hotel. Today's sessions, marking the last day, will be open to the public, it was announced.

Discussing "substantial homes" for the man who contemplates building a moderately priced dwelling, B. W. Horner, Tennessee director of the Federal Housing Administration, emphasized a plan that has been working in Memphis. He declared that the Memphis Small Home Construction Bureau, a non-profit organization, has "taken the guesswork out of small home construction and put it on a sound, stable basis."

The Memphis plan, he said, coordinated the work of architects, building supply men and others concerned and plans for 85 houses were prepared, ranging in price from $2,250 to $6,000. Prospective builders chose their plans, then signed contracts, which guaranteed quality materials, proper and rigid inspection. Thus the constant threat of "extra" costs which so often haunt the small home builder were eliminated, he explained.

Memphis Plan.

Since the plan went into effect three months go, Horner said, 12 homes have been constructed and the bureau has on file more than 150 applications for residences.

Practically every delegate to the convention agreed that more people are building now than in many years; that construction costs are lower than they were last year, and that home building is going to show an increase during the next 10 years.

Exhibits held in connection with the convention show that Georgia materials may be used to build Georgia homes. Cuts of pine, cypress, Appalachian oak, poplar, maple and cherry from state forests are beautifully-grained, while steel from Atlanta mills may be used in construction.

A long list of housing authorities, building experts and loan company officials have addressed the supply sessions, all of which have been led by Frank Wilson, of Atlanta, president of the association. A state association will be the outgrowth of the convention, it was said yesterday.

FATHER RYAN ATTACKS EXPANSION OF FASCISTS

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP) Father John A. Ryan, of Catholic University, said tonight Germany and Italy cannot use their need for raw materials as a justification of their colonial demands.

He told delegates to the conference on world economic conditions:

"Only an insignificant fraction of the raw materials needed in the German economy could be obtained from her former colonies. About the only important raw material which Ethiopia could yield to Italy in any considerable quantity is cotton, and even this is uncertain."

Child Awakes From 'Sleeping Sickness'

Alice Harvey, 8, in Hospital Since February 7 in State of Coma.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

A wide-awake little girl who has been in a state of coma for weeks at Georgia Baptist hospital played with her toys last night and said:

"I haven't been asleep!"

Brown-eyed 8-year-old Alice Harvey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Harvey, of 207 Forrest avenue, who jumped around in her bed in the children's ward, looked out the window at passing traffic and kept up a flow of talk, was a far cry from the little girl who entered the hospital on February 7 in a state of coma, diagnosed by attending physicians as "sleeping sickness."

Stricken With Measles.

The child fell into the "sleeping" state after she was stricken with measles. She has been unable to move her body, to talk or to recognize anyone during the time.

"I haven't been asleep," she repeated. "Mother told me when I was home that I had the measles and that she would have to bring me my report card home from school to me. And I've got to hurry and get away from here, too, to catch up with my lessons at the Calhoun Street school. I'm in third high this year."

Called for Grandmother.

Hospital attendants said that during the last days of her sickness she would laugh and call for "Whitie," her grandmother, Mrs. E. M. Bowers, of Tuscaloosa, Ala. The day she finally and fully awoke, she popped up in bed, began to laugh and ask for mashed potatoes. In the last few days she has been allowed to walk—but she is having to learn again, step by step.

Yesterday she could not keep still in her bed. She talked of her toys, of games, of what she was going to do when she goes home.

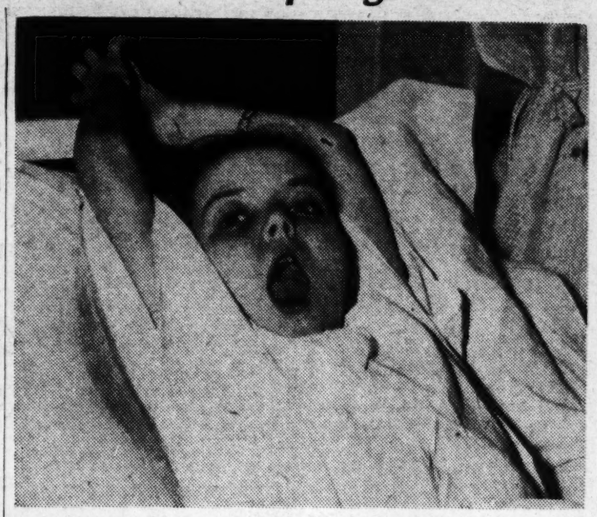
"See," she said, "I have all my dolls here with me, and I have a new Mickey Mouse wrist watch. And 'Sleepy,' one of Snow White's friends, is my favorite doll now."

PRODUCER SUED.

LOS ANGELES, March 24.—(AP) Benjamin P. Schulberg, pioneer film producer, was sued for divorce today by Adeline Jaffee Schulberg. She charged cruelty.

TWO HURT IN CRASH.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 24.—(AP)—R. W. Hatcher, prominent hardware merchant, and O. C. Miller, chain store operator, were injured seriously today in a motor car collision on the Augusta highway two miles from here. Hatcher suffered a broken leg and head injuries; Miller internal hurts, the extent of which were not ascertained immediately.



"No, I'm not sleepy," yawned Alice Harvey, who has just awakened from sleeping sickness, although she appeared to be wide awake during the entire time she was in a state of coma. Yesterday at the Georgia Baptist hospital she announced that she had not been asleep.

Constitution Staff Photos—Wilson.

"Sleepy," one of the seven dwarfs, is one of the favorites in the large collection of toys which Alice has at her "home" in the hospital. Yesterday she hugged him tight and wondered why he was called "Sleepy." The child is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Harvey.

Jail 'Trusty' Gets Prison Term After Admitting Chicken Theft

Crime Committed While Prisoner, Technically Under Arrest on Disorderly Charge, Was Allowed to Return to His Home Nights.

The extra-curricular odyssey of Ulysses Moore, negro "trusty" at police headquarters, cost him a four-to-five-year prison sentence yesterday.

Ulysses appeared before Judge Paul S. Etheridge and pleaded guilty of taking two roosters and eight hens from a chicken house in the rear of 133 Hilliard street, S. E.

He explained that he was "behind in his rent and was trying to catch up."

Police records showed that Ulysses previously had been sentenced to 30 days as a "trusty" at the city jail. Thus, technically, he was under arrest at the time of the theft.

Due to lack of room and proper bathing facilities at the jail, persons arrested for minor infractions are sentenced to work out time as "trusties," according to Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby.

Usually, they are assigned to work around the jail for a 12-hour period of the day. At night, or when their work is done, they are permitted to go home.

"This gives trusties a chance to get a bath and otherwise get cleaned up," continued the chief. He added that "trusty" sentences are passed at the discretion of the recorder, and that they apply only to minor charges of disorderly conduct.

"More serious offenders, naturally, are housed in the jail for the full time of their sentence," he said. The "trusty" system has been in force for a number of years.

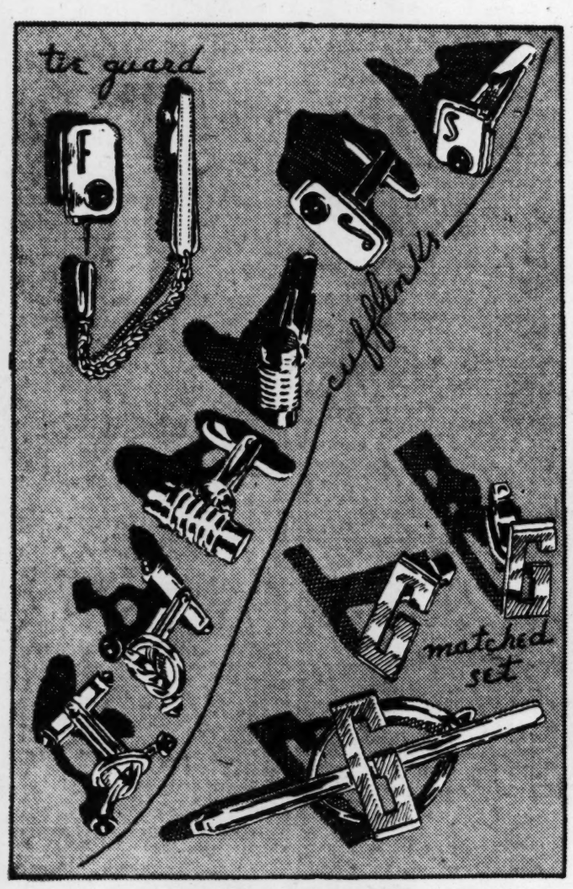
Dr. Samuel Rosinger, religious leader of Congregation Emanuel in Beaumont, Texas, will be guest speaker tonight at The Temple, 1589 Peachtree road, following the regular services at 8 o'clock. Dr. David Marx and Dr. Samuel Sandmel will speak at the regular services.

Former Governor John M. Slaton was presented a certificate of honorary membership in Alpha Kappa Sigma law fraternity yesterday. A. A. Freedman, chancellor of the local Zeta chapter, made the presentation to Slaton, who recently spoke to the chapter, commending them on the vote registration campaign.



Good-Looking Designs in Cuff-Link Monograms

SMART JEWELRY FOR SPRING

Matched Sets Show Same Initial on Bill Clip, Tie Clip, and Links—Tie Guard Pins Bear Novel Ornaments

By ROBERT FAIRCHILD
EDITOR MENS' FASHIONS

One of my hobbies is type design, and nothing gives me greater kick than when somebody brings out a new type and I have time to sit down and study it, see what general principles it follows, where the designer got his basic ideas, what he added to them from the well of his own creativeness, and so on.

But the other day I was surprised to encounter this hobby while I was engaged in my regular work of style reporting. I was looking over the current styles in jewelry for men for spring and summer and the thought struck me that some of these jewelry designers are doing almost as creative a job as the type designer as far as their ingenuity in creating initialed cuff links, tie chains, bill clips, etc., was concerned. I've seen as I went through these lines script letters with as much vigor and gracefulness as many a traditional type, and I've seen the simple Gothic idea treated as intelligently and functionally as any of the ordinary Gothics now in use by newspapers.

But this isn't to be a talk on typography, of course. The important thing about these initialing and monogram ideas is that they fit well the purpose for which they are intended, and they add a personalized and novel touch to your ensemble at just the odd corners where it needs such finishing off. Cuff links and tie chains are not only utilitarian but attractive in their own right, if they are chosen with understanding and with an eye to the type of shirt and suit and necktie they are to accompany.

New ideas of ornamentation are to be seen not only in the regular tie chains but in the tie guard that consists of a pin bearing an ornament. The pin goes through the tie apron into a sheath, which sheath is clipped by chain onto the shirt. All that shows exteriorly is the ornament of the pin, and new and interesting devices have been used for these ornaments this season.

Sets of bill clip, tie clip and cuff links, bearing matched initials, are a good item for your consideration. May I suggest, if you are planning a gift to a graduate, the tie chain with football or basketball pendant, in gold fin...

ACCIDENT CLAIMED BY PEKOR ON STAND

Ex-Atlantan Testifies That Missourian's Death Was Unpremeditated.

LOS ANGELES, March 24.—(AP) Ralph Dubose Pekor, 28-year-old artist and film extra, formerly of Birmingham, Ala., and Atlanta, testified today the fatal shooting of William Williamson, 32, of Jefferson City, Mo., was an accident and entirely unpremeditated.

Pekor also charged Sheriff's deputies brutally beat him after his arrest on murder charges.

"They hit me in the stomach and on the head—I hope God may strike me dead if it wasn't more torture than any man could stand," he exclaimed.

Pekor said he was in such pain that he made many untrue statements, even confessing the still unsolved murder of George Bruneman, gambler.

Williamson was killed after the two men, drinking wine, went out for target practice near El Monte.

"I told the officers after they arrested me," Pekor testified, "that it was just an accident—that I didn't kill him on purpose. I was crazy drunk. We were shooting the gun and he stepped in front of it when I fired."

Investigation at the time of the killing last December showed Pekor had promised to help Williamson, a "movie-struck" farmer, obtain work in western films.

ROBBERY SUSPECT ACCUSES MARINE

German Says Pennsylvanian Aided Peiping Theft.

PEIPING, March 24.—(UP)—Eric Herbholt, a young German awaiting trial for the robbery of a Chinese jewelry store last December 12, trudged into a military court today wearing leg shackles and testified against an alleged companion in the robbery, Matthew Mannherz, of Bristol, Pa.

Mannherz, a member of the American embassy guard, is being tried for robbery and absence from his post without leave.

Herbholt denied Mannherz was one of the original plotters, saying he was "persuaded to join" because the leaders of the plot, two Russians, thought the fact Mannherz was an American marine might help them gain entrance to the jewelry shop, which adjoined the marine compound.

The show will be presented in the Roxboro ring on Roxboro road and participants will include a large group of prominent Atlanta children ranging from 6 to 18 years in age.

The show will be directed by Mrs. Fenton Dye and 10 classes will be presented during the afternoon. Among classes planned are fine harness, walking, costume and plantation walking.

An amusing feature of the occasion will be the presentation of several trick ponies which the juniors will put through stunts. Silver trophies and ribbons will be awarded in each class.

The proceeds from the event will be used toward the building of a clubhouse for the Junior Club. Officers of the organization are Billy Williamson, president; Mary Jane Brock, vice president; Jessie Strickland, secretary and treasurer.

Good Posture Habits Possible Only When Muscles Are Strong

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

SEATTLE, Wash., Wednesday.—We spent a rather long luncheon hour yesterday at the practice house where, for the past month, the WPA and NYA have been conducting their training school for household workers. The luncheon was well cooked and well served. The house has about the average equipment of a home in this vicinity where one maid would be employed. Though they have only been operating a month, two girls have already been placed in domestic employment.

I had the opportunity of talking with the girls and they asked me questions which are probably very similar to those in the minds of many of the workers on these projects. Evidently, in this part of the country, most people want their maids to live in the home where they are employed. One young girl told me she had a father and a mother to support who were not very well and she had to be home at night. Therefore, did I think she would be able to obtain employment?

Of course, there must be people here who have no maid's room and still need the services of a maid for a part of the day. If, through her training, this girl can become so expert that in an eight-hour day she can do more than the average untrained girl, I feel sure that she will find employment. There is always room for work which is exceptionally good.

A woman, who evidently has a family at home, asked about the possibility of obtaining work in some special lines. I think the same answer applies to her. If you clean well and quickly, or can fill in when the regular maid is out, you can build up work on an hourly basis.

The state of Washington has passed a law limiting the hours of household workers to 60 hours a week. On these projects, therefore, they have something definite to do in trying to work out a satisfactory schedule of hours for the ordinary household.

In the afternoon I had the fun of going to the dressmaker with my daughter to watch her try on a dress which she is having made from some homespun woven on our Val-Kill looms at Hyde Park and which I gave her at Christmas. It is going to be very pretty and most becoming.

On the way home we stopped to see Mrs. Usher, who calls herself "The Scrapbook Lady." She certainly has a passion for collecting and I know my husband would sympathize with her. She lives in an apartment with her five boys and I wonder what is going to happen if she keeps on collecting. Forty-four scrapbooks, filled with clippings and pictures of the Roosevelts, are already completed and I think the day will come when it will be a question of the scrapbooks filling the apartment or the Usher family moving out. I have often felt the same way about my husband's naval collection, so perhaps I am unduly apprehensive.

We spent a peaceful evening. Conversation flowed so steadily that every time Anna tried to make some notes for a speech delivered on the radio this morning, she found herself drawn back into the conversation. Finally, she went to bed without really having accomplished her task.

A Shampoo Treatment To Personalize Your Own Hair Type and Color

By LILLIAN MAE.

Color is most important this season. Color in clothes; color in rouge and powder; color in nail enamel. All these things are matched to your own individuality and the natural coloring with which nature has endowed you.

With these color aids, why not do something also about your hair? No, I don't mean bleach or dye it, for I am still strongly opposed to changing the color of your tresses. But what I do advocate is making the most of its tints.

A manufacturer of a lovely oil shampoo has now improved his product by adding that "something" which, as the shampoo thoroughly cleans, and by its oil base softens and reconditions hair that is dry, brittle and lifeless, brings out the best there is in it, with a high-lighted sheen that is, to say the least, beautiful. In short, it does to hair what a facial and new make-up does to tired, tense muscles of the face.

It does not change the natural color, but intensifies it, and tints strands that may be greying, so that their faded appearance is less noticeable. There are five shades available, so you are sure to find one for your own type. For instance, if you have auburn hair, there is a choice between bringing out the natural reddishness or the brownish tone. If your locks are light and faded—as light hair will appear unless it is properly cared for—it can be made twice as attractive, brightened with this shampoo treatment.

In the same manner, graying hair is made more sparklingly beautiful. Only the white hairs are accented, while the rest is given a sheen and brilliance it hasn't had before.

Don't forget while blending your colors for spring, to see to it that your tresses also carry the brilliance which is due them and which will put the finishing touch to your costume.

I'll be glad to tell you all about this new aid to hair beauty if you will phone me at The Constitution. If you do not live in Atlanta write, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield in care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

My dear neighbor and closest friend for 15 years appears to me to be the very essence of fine womanhood. A good mother and wife, an intelligent person and a true friend. I have found her far above the average in every particular. My brother has recently married his second wife, a woman who lived in the same town from which my friend came. The new sister-in-law wishes me to discontinue my friendship with the neighbor on the ground that there was a very unsavory incident in her past. I cannot feel that there would be any justice in my giving up a close friend merely because someone digs up a tale from the dead past. And so I leave it to you, Miss Chatfield, as to what answer I should make my new sister-in-law.

ANSWER:

In my humble opinion, you should tell sister-in-law your friend is dear to you, that she's been model in all her relationships for the 15 years you've known her and that you are entirely unconcerned with what occurred in her life prior to your acquaintance with her. To make it crystal clear and strong that you don't intend to discard your friend, you might add a request that sister-in-law shouldn't mention the matter to you again.

The tactics of grave ghoul are certainly strange to those who have the milk of human kindness in them. Why, when a woman has buried her dead past and bravely built on it a life of beauty and usefulness, should anybody want to unearth the corpse and expose it to the public humiliation of one that buried it? How could anyone be so cruel as to come into a community where a woman had made an honored place for herself and deliberately set about to destroy that woman's peace, separate her from her friends and set vicious tongues to wagging about her past indescretions? These are the tactics of the grave ghoul.

It's well to be wary of these people who are so correct that they can't be kinu, so self-righteous that they can't be merciful, so honest that they can't refrain from blasting a neighbor's reputation with a dirty story from the dead past. Yet, they deserve pity for they are usually lonely and unloved.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

We are two girls overcome with inferiority complexes. When we are invited out to parties with boys and girls we decline because we feel they are superior to us. We have a hard time mingling with the crowd. Please tell us how to overcome our complexes.

TWO LONELY GIRLS.

ANSWER:

Make up your minds, girls, which you will get the biggest kick from: hanging on to the complexes which distinguish you in your own eyes, or turning them in and becoming a couple of undistinguished young girls having fun with friends of both sexes. That's all there is to it. We can't coddle ourselves and make friends. We can't refuse all invitations and get in the swim. If we play too long with complexes, people call us nuts.

Your Figure, Madame

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

WHEN YOU GET SOFT YOU LOOK OLDER.

Styles being what they are, a girl has to be firm about her figure. A humpty-dumpty midsection is ruinous!

If you only realized what a little bit of daily exercise can do, you would never have a "tummy" to spoil your prettiest frocks. The abdomen has mighty muscles perfectly capable of holding you to a flat front line. These muscles run up and down, across, and on the bias, and just 10 minutes of daily exercise will give you a nice, firm feeling in the midsection.

The reason we lose our figures in the middle is that so few of our everyday activities exercise these muscles. Nor do we take advantage of the exercise we could get. Take a tip from a famous actress whose substitute for the daily dozen consists in a constant upward stretch, with special emphasis on the upward pull of the lower abdominal muscles. For her, this exercise program has been amazingly successful. Even when this actress was enceinte she made her own muscles support her extra weight and today she has the figure of an 18-year-old girl. There is really no valid excuse for losing your figure.

The long sitting position gives you the feel of the right posture habit—the one of pulling up with the lower abdominals. Sit against the wall with the small of the back pressed against the wall, legs straight out in front. To flatten the back you are compelled to pull up with the lower abdominal muscles. And from now on you are going to make use of this exercise every time you sit down! When you are playing bridge or reading, try to get that same firm feeling you had in the long sitting position. This means sitting with the back perfectly straight, with the buttocks against the chairback and with a right angle at the juncture of hips and trunk. Sit down with the hips and pull up with the lower abdominal muscles.

When you walk, pull "up" with the lower abdominal muscles and with the chest. Don't try to hold the tummy in. The only way you can hold it in is to hold your breath—and that can't go on!

Good posture habits are possible, however, only when the muscles are strong. It may be that you must first tone and firm the abdominal muscles with corrective exercise. Here is an easy exercise which will take up the slack in your muscular girdle and help you to form the habit of using these muscles continuously:

Position: Lying on back on floor, feet elevated on stool or low piece of furniture.

Movement: Raise the hips off the floor until the body is in a straight line from chest to toes. Hold for a second and slowly lower to floor. Rest and repeat exercise six times, later 20 times. Since there is no strain connected with this exercise it can be repeated any number of times.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

INBREEDING AND CROSS-BREEDING.

Marriage of near-of-kin is forbidden by nearly all peoples, civilized or uncivilized. Only in ancient Egypt and Peru was marriage of brother and sister sanctioned in the royal families, because of a belief that the royal family were a superior race and outside of it there were no suitable mates to be found.

In animal husbandry some such consideration, that is, a desire to perpetuate superior qualities of selected stock, favors inbreeding, that is, the mating of closely related individuals. But the closest possible inbreeding is the natural way of reproduction among many plants; this is known as self pollination, in which the egg-cells of the plant are fertilized by pollen cells produced by the same individual. Self-fertilization or hermaphroditic reproduction occurs in some animal parasites and fishes.

Common peas, wheat, oats and most other cereals are naturally self-fertilizing and most plants thrive best that way. Maize or Indian corn, however, seems to decline in size and vigor if left to self-pollination indefinitely; but racial vigor and size may be fully restored by a cross breeding—fertilization of corn by pollen from a plant (obtained by self-fertilization) of distant kin.

Animal experiments indicate that close inbreeding has no ill effects in the earlier generations but if continued through a long line eventually brings degeneration. A steady decline both in fertility and in size and vigor or vitality finally terminates the experiment. In animal economy it is generally recognized as essential to add new blood to the strain or family at not too great intervals to prevent this decline in size, vigor and reproductive capacity.

There is no ground for the notion that monstrosities or defective children result from the mating of closely related individuals. Of course, if there is any inherent trait in the family, the marriage of first cousins, for example, would increase by a 100 per cent the chance of transmitting the trait to offspring.

Because of the universal prohibition of close intermarriage it is difficult to learn what would be the ultimate effect of close inbreeding for many generations of man—beginning with normal individuals. Something of the sort occured on Pitcairn Island, where 10 sailors, deserters from the Bounty, established themselves, with six native men and 12 native women. After 20 years the sole survivors of this party, on an island one mile wide, two miles long, were one Englishman and eight or nine women and their children. After 67 years the population of the island had increased to 200—and it began to be crowded. Then the British government granted their petition and removed them to Norfolk Island where they might have more room. Fifty years later the population of Norfolk Island was 870, mostly descendants of the Pitcairn Islanders. Some of them later voluntarily returned to Pitcairn. In all perhaps a thousand persons, out of a cross between English men and Tahitian women and close inbreeding among their children. So far as the experiment went the results were excellent biologically and sociologically.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Big Shots and the Little Fellows.

Some time after I had written you for the name of a doctor who gives (such and such) treatment, I learned that one of the younger doctors right here in (small village) has been employing the method for several years. . . . (B. L. F.)

Answer—Very likely. But somehow the big shots let me know what they're doing, and the little fellows are bashful about it. Probably that is one reason why there are big shots and little fellows in medicine, too.

Fool Proof.

Your fool proof cough remedy was the best thing I ever used. (Mrs. J. B.)

Words cannot express my appreciation for you, as you termed it, Ol' Doc Brady's Home Made Fool Proof Cough Medicine. (F. C. D.)

Answer—Complete instructions are given in booklet "Call It Cri"—for copy send 10 cents coin and a stamped envelope bearing your address.

Dandruff and Falling Hair.

Will you please let me know what is the best treatment for dandruff and falling hair. (S. M.)

Answer—Best treatment I know is given in monograph "Care of Hair and Control of Dandruff." For copy send a stamped envelope bearing your address. If you clip this item and send it in lieu of request, we'll pretend you never wrote a letter; that doesn't imply you can't write. Just one of my irrepressible antipathies.

Red Cross Program.

The Junior High of the North Avenue Presbyterian school presented a Red Cross program at the assembly Wednesday. The meeting was presided over by Miss Ethel Lee Hill, Misses Joanna Gee and Roberta Maclagan read the Scripture. In a play directed by Miss Berta Smith, children came from across the sea and told of their countries.

Taking part were Misses Lois James, Bobby Smith, Ann Jones, Ethel Lee Hill, Olive Glenn, Frances Bennett, Betty Johnson, Frances Wisdom, Margaret Anderson, Roberta Maclagan, Ann Robinson and Joanna Gee. Miss Frances Bennett read the poem, "Ship of the Good Red Cross," and Miss Joanna Gee played "In a Luxenberg Garden." Jimmy Smith, of the boys' department, described the United States flag. Paul Partee told of the meaning of the flag, and Lee Morrison told of the respect it deserves.

The answer is—a budget plan. Amazing how it can dredge up the extra dollars.

What can a budget plan do for you if you're already squeezing nickels? You'll never know until you look at all your expenditures with the budgeteer's eye.

Perhaps you find no one item startlingly out of line. You pay about 26 per cent of income for rent, 22 per cent for food, 17 per cent for clothes—but each of these items is a little larger than it should be.

Attack the rent from the carfare angle, for carfare should be considered with rent. Is office or school near enough to walk one way? What stores and amusements are within walking distance?

Look at each item on your food bill. Goodness, you spend one-fourth of the total on meat—when one-sixth is about right. Have just as healthful a menu by buying cheaper cuts with high nutritive value, by using more cheese and egg dishes.

Your clothes bill will shrink if you buy spring accessories in a color that will go with summer things, too.

And what a leak household operating expenses can be. Gadgets used once in 2 months and hardly needed then are costly mistakes.

In our 40-page booklet, "How To Budget Your Income," are simple, practical, real-life budget plans you can easily adapt to your own problems. Ruled pages for keeping your budget.

Send 15c for our booklet, HOW TO BUDGET YOUR INCOME, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BRIDGE LITE

By Harold Sharpsteen

Traffic Lights When Sam Gordon, west coast bridge kibitzer for the Portland Oregonian, heard our "Traffic Lights in Bridge," he offered a fancy suggestion that it should be presented in technicolor.

While thousands of bridge players have listened to an oral presentation, it never before has appeared in black and white . . . So look out below . . . This may mark the end of your worries in making first-round responses or in endeavoring to interpret their true meaning.

About 75 per cent of opening bids in bridge are one in a suit. Sitting opposite opener, the task, therefore, 75 per cent of the time, is to dig up the correct response to a one-suit opening . . . There are about a dozen possible responses . . . a situation which often produces justifiable confusion.

Eliminates Confusion All of this confusion may be eliminated if you drive an automobile . . . and observe traffic regulations:

Red light signals danger.

Partner of opening bidder is equipped with two red-light responses. (a) Single suit raise, as 1 heart—2 hearts. (b) One no-trump takeout, as 1 heart—1 no-trump.

Either response is non-forcing. Opener may pass. Partner warns opener of limited strength.

Responding with simple suit takeouts, partner flashes the amber signal to proceed with caution . . . The one-over-one as 1 heart—1 spade . . . The two-over-one, as 1 heart—2 diamonds.

1 heart—2 spades.
1 heart—3 clubs.

A jump two no-trump takeout, as

1 heart—2 no-trumps.

A double raise in partner's bid suit, as 1 heart—3 hearts.

Either takeout reveals a minimum of 3 to 3 1-2 honor tricks . . . The double raise strong support . . . Each is game-forcing.

'Til tomorrow—

Friends Will Extend Welcome To Col. and Mrs. E. G. Peyton

By Sally Forth.

ATLANTA friends soon will extend welcome to Colonel and Mrs. Ephraim G. Peyton when they establish their future home here on Seventeenth street, the residence they bought and remodeled when the popular army couple lived here years ago. At present they are in Pittsburgh, but Colonel Peyton retires this week from the United States army and when they pack their lares and penates they will begin their trek toward Atlanta.

Colonel and Mrs. Peyton made important social contacts in civilian and army circles during their residence here. While they were stationed at Fort Benning near Columbus, Mrs. Peyton was made president of Fort Benning Woman's Club, and under her leadership the Barbara King memorial scholarship was established at Tallulah school, as a tribute to the daughter of General and Mrs. Campbell King.

Colonel Peyton is a Mississippian of distinguished lineage. His mother was one of two women who introduced in the legislature a more varied curriculum for girls at the Woman's State College in Columbus.

While in Pittsburgh, Colonel Peyton was chief of the 99th reserve division and as lieutenant colonel he helped organize Pittsburgh's 320th infantry at Camp Lee in 1917, which he commanded in wartime service in France.

LAST evening's party at Pinebloom, the Druid Hills home of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Arkwright, given in honor of Laura Maddox and her fiance, Ed Smith, grew more exciting as the evening wore on—a characteristic of all parties at Pinebloom. Held in an attractive spot in the rear garden, Mr. and Mrs. Arkwright entertained at a steak fry, with the guests helping to broil their own steaks over an open-air oven, and eating them at beautifully appointed tables arranged in front of the rustic cabin near by.

It was at the end of the delicious meal that the first surprise occurred. A huge cake, embossed in orange, green and yellow, and further carrying out the color motif of the alfresco event, was brought forth and set before Laura, for the date marked her birthday anniversary. The cake bore no candles, but each guest was given a small taper which he lighted and placed on the confection, as he made a birthday wish for the fair honor guest.

Later while the guests danced on the terrace to the strains of Graham Jackson's orchestra, a huge sparkling package, glistening like diamonds, arrived by air mail for Laura. Upon being opened, it revealed an enormous red and white Jack Horner pie, which also glittered and glistened with diamond dust. When the ribbons were pulled, the guests found attractive birthday caps, horns, poppers, confetti, and many other noise-making novelties.

In addition to Laura and Ed and the members of their wedding personnel, Mr. and Mrs. Arkwright's guests included Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Maddox, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kiser, Mr. and Mrs. James ... Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Colquitt Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bridges Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Hearst, Dr. and Mrs. Glenville Giddings, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Arkwright Jr., Dorothy Giddings and Glenville Giddings Jr.

SALLY hears that the names of two blond members of the young social contingent will be erased from the single slate this summer by the culmination of their seven-year romance in wedding bells. The young man in question now resides in North Carolina, but will move to Atlanta in four or five months.

The belle who will become his bride was a member of the O. B. sorority, and he was a Delta Tau Delta at Georgia Tech. Can you guess their identity?

WHEN Mr. and Mrs. Jack Miller entertain at dinner this evening at their home in Marietta, the honor guests will be a duo of bridal couples whose marriages will be interesting events of the very near future. One of the couples is their daughter, Mary Miller, and her fiance, Ward Sachs, of Atlanta and Copperhill, Tenn., their marriage to take place tomorrow afternoon at the Miller home in Marietta.

The other is Peggy Anne Fowler, of Decatur, and Rev. Paul Stauffer, of Lexington, Ky., whose marriage is scheduled for April 1. ... tomorrow's wedding, the Rev. Stauffer, who is the son of Atlanta's Rev. and Mrs. C. R. Stauffer, will read the marriage service for the young couple. A week later, tomorrow's groom, Ward Sachs, will return the favor and serve as best man for Rev. Stauffer.

Other guests at the dinner this evening will be Charlotte Mauelshagen and Wilbur Kurtz Jr., of Atlanta.

WHERE is a grand surprise in store for Nancy Schwab when she returns tomorrow from Vassar College to spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schwab. The surprise lies in the fact that Nancy will be driven to her parents' new home on Habersham road. When she departed for college after the Christmas holidays she left from the Schwab home on Wyndale road.

During the intervening months Mr. and Mrs. Schwab have moved to their handsome new residence on Habersham road. Sally Rogers that Nancy will dash from room to room immediately upon her arrival home inspecting the beautiful new furnishings and art work in her parents' new home.

Nancy's classmate, Elizabeth Phillips, of Woburn, Mass., will accompany her to Atlanta to spend the spring vacation. Parties before will honor the visitor and her hostess before they return to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to resume their studies at Vassar in early April.

By day you'll wear a white hat, white gloves, and bunches of snowdrops with your black coat or dress. We've assembled a few of the smoothest white accessories to be found . . . A white toyo panama with band of black grosgrain embroidered in white daisies. On one arm you wear a bracelet of opaque white balloons; on the other, dainty masses of white calla lilies with tender green leaves; a clip of white balloons to match bracelet. White doeskin gloves that wash so easily. Swing a white alligator calf bag. Pin three bunches of snowdrops on your simple black dress or coat.

It's a black and white spring. Invariably we noticed the costume that most often caught our eye was the simply cut black accented with clean white. So we made a tour of your Atlanta shops to prove our point that black and white is the smart woman's greatest ally.

Put Spring Bloom Into Winter Complexion

By LILLIAN MAE.

Last week we discussed conditioning complexion to fit the spring fashions. We carried the treatment through the proper cleansing and nourishing. Today, we continue the conditioning treatment with the second step—that of protective foundation:

2. Wear a coat of glamor and protection on your complexion. It's going to be a fabric season in clothes and a fabric season in complexions, so you will have to watch texture in both. Emphasis in fashion will be on the dull-surfaced, rough, tailored materials, and the fabric of your skin must be petal-smooth in contrast. Just as you wouldn't think of going out into the cold without a coat on your shoulders, neither should you go out without a protective coat on your skin to guard its texture. Use a town and country make-up film as a base for your make-up. It not only conceals blemishes and lines so that your skin looks incredibly smooth, lustrous and radiant, but it actually works to correct the flaws all the time it is worn. You'll want to start using it now and continue using it through the spring so that your make-up will always look just as fresh, dewy and effective hours later as when you first put it on.

3. Resculpture your throatline. There's news in necklines for spring. You will see many collarless dresses, and necklines generally moving down into open V's and cut-out squares. Our adviser cautions you to begin now resculpturing your throatline. Use a special throat and neck cream that does away with crepeyness and lines in record time, and a muscle tightener with balsam and astringent ingredients to give you a firm, proud chinline above revealing necklines.

4. Put crow's-feet and tired eyes away for the winter. Gay spring bonnets be-ribboned and be-feathered will demand eyes that are young and sparkling! At night use youthifying tissue cream around the eyes, massaging it well into the eye area with a gentle rotary movement. During the day, as part of your make-up, spread a film of glistening herbal eye tissue oil over the eyelids to keep them smooth, young, free from crows'-feet. And every day use an herbal eye bath to make eyes clear as crystal and sparkling with health and vitality.

Use on your hands the same pasteurized face cream you use for your face, massaging it into the fingers each night with the same movements you make when putting on gloves. On legs, to counteract chapping and roughness, use a luscious body smooth preparation, and on toe nails that will soon be peeping out of cut-away, high soled shoes, use the herbal nail tonic for a shapely, well-groomed effect.

The Constitution's fashion editor will be glad to give you the names of these products if you'll phone her.

SEEN 'ROUND ABOUT ATLANTA

By JACQUELINE GREENE.

Show your colors for spring.

And peaking of color—flowers that bloom in the spring are not always confined to gardens. At a recent luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club every girl present—and there were 20—had a bunch of saucy flowers tucked on her dress, perched on her hat—and you must believe it—flower jewelry. One of the girls had the most divine chain of camellias around her neck.

There were flowers everywhere—clips fashioned to colored flowers; white bracelets with white metal leaves; pillbox hats topped with sweet peas and lilies; bunches of roses, or white field daisies, pinned at the waistline of new sheer black dresses.

Another of the girls present wore a black dress with square neckline tuolined in tiny gardenias—an effective touch, to say nothing of being deliciously sentimental—and sentiment is the predominating motif of the present time. In other words, it's all a case of hearts and flowers.

As long as we are handing out fashion advice, the hands seen across the table at one of the hotel dances recently were gay and colorful. Bright colored, they gave that extra snap to the costume so desirable now. One of the girls had her little "paws" in a pair of black antelope gloves with insertions of bright red snakeskin. Another hand which scored was in white pigskin with black shiny black patent thumbs.

With spring in the air, you might want to dash out gloveless, but don't do it. In addition to being smart, gloves protect your lily white hands from the gradually rising temperature of the sun's rays. Coarse oatmeal linen pull-ons with narrow white grosgrain ribbon giving much the appearance of braid will be very popular for the coming season. For the evening weddings scheduled next month, you will want to slip on a pair of ice-blue satin pull-ons, or perhaps you will want to be more like grandmother and wear cobweb mittens with no fingers.

We were checking and double-checking on the sports scene which took place the other evening out at one of the driving ranges for golfers. It's amazing how sports clothes can be made so much more attractive now, with all the accessories which lend that air of feminine charm. One of the girls doing some practice driving had on a brown and white print with a tan wool top coat, which gave that sporty and casual appearance in addition to being very smart. There were some of the girls on the side-lines wearing checked dresses topped with velveteen boleros, a striking combination, and one which bids fair to be one of the popular ensembles for spring.

It's a bit early for general wear, but those knitted two-piece suits in pastel shades will look divine if worn under a darker shade of velveteen coat. With light gloves to match the suit, and a saucy hat of the same shade, you will do wonders in the spring fashion parade.

It's not a bit too early to discuss exquisite satin "undies" for the summer trousseau. A lovely cream-white satin is trimmed in wide bands of lace with deep lace yoke and with tiny bunches of French flowers lending an added touch.

Speaking of brides-to-be, many of them are planning on a honeymoon cruise to some enchanting spot in the south, and they are buying the most attractive deck clothes for long, lazy days and nights. Tropical breezes play havoc with hair, but the new bonnets, bands, turbans and 'kerchiefs are superb for curl control. Large brimmed hats for going ashore and the soft beach hats pack very successfully is an important thing to know. And you can put your best foot forward if you will remember that rubber-soled shoes remain the classic for deckwear.

After the sun goes down, nets, chiffons and laces in fragile pastel shades will be perfect to whirl to torrid rhumbas in contrast to crepes and satins printed in lush tropical flowers. Uncrushable linen dresses are cool and crisp for dancing on the hottest June nights.

The brides this year will be more alluring than ever, for fashion decrees ribbons, laces and frills, and that demand to be "as pretty as a picture" will be followed by those who are going to tread the orange blossom trail.

Mrs. John D. Evans Re-elected President of Fifth District Clubs

Bascom Biggers Studio.

MRS. JOHN D. EVANS, OF ATLANTA.

Mrs. John D. Evans was re-elected president of fifth district of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs at the meeting held yesterday at Covenant Presbyterian church. Elected to serve with Mrs. Evans were Mrs. Chester Martin, first vice president; Mrs. Karl Dietrichs, second vice president; Mrs. John L. Fulghum, third vice president; Mrs. H. L. Perryman, recording secretary; Mrs. H. K. Bankston, treasurer, and Mrs. C. W. Heery, auditor; Mrs. Kate Green Hess, parliamentarian, and Mrs. W. P. Dillin, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. R. Murdoch Walker was chairman of the nominating committee composed of Mehdames W. C. Messer III, E. E. Limbaugn, R. W. Harmon and Roy C. Jones. Peachtree Hills Woman's Club, of which Mrs. R. E. Flournoy is president, was hostess to the meeting. Officers were installed by Mrs. W. H. S. Hamilton.

Confidence and Esteem.

The re-election of Mrs. Evans for another term is evidence of the confidence in her ability and the high esteem in which she is held by co-workers. District clubs under Mrs. Evans' leadership, have shown marked achievement in all departments, a record which points to successful and gratifying administration for the coming year. Mrs. Evans served in various offices of the fifth district, is chairman of the department of public welfare of Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, has been prominently identified with P.-T. A. and women's club activities, as well as charitable and welfare endeavors. It has been during her administration that the Fifth District Federation sponsored and urged universal fingerprinting of women in the fifth district, every club in the federation aiding in the movement.

Mrs. Chester Martin, who for two terms was president of the Hapeville Woman's Club, served in the district as chairman of the garden division and other committees, is president of the Woman's Council of First Christian church, chairman of properties for Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, and a member of the Atlanta Woman's Club, in succeeding herself as first vice president she brings strong support for the president.

Mrs. Karl Dietrich was recording secretary of the district, president of the Garden Hills Woman's Club for two years, and president of the Alpha Omega Study Club.

Mrs. John L. Fulghum is a former president and active leader in the Hapeville Woman's Club and Mrs. H. B. Bankston is retiring president of West End Woman's Club.

Resolutions Adopted.

The following resolutions were adopted: That the support of the members of the fifth district be pledged to those responsible for supplying the needs for the fight against social diseases, and that encouragement be given health officers in charge of this important work.

That fifth district clubwomen work toward the proper distribution and enlargement of park and playground facilities in every community. That a year-round supervised program of recreation, providing for the leisure hours of juveniles and adults be recognized as an immediate and pressing need for each community.

That clubwomen discourage the sale and use of toy firearms, BB guns, and air rifles, which promote an attitude of lawlessness and engender a spirit of violence; and present danger of physical injury.

Incorporated in the conservation resolution was the indorsement of the splendid work being done by the State and National Forestry Service in their plans for extensive reforestation; by protecting forests from destruction by fires; in their plans for increasing value from forests by wise care in cutting timber, and thereby increasing incomes of farmers.

Also that the work of soil conservation service be indorsed, in the efforts to conserve soil from erosion and promote flood control. That the study of conservation in the schools be encouraged, and the celebration of Arbor Day urged.

Mrs. Evans' Report.

Outstanding among the achievements of Mrs. Mrs. Evans' regime is the establishment of headquarters at Fulton county courthouse for the use of women in being fingerprinted, which is the project of the Department of Public Welfare, of which Mrs. E. Stewart was chairman. Through the public welfare committee every cooperative effort has been given toward the control and cure of cancer, and is the educational campaign toward stamping out social diseases. Through community service activities funds were raised for Red Cross flood relief and many contributions through money and personal service have been made to other welfare needs. Mrs. Evans was one of seven women who attended the Emory classes for forum leadership.

Under the sponsorship of the fine arts departments a pottery tea was given in Atlanta and the district co-operated with the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs during the exhibit of works of Atlanta artists at the Southeastern Fair in 1937. The organization of junior groups, adult education, work of the American citizenship committee, a special gift of $25 to General Federation endowment as a Christmas present from the fifth district, a special gift of $125 on the founders' roll of Ella F. White endowment, and sales of the Georgia Federation cookbook 300 per cent of allotment are among some of the achievements of the organization. More than 2,000 dogwood trees have been planted during 18 months and the district in all of its departments held high the banner of Georgia Federation, working toward the ideals leading to a safer and happier life for everybody.

"Busy as Bees."

At the table where Mrs. Evans, the president, was served luncheon, the beehive centerpiece demonstrated the fact that fifth district clubwomen are "busy as bees." A chorus singing "Jingle Bells" gave emphasis to the silver jubilee year of Ella F. White Foundation and every club having made a jubilee gift to the fund was presented a silver bell. Silver bells jingled for each club reporting a gift. Mrs. J. A. Irwin, foundation chairman, reported approximately $1,000 in gifts from the fifth district.

The musical program featured an ensemble of violin, mandolin and piano, featuring Misses Beverly Griffith Dobbs and Winnefred Shackleford, harpists, and William Ishendorph, mandolin, with Mrs. Grace Lee Townsend at the piano. The "Star-Spangled Banner" was played upon trumpets by Misses Florence and Florena Stewart, twin sisters, in uniform, accompanied by Gipsey Gill, violinist, and Mrs. Grace Lee Townsend, and the salute to the flag was given by Cub Boy Scout Mason Camp.

Junior club women, Mrs. C. C. Guinn and Mrs. Tracy Griffin, of the Civic Club of West End, were pages for Mrs. Evans.

Y.W.C.A. Group Plans Nation-Wide Banquet

Y. W. C. A. business girls in Atlanta join with thousands in other cities throughout the United States Sunday evening in celebrating the annual nation-wide banquet. This feature, which is held each year in March, brings business girls together in unity of thought and action. The banquet theme is "A Business Woman's Share in Democracy" with Miss Earnestine Friedman, of Washington, D. C., as speaker.

Miss Friedman, who is now administrative assistant to the specialist in workers' education, is a former national Y. W. C. A. secretary and has enjoyed interesting travels and experiences. The dinner will be held at 6:30 o'clock, in the Y dining room at 37 Auburn avenue, with Miss Sarah McKinney, president of interclub council, presiding. Members of all five business girls club will participate, inviting their friends and relatives. Other guests will include members of the board of directors, staff, business girls committee and presidents of other business women's clubs in the city.

The invocation will be given by Miss Metta May Mitchell, general secretary. Musical features will include vocal solos by Coleman Kimbro and piano selections by Julian Barfield. Greetings from other associations in the United States and from many foreign countries will be read by Miss Mary Phelps.

In selecting the theme for this year's banquet, the national board of the Y. W. C. A. decided upon a community emphasis rather than a world-wide note. In considering democracy business girls will apply certain standards of measurements to home towns, then multiply each town until the whole United States is patterned. On Tuesday at 1:15 o'clock, over the Blue network of the National Broadcasting Company, Mrs. Caroline O'Day, New York state member of congress and former Georgian, will discuss "A Business Woman's Share in Democracy," followed by national leaders in the Y. W. C. A. business girls' department.

In planning the local dinner, the following have served as committee chairmen: Table decorations, Thelma Coryell; hostesses, Lillian Perry and Nancy Yancy; serving, Ruby Lee; music, Joe Smith; tickets, Ethel Holbrook; greetings, Mary Phelps; invitations, Reggie Sue Daniell; programs, Hazel Carter.

Miss Mary Virginia McConnell entertains Tuesday at 1 o'clock at a buffet luncheon at the home of her mother, Mrs. Owen McConnell, on Woodward way, honoring the visitors, the guests to include 50 members of the college contingent.

Another affair complimenting the visiting belles will be the breakfast at which Misses Miriam Dinwiddie and Florence Jones will entertain Wednesday at the home of Miss Jones' mother, Mrs. Winfield Jones, on Peachtree Battle avenue.

Newly Organized Altrusa Club Feted By National Field Secretary

The Atlanta Altrusa Club was organized Wednesday, after which the members were guests of Mrs. Nancy Sampson Hatch, of Chicago, Ill., field secretary for the Altursa International. She is a past Altrusa Club president; vice governor for the Fifth District Association of Altrusa Clubs, and served Altrusa as chairman of the international vocational guidance committee from 1935-37.

Officers elected were Miss Louise Vaughn, president; Miss Margaret Eleanor Kellow, vice president; Miss Fannie B. Shaw, secretary; Mrs. Laurie K. Guy, treasurer; Miss Emma Billingsley, district representative; Miss Mary Bethel, Miss Lamar Jeter, directors; Dr. Maude E. Foster, Miss Berma Jarrard and Mrs. Carroll McGaughey, members of the social committee to promote fellowship in the new club.

The Atlanta club will be a member club of second district, of which Miss Mary Altizer, of Roanoke, Va., is governor.

Altrusa, founded in Nashville, Tenn., on April 11, 1917, was the first of the women's service clubs, and was the first national organization of business and professional women, either classified or unclassified. It was incorporated nationally on December 31, 1923. Altrusa became international in June, 1935. It is a classified and selective club for business and professional women executives. To qualify for membership, a woman must own her own business, head a department as executive, or be actively engaged in the practice of the profession under which she is classified.

The objectives of the club are: To cultivate friendly relationships, promote mutual understanding, and foster the solidarity of women who are actively engaged in business and the professions; to encourage high ethical standards of business and professional conduct; to be of service to young women entering business and professional fields; to encourage participation in community and public affairs of a non-partisan character; to do any and all things conducive to the service, betterment, and ultimate welfare of women in business and the professions. The Altrusa motto carried on the emblem is "Efficiency, Patriotism and Service."

Altrusa is non-political and non-sectarian. The major activity, adopted at the Kalamazoo, Mich., convention in 1924, is "Vocational Guidance," and Altrusa has made a valuable contribution in that field. The Altrusan, club magazine, is devoted to interpreting the trends in fields of work and the professions for women—and is a splendid source of occupational information.

Story Recalls Hardship on Train In First Augusta-Atlanta Run

Total Darkness, Night Under Bear Skins Told in 1890 Chronicle Article Studied as Part of Carnegie Library's Railroad Research.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 24.—(AP) Brakes that had to be jumped on by the whole engine crew—darkness relieved by no headlights—a night under bear skins—those were some of the hardships on the first train run from Augusta to Atlanta in September, 1845.

In a yellowed and fragile copy of the Augusta Chronicle of June, 1890, Mrs. Edith Bell Love today discovered a contemporary account of the first railroad trip from Augusta to Marthasville (now Atlanta).

The account, in the form of an interview with Mrs. Love's great-grandfather, the late William Hardman, who was engineer on the train, may help Atlanta's Carnegie Library to bring up to date its files on the railroad's first run.

Alma Hill Jamison, reference librarian, wrote several Georgia papers Tuesday to ask that files be searched for a contemporary account of the run which was made September 14, 1845.

Mr. Hardman's version of the trip, reprinted in an obituary notice in the 1890 Chronicle, said:

12 Miles Per Hour.

"Twelve miles an hour was rapid traveling. We used to run to Union Point. I can't remember the date (of the road's completion). I was the engineer on the first train that made the trip (to Atlanta). Edward Boulineau and William Coons were my firemen and Richard Peters, superintendent of the road, and Chief Engineer Edgar Thompson went along on the trip. We arrived at Atlanta about sundown.

"It (Atlanta) wasn't any size at all. There wasn't any town there, and if there were any houses they were not in sight of the road. As you know, it was first named Marthasville and afterwards Mr. Edgar Thompson suggested the name of Atlanta in a letter to Mr. Peters.

"The same day the Georgia road reached Atlanta the Western & Atlantic road was completed from Marietta there. Marietta had, up to that time, been the terminus of the road from Chattanooga, but they built on down to Atlanta to meet us.

"Marietta was a very nice town, and we were anxious to go ahead and spend the night there, but the bridge over the Chattahoochee had never been run over by an engine, and as it was getting dark we decided to wait for daylight.

Slept on Bear Skins.

"We slept on bear skins in some shanties erected by railroad hands. Railroad magnates didn't have palace sleepers to live in those days."

A Chronicle interviewer (of 1885) asked Mr. Hardman:

"Did you continue your trip next day?"

"Yes," answered the old trainman. "Bright and early we set out, and when we reached the river found the connection had not been completed and a rail was out on the bridge. I got down from my engine and nailed it down and we passed over but if we had attempted to proceed the night before we should have gone into the river.

"We were the first who ever crossed the Chattahoochee with an engine. We spent part of the day in Marietta and returned home without any event of interest along the way . . ."

The interviewer asked:

"You spoke of going through the bridge if you had gone ahead that night—didn't you have a headlight?"

"Not much," said Mr. Hardman. "We went in the dark. We couldn't see anything. We had no whistle, no cowcatcher, and what's more, no cab!

Sans Lights.

"The engineer stood on his platform without any shelter of any kind, without any light ahead of him, without any steam whistle to sound a note of warning . . . our brake was a long lever pole, working in the same way brakes are now used on large wagons. We had to bear down on our lever, stand on it together with the firemen, to stop the engine, and it locked only two wheels."

Mr. Hardman came to Augusta in 1840 from Philadelphia, where he had been foreman on the Pennsylvania Railroad. He went on to Macon as master mechanic for the Monroe railroad.

After another year in Philadelphia, he returned to Augusta where he remained.

Among his innovations while in railroading here were a clamp for the ends of rails, the first railroad "chair" ever made, hammered out under his direction by a negro slave named Robert Cobb.

He also made the first cowcatcher ever constructed for a locomotive.

Mr. Hardman was born in Manchester, England, in 1811, and died in Augusta June 27, 1890.

As if his other feats were not enough, he was the man who (in 1837) turned the first rolls for the Philadelphia mint.

Shelled Peanuts.

NEW YORK, March 24.—The shelled peanut futures market on the New York Produce Exchange was inactive, with closing quotations 11 higher to 1 lower.

The heavy rains over the southeast last week were beneficial and encouraged early farming operations. There had been complaints from some sections that the ground was too hard to break.

The range follows:

Stock Exchange Drop Attributed To Passing of War Scares Abroad

Recovery in Building Will Buoy Industrial Upturn, Asserts Writer.

By GEORGE T. HUGHES.
(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, March 24.—The stock market has had a mild lift after two days of severe losses and "hope which springs eternal" has again taken hold of those so inclined.

Chartists of the hair-splitting variety are pointing out that, at Wednesday's "intra-day" low, the Dow-Jones industrial average failed to break the similar low point of last November, although it came within a fraction of so doing. And they also draw comfort from the fact that Wednesday's closing industrial average was above the bear market "closing low" for that average which was set last November.

They either ignore the descent of the railroad average to the lowest level since 1932, or hold that it marks the decadence of an industry and so has no bearing upon the general economic outlook. If they take the latter stand, they find many observers in agreement; but those who believe that the industrial section of the market can have a sustained pick-up while rail shares continue to sink to new lows are not so numerous.

Industrial Averages.

The fact that for four months the industrial average has held above its bear market "closing low" may be significant, at least of a leveling off in the decline. But it is not conclusive evidence that the bottom has yet been reached, for, given enough bumps, the so-called "support level" may some day prove unequal to the task.

Those who are striving—by reason of bullish proclivities or in an honest attempt to gauge the factors of demand and supply as they affect securities—to put the best possible face on the current market situation are putting the whole blame for the latest upset upon the recent European war scare.

Such observers say that the general business outlook and trend, even when viewed in the least favorable light, far from showing any deterioration, has developed indications of some improvement, which at its best may lead on to some recovery and at its worst will turn out to be no more than a seasonal manifestation. Ignoring the fact that stock prices have been better than business has warranted, they draw the conclusion that the recent break did not stem from business news.

"Floating Supply" Gains.

The most ingenious—or perhaps "ingenuous" is the word—part of their argument has to do with the market itself. It is argued that the war scare brought a fairly large supply of stocks out of investors' strong boxes both at home and abroad. When the war clouds all but evaporated, such investors, they complain, did not take back all the securities they had sold.

The net result, it is said, has been to increase the "floating supply" of stocks to an appreciable extent, while the potential demand, as measured by the depleted ranks of margin traders, is a little poorer than it was before. And those who adhere to this theory of the market's renewed deflation say that the retreat to around the previous bear market lows was the natural aftermath of the sudden dumping of a heavier load of securities than speculators were prepared to carry.

Thursday's dealings gained some encouragement from the news that the senate finance committee had eliminated the tax on undistributed profits from its new draft of the tax revision bill, substituting for it a flat-rate tax of 18 per cent. The writer is more inclined to look for a strong recovery in residential building to pull us out of this slump, rather than to rely on the metaphysics of sentiment.

CURB LIST REGAINS PORTION OF LOSSES

Rallying Tendencies Are Fairly General After Action on Big Board.

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—The curb market had a better brand of support today and won back a small part of recent losses.

PAT BERG WINS 10TH MID-SOUTH WITH 244 SCORE

Mrs. Page Second, 17 Strokes Behind; Jane Cothran Third.

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., March 24.—(AP)—Patty Berg, young Minneapolis star, won the 10th annual mid-south women's golf tourney here today with a score of 224 for the 54-hole event, 17 strokes better than her nearest competitor.

PAT BERG.

Second place was taken by Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Chapel Hill, the 1937 winner and now national champion, who turned in a sparkling 73 for a total of 241, to nose out Jane Cothran, of West Palm Beach, Fla., and Greenville, S. C., by one stroke.

Both Mrs. Page and Miss Berg played brilliant golf in the final round over the 6,300-yard Pine Needles course. The Minneapolis redhead, already winner of several Florida tournaments, equalled Mrs. Page's 73 for the last 18 holes.

Other leading scorers were Deborah Verry, of Worcester, Mass., the 1936 champion, who shot an 87 today for a 256 total, and Virginia Guilfoil, of Syracuse, N. Y., whose 88 this morning gave her 258.

Ghezzi, Nelson, Dudley Tie for North-South Lead

PINEHURST, N. C., March 24.—(AP)—A mad scramble is promised here tomorrow when 61 of the nation's crack pros and amateurs reel off the 36-hole final of the North and South Open golf tournament.

Tonight nine expert shotmakers were so closely huddled about the top that almost anything can happen when the 62 low scorers tee off tomorrow on Pinehurst's rugged and treacherous No. 2 championship course.

Out in front—each with a 36-hole total of 141—were Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J., who shot a four-under-par 68 to win yesterday's first round; the veteran Ed Dudley, of Augusta, Ga., and Byron Nelson, the amazing youngster from Reading, Pa. Nelson and Dudley tied for second honors yesterday with 69's.

Brundage's Argument Is a Good One ---Except for One Flaw

PARIS, France—(By Mail)—From the office of the United Press in Paris I left with a Frenchman member of the staff. He could speak no English, I could speak no French. But we got along famously by signs and cigarets and at last the taxi deposited us at the building where the International Federation of Amateur Athletics was meeting.

They were in session, but the sergeant-at-arms said he would ask for Mr. Brundage and so, that is how it happened that Mr. Brundage and I had a talk.

(Mr. Brundage was the American representative at the federation and was to continue on to Cairo, where the Olympic committee was to meet.)

First off, I was pleased to tell Mr. Brundage that I once spent several weeks in violent dislike of his attitude toward Miss Eleanor Holm Jarrett and that while I still disagreed in principle I was glad to tell him personally I had been wrong about him in summing up the case. Mr. Brundage was very gracious and said that since the committee had made no statement it was impossible for a complete understanding to be had.

The committee had just accepted the record of 13.7 set in the hurdles by Forrest Towns on the track at Oslo and also the record set by Jesse Owens in the 100-meter run. There had been opposition to accepting the records. I asked why.

"Well," said Mr. Brundage, "the only opposition to the Towns record was that some of them did not believe it was possible to run that fast. But there were the reports of the timers, the engineers who had measured the track, the fact there was no favoring wind. So, there was nothing else to do except certify the record. The Oslo track is, I have heard, one of the best, if not the best, in the world. Towns did it."

ELEANOR JARRETT.

The opposition to Owens made a curious story.

Reports Say Breadon Advises a 'Lay Off' With Landis.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 24.—(AP)—Branch Rickey, the man on the spot, continued to spar for time today and the belief grew he had no intention of putting on the gloves with the phantom of the baseball ring, Old Judge Landis.

Rickey's chief second, Owner Sam Breadon, of the St. Louis Cardinals, was reliably reported to have advised his man to lay off the clouting commissioner, who never has come close to dropping a decision since he began putting cauliflower ears on club-owners.

Rickey wouldn't admit he was hurt by yesterday's judicial swat on the whiskers, when Landis turned some 100 of Rickey's young ball players loose on the market. But he said he had decided not to make a statement until the judge gives out the list of players made free agents by his sweeping decision, and that was enough to convince local observers that the Cardinals aren't anxious to do battle.

Repeated perusal of Judge Landis' lengthy and meandering report on the misconduct uncovered between St. Louis and Cedar Rapids leaves no doubt that the white-maned commissioner has Rickey dead to rights. He has seemingly incontrovertible proof that the Cards' chief farm hand has for the last two years, at least, been making a shooting gallery out of some of baseball's most cherished laws.

The regulars among the Cardinals, none of whom was touched by the wholesale free-agenting, are getting a lot of fun out of the situation. They applauded violently at lunch when the radio reported latest developments in the case, and stars like Pepper Martin and Joe Medwick were inquiring if anybody wanted to "sign up a good free agent at a better salary."

The Cards, so far as could be learned, were doing nothing about the 17 members of the Monett club who were made free agents and denied the right to sign back with that team. It was felt that most, if not all, of them would be able to catch on with other clubs. Judge Landis, having given them their freedom, seemed to think he had accomplished enough in their behalf, though there were reports that the boys themselves didn't feel so happy about their emancipation.

INDIAN, MAULDIN BATTLE TONIGHT

Described by the promoters as the hottest matches yet, the wrestling card at the East Point auditorium arena tonight should rival any seen here in a long time, both as to scientific grappling and knock-down, drag-out fighting. The program gets under way at 8:30 o'clock.

The kind of wrestling match that Atlanta fans have been asking for will be featured when Gentleman John Mauldin, Atlanta's meanest wrestler, meets Chippewa Charlie, Cherokee Indian, in a 90-minute match best two-out-of-three falls.

Charlie has been scrapping quite a bit lately and has shown a lot of stuff in his latest matches. He usually stays within the rules and regulations but has on several occasions gone berserk, making it tough for his opponent.

The semi-final bout will be a classic itself when Bad Boy Brown, bearded Canadian, tangles with Larry Schaff, Iowa sensation. Schaff is a cousin to Ernie Schaff, the boxer, and has acquired quite a bit of fisticuff experience, which should help him to subdue the Bad Boy from Canada tonight.

Jean Defeats Dot Kirby on 20th Green

Jean Bauer, Providence, R. I., former Augusta winner, defeated Dorothy Kirby, southern woman's champion, on the 20th green at Augusta Thursday to enter the finals of the eighth annual invitation tournament. Miss Bauer meets Miss Dettweiler today in the finals. Miss Dettweiler eliminated Mrs. Beard, the medalist, 3-2. Miss Bauer played on the No. 1 East Lake course several years ago in an exhibition match.

Kirby Practices Today For Pinehurst Tourney

BY DOROTHY KIRBY.

FOREST HILLS HOTEL, AUGUSTA, Ga., March 24.—I really had a tough time of it today, all the way. Jean Bauer and I went to the 20th hole before one of us could break through, but finally Jean won. It was very close from the beginning to the end. I was one down and one to play and won the last hole. We then halved the 19th and then came the bad news.

I sliced in the woods and then Jean did the same thing. However, my ball wound up right under a tree and I had to lose a shot. Jean had a fairly good lie and was out in two and on the green in three and won with a par five.

The match went one up, one down, even, and so on until the end. Jean played nice golf, for she finished with a fine 77. I had an 82. This is the first time that I have ever had a 20-hole match.

To get off of my match for a minute, Helen Dettweiler won her match over Mrs. Beard. So Jean and Helen fight it out tomorrow afternoon. The finals are only 18 holes.

Getting back to my struggle, as bad as I hate to, on the 17th hole I thought I would never get that little ball in the cup. To begin with, it is a par five hole. Both of us hit a good drive and fairly good second shots. Now comes the trouble. I hit a beautiful eight iron about five feet. Not satisfied with that exhibition, I hit the next one over the green. That was the fourth stroke. I came back on the edge in five and I finally got within putting distance and had a seven.

Anyway, by this time tomorrow I hope to be in Pinehurst practicing for the north and south match which starts Monday. That promises to be a big tournament.

Cracker Manager Has Played in 11 Leagues, and Giants and Crackers Are Only Clubs He's Been With As Long As Three Years.

By Jack Troy

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 24.—In May, 1926, Napoleon Rucker caught a trolley from Dallas to Waxahachie, Texas, a distance of some 30 miles, and gave young Paul Richards, 17, 1,000 of Uncle Samuel's greenbacks to sign a contract with Brooklyn.

The wheel of fortune is a funny thing. Around and 'round it goes and where it stops nobody knows.

Today the big league scout who picked up the young Texan for the Robins is procuring talent for the same club of which Paul Richards, 29, is manager.

Richards recommended Al Williams, a Waxahachie townsman, to the Crackers. The Crackers later traded Williams to the Athletics for Richards. The wheel of fortune.

A great deal has been written about Paul Richards' career in baseball, but there is one thing that isn't generally known. And it doesn't concern the time he hit three home runs for Macon against Greenville.

Nor does it concern the fact that in 1930, playing for Macon as the property of Brooklyn, he ran across Earl Mann there as business manager. Or that eight years later he has become manager of the same club of which Mann is president.

It has nothing at all to do with things like that.

He'll Tie Giant Record This Year

Paul Richards has played in 11 leagues since that May day in 1926 when Nap Rucker and $1,000 persuaded him that professional baseball was his game.

The leagues include the Eastern, the Eastern Shore, International, American Association, Western league, Western Association, Texas league, Sally league, American league, National league and the Southern. Somehow he missed the Piedmont.

And of all these leagues, it will not be until this season that Richards ties his record for staying around as long as three seasons with any one club. He was with the Giants for full seasons in 1933 and 1934 and until June of 1935. He was in a World Series, a Little World series, and, in 1934, caught Carl Hubbell when Bill Terry's "meal ticket" set a National league record of 45 consecutive scoreless innings.

He has been around, has Paul Richards.

And when he passes June of this year as manager of Atlanta, he will have been with the Crackers longer than any other club in his 11-year career. He is pretty young to have traveled so far.

An All-Star In Many Leagues

Before he went to catching in 1930, Richards was an all-star infielder. He was picked at shortstop as a member of the Crisfield, Md., Eastern Shore team in 1927. And in 1928, with Muscogee, of the Western Association, he again made the all-star team as a third baseman.

His very first year as a catcher for Macon, he made the all-

H. DETTWEILER TO MEET BAUER IN FINALS TODAY

Erratic Work Off Tees and Poor Putting Beats Dot.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 24.—(AP) Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., and Helen Dettweiler, of Washington, D. C., advanced today to the finals in the eighth annual Augusta woman's open golf tournament.

Miss Bauer, the former Augusta winner, eliminated Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta, one up, 20 holes. Miss Dettweiler defeated Mrs. Warren W. Beard, of Boston, the medalist, four and three.

Miss Kirby, southern woman's champion, went to the sidelines after staging a belated comeback to square the match on the 18th green. Erratic work off the tees and poor putting on the part of her opponent enabled Miss Bauer, the 1934 Augusta winner, to progress to the finals.

The match was decided on the 20th green where Miss Bauer got her par as Miss Kirby went one over as the result of a sliced tee shot. Miss Kirby's ball landed directly behind a tree, forcing an extra stroke for the play-out shot.

Miss Dettweiler, the current Maryland state champion and champion of the District of Columbia, was straight down the fairway to overwhelm Mrs. Beard. The Capital City girl consistently outdrive her rival, the margin at times being 50 yards or more.

Finals in the second division will be between Mrs. L. H. Bloom, of Easton, Pa., and Miss L. T. Watson, of Dunkirk, N. Y., in semi-final matches today, Mrs. Bloom

VAN ANTWERP SLATED TO GO TO TARS' CLUB

By JACK TROY.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 24.—Dewey (Shotgun) Williams, who was given little opportunity to catch for Macon last season, has made the grade as second-string backstop of the Atlanta Crackers.

His teammates recognize him as a great young catcher. And in connection with Williams' proven ability to assist Manager Paul with the receiving duties this summer, is Richards' own prediction that Williams will be sold to the big leagues before he becomes a class man.

Richards, himself, expects to handle most of the catching for Atlanta. But Williams, who can hit and play the infield and outfield, will have numerous chances to see action.

TO GAIN EXPERIENCE.

He will gain a lot of valuable experience by studying Southern league batters and will have plenty of chance to keep himself in readiness by catching batting practice.

Williams caught some dozen games for Macon last season, being used mostly in the outfield. But he is not really an outfielder. He is actually a Grade A rookie catcher.

Ross Van Antwerp, another fine young catcher, is slated to go to Jacksonville when the Crackers break camp next Thursday, it is understood.

A BIG CHANCE.

Williams is delighted to get the big chance in the Southern league. "Even if I don't get to play a lot the first year," he said, "I can learn a lot by watching."

The boy is a natural catcher, has a great arm and a fine spirit. And the Atlanta club won't be hurt when he's in the lineup.

Frank Parker Love Affair Unfolded

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 24.—(AP)—The love story of a young American tennis ace and a bride 20 years his senior unfolded in a honeymoon cottage today.

The youth is Frankie Parker, born Franciszek A. Pajowski, one time Milwaukee ball boy and at 22 the nation's No. 4 tennis player.

The woman is Audrey Browne Beasley Parker, mother of two children. Parker married her three days after she divorced Mercer Beasley, his tennis coach and benefactor.

They exchanged warm glances and Parker spoke:

"Our marriage was quite the opposite of disloyalty and ingratitude. As soon as we were sure of our love we told Mercer.

"It was last February—in Bermuda. I had been fond of Audrey and she of me for three years before that.

"How did he take it? Well, Mercer is a sportsman. I guess the whole world knows that now. He said:

"'I've learned in tennis that it isn't how you win—it's how you lose that counts.'

"It was all arranged on the very best terms. Mercer will always be our very best friend."

The Beasleys were married 23 years ago—before Parker was born. A daughter, Katherine, is a year younger than Parker, and a son, James, 14, is in his father's custody.

"We will live in this furnished cottage until June, when we leave on our summer's tennis campaign," Parker said.

"We are very happy, and because our tastes are so alike in work and play, we are sure we shall always be so."

BREAK O' DAY

the track had twice been measured. The first time it measured exactly 100 meters. The second time it measured a fraction of an inch less.

The second measurement had been made in weather 20 degrees lower than that of the first measurement and the steel tape had expanded a fraction of an inch. The track was, of course, a fraction of an inch short. The committee had, for some reason, chosen to send in the second measurement. Everything else was in order and on statement by the engineer who had made both measurements that he believed the track to be exactly 100 meters, the record was posted as official.

We talked of this and that and came at last to the Olympic games.

"NO POLITICS."

It is the right and proper contention of Mr. Brundage that politics have no part in sport. Consequently, he contends now, as he did in 1936, that there is no reason to change the site of the games. In 1936, because of the brutality and inhumanity of the German government directed in persecution of the Jews in the Reich, there had been vigorous opposition to the holding of the games in Berlin. Germany was making an instrument of propaganda of them and this, too, was a contrary argument. The games were held.

This year, because Japan has waged an "aggressor" war on China and particularly because Japan has bombed the civilian population of Chinese cities, killing innocent men, women and children, there is opposition to holding the games at Tokyo.

"It would be possible to find an objection to holding the games in most any country," said Mr. Brundage in support of his point. "England could be opposed because some group might not like the methods of government in India or in Palestine. America could be opposed because of lynchings. Russia because of its 'purges,' and so on.

"The country which obtains the games furnishes nothing but the site of the games, the tickets and the machinery for operating them. The games themselves are in charge of an international committee and the country which is host has nothing to say.

"The only reason Japan might not be eligible would be a continuance of the war in China. No nation at war can hold games. Otherwise sport cannot be mixed with international politics."

"YES, BUT—"

Mr. Brundage's argument is a good one. It is sound except for one minor flaw. Germany was the first nation to use the games as national propaganda and the first to make political fodder of them. Now comes Japan with the idea of propaganda and a glorification of the nation rather than its sport.

Mr. Brundage is, I am sure, the soul of honesty and courage. He believes in his point. Yet, what is the committee to do if the games become, in the Fascist countries, agencies of propaganda within those countries? The committee will not have mixed its sport with politics, but the host country will so have done.

The object of the games is to promote international good will. Since quitting Mr. Brundage I have been reading the rules and regulations and I find that any nation which is host and which makes it impossible for any other nation to compete, becomes ineligible as host.

I am wondering just how welcome the Chinese track team will be, if any, when the time comes for the Olympic games in Tokyo. It will be a courageous Chinese who will present himself in the land of the Rising Sun.

At any rate, the games are to be held in Japan. (Or, at least, so they were at this writing.) There will be more and more opposition. I wonder if you have seen the actual photographs of the children bombed in the cities of China and in Spain? They are not pleasant pictures and there will not be much sympathy with Japan.

Japan had seven or eight little men in Paris assuring the committee the war soon would be done and that they were ready to hold the games.

Mr. Brundage had been honest with them. He had told them public opinion in America was 80 per cent against them. They had replied they were sorry, but were going ahead with the games.

And so it goes. The world has seen a lot of promises made. The state of mind of the German diplomat who said, in August of 1914, to the English representatives:

"Surely you wouldn't go to war over a scrap of paper," has survived.

Promises and pledges mean very little in Europe or Asia. There will be much promising done about the Olympic games, but they will be employed largely, if held, to glorify the nation which dropped bombs on Chinese children. The residue of glory, which other nations will obtain in victories on track and field, seem hardly enough compensation.

RICHARDS LOOKS LIKE MANAGER

star team. He was an all-star catcher in the American Association. Twice he has won the designation in the Southern league.

In fact, in almost every league in which he has played except the majors, Richards has been an all-star player at whatever position he happened to be playing.

Despite his recognized ability as a catcher, he also can fill in creditably at spots in the infield or outfield. His versatility is a great asset to the Crackers.

In a pinch, he could serve as an all-star utility player.

He Looks Part Of a Manager

There are a lot of angles to this business of handling pitchers. Richards explains that, first of all, you must know the pitcher. When some start off badly they always get better as a game goes along. Others, off to a bad start, must be relieved immediately. They go from bad to worse.

In a long season's play, removal of regular pitchers becomes quite a problem because of the necessity of keeping them working in turn. This problem is eased a bit when extra pitchers are carried for relief duty.

No baseball team is stronger than its relief pitching. That's largely the idea why Clark Griffith wants to use Dutch Leonard and his knuckle ball in a "hurry call" capacity.

Richards has a lot of common sense as a manager. Aand he is not above talking thiings over with the players and getting their ideas on certain matters. He doesn't pretend to know it all.

Members of West End Re-elect Old Officers

By ROY WHITE.

Celebrating the close of its most successful year and under adverse conditions, members of the West End Golf Club Thursday night re-elected the same group of officers for another term. The election at the clubhouse on Donnelly avenue followed a fish fry, given by the board of directors and served by A. J. Cochran.

Paul B. Ford, president; A. J. (Goat) Cochran, vice president, and G. E. Merritt, secretary, were given a rising vote of thanks for their great work last year and unanimously elected to another term. E. P. Medlock was named treasurer.

"We are out of debt for the first time in 10 years, and you fellows certainly deserve another chance," were the words of the nominators, who prevented any other names from being placed before the membership.

Made Progress.

Every committee report showed the club to have made more progress than in the past 12 years and at the conclusion of the business session, each officer was singled out and given high praise for his part in leading the club to success.

Directors for the club for the ensuing year are A. J. Kaiser, H. W. Chambers, Harry Roper, Earl Landers, C. E. Betsill and C. C. Chamberlin, who was succeeded in the treasurer's post by E. P. Medlock.

Chairmen of the various committees will be named and confirmed at a later date. The committee chairmen will name their own assistants.

Substantial Increase.

The club membership showed a substantial increase over past years and a far greater average than at any time in the last 12 years.

Max Pittard and W. W. Burns, former presidents of the club, and visitors Thursday had charge of the election.

Crackers Get 12 Hits and Leave Only Four Stranded.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 24.—Cutting loose on two Indian pitchers, the Crackers today made it three straight over Savannah, winning today's exhibition, 12 to 3, on 12 hits and superb fielding.

The Crackers hit three home runs. Mauldin led off with a mashie pitch into the short left-field stands, and he was followed later by Bolton and Pitcher Luman Harris, the new papa. Bolton and Harris hit longer drives than Mauldin.

The boys were ball hawks in the field, great catches being made by Eddie Rsoe and Mauldin and the infield again turning in three double plays.

Walle, a left-hander, and Little a right-hander from Georgia who helped pitch Shannon Mills, near Rome, to two straight textile championships, essayed to stop the lineup today with a sore back and Crackers. But it was no use.

Jack Bolling was out of the John Rucker filled in creditably at first. He is a great prospect the Rucker boy. He can play anywhere. And he takes a fine cut up there at the plate.

Emil Mailho worked out but did not play in the game. His foot is much better but Manager Paul Richards thought it best to let him off after the morning practice.

The old punch in the pinch again was evident. The Crackers left only four runners stranded. The boys had one big inning, the eighth. They landed on Little for six hits and five runs. Hill, Rubeling, Van Antwerp and Bolton hit safely in a row, Harris sacrificed, Mauldin singled, Rucker fanned, Chatham singled and Rose fanned. It was an impressive attack.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

When Marlborough Jones's mother leaves their home in Leebrook to address a convention in Cleveland, she is very much worried about leaving her 18-year-old son alone for the first time. Marlie assures her he won't catch cold, and that he'll eat properly, and remember all her other advice, but she insists on asking Judy Miller, the girl next door, to run in daily to see that her tall handsome boy is all right. Marlie says Judy has enough to do helping out in her father's drugstore but drops the matter when his mother seems about on the verge of tears. When Judy does drop in the next day with a bowl of hot soup, she finds him eating a huge onion sandwich. There is laughing and banter and it is evident that the boy and girl like each other. He promises to drop in at the drugstore after supper for a soda. When he goes bathing in the lake he does not join the other young people but teaches some youngsters how to swim. While he is in the drugstore later Lisa Loring drops in and asks him casually to come to her home that evening to meet Kentucky Louellan, of Louisville. This is part of a well thought out plan. When Lisa learned from the departing Mrs. Jones that Marlborough was to be alone, she thought of making use of the handsome Jones boy in entertaining Tucky. Her only fear is that Marlie will not "loosen up" and spend money on Tucky although he has a hundred thousand dollars left him by his father. Bashful, Marlie wants to refuse but Lisa smiles him into accepting the invitation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT V.

"No, I want to sit out in the porch swing awhile and watch the moon, don't you Marlie? Or you can take your dancing lesson."

"I don't mind," Marlborough said uncertaintly. "But it's almost 10 o'clock."

"Oh, you'll have to get used to late hours this summer," smiled Tucky, "if you're going to be my boy friend, Marlie. Because I'm just getting started at 10 o'clock."

She would have given anything to see Lisa's face when Mike broke in:

"Hey, now Marlie! You haven't dated her up for the whole season have you? How about dividing her among us, now and then?"

Judy could not restrain her curiosity another minute. It was 8 o'clock in the morning when she ran up on the Joneses' back porch.

Marlborough had just burned his finger, and the toast.

Judy looked properly sympathetic.

"Put some cool water on it, then plaster some soda on and leave it awhile. It'll soon stop stinging. What do you want? Orange juice, toast and hot chocolate?"

"And I could use a few eggs and some bacon. I guess staying up late last night must have given me an appetite."

Marlie looked pleased as punch with himself. Judy opened the ice-box and took out the supplies. Then she said offhandedly, "Have a good time?"

"Oh, swell," Marlie sat down and stretched comfortably. "I had a dancing lesson. Tucky Louellan is teaching me."

"Well, do tell!" Judy put a skillet on the gas range. "What is your mother going to say?"

Marlie Sighed.

"I don t know. Maybe she won't like it very well."

Judy cracked an egg.

"Oh, well, worry about that when the time comes. A little fun isn't going to hurt you. Your mother can't always keep you tied to her apron strings."

"That's what I was thinking. After all, I am a man now."

"We're not babies."

"Your father and mother think we are, though. I suppose we'll have some time convincing them we don't have to be lead around any more. And I sure wouldn't want to make Mom unhappy."

Judy broke another egg and dropped it in the pan with the sizzling bacon.

"Well, she will be," she informed him mildly, "but I wouldn't let it worry me too much, Marlie. You've got to wake up and be a man sometime. Now's a good time to start. You let her boss you too much, Gram thinks."

"Maybe," Marlie said thoughtfully. "But I'm all she's got."

"But men have to learn to shift for themselves," Judy stirred his chocolate. "There's nothing worse than a man who grows up to be a namby-pamby with no spine. Nobody has any respect for him."

"Yeah." Marlborough looked thoughtful. "I guess you're right. "Is Miss Louellan pretty?" Judy put his bacon and eggs before him.

Marlie said with an enthusiasm that Judy couldn't miss!

"Oh, boy, is she? She's prettier than any girl in this town. Present company excepted, of course."

"I'm not pretty?" Judy poured two cups of chocolate and sat down opposite Marlborough. "Am I?"

Marlie studied her seriously for a few seconds.

"Why, yes you are, Jude," he said finally. "You're very nice looking. I'm not much for noticing the way girls look. But you've got nice brown eyes and pink cheeks, and I like your hair straight and plain like you wear it. It suits you."

"Bless my soul!" Judy laughed. "Last evening must have done you good. Loosened your tongue, or something."

"Well, you fished for it, and after all, when a girl comes in and gets a fellow breakfast and asks him if he thinks she's beautiful—"

Judy made a face.

"You're not such a much yourself, Mr. Jones!" she finished her chocolate and jumped up. "I'll make your bed and dust."

"I wish you wouldn't, Judy. I can do it!"

"It'll take only a minute. I promised your mother."

She was just finishing up when the phone rang. She stood in the hall while Marlborough answered, and she couldn't resist listening when she found out it was the new girl from Louisville.

"Albany?" she heard Marlie say. "Yes, I have a car. Not a very good one. I guess I can take you shopping. I'll be over about nine."

When he hung up Judy walked downstairs. Marlie looked up uncertainly.

"That was Tucky. She wants me to take her shopping in Albany today. I said I'd go—but gosh!"

"She works fast." Judy went out to the kitchen to wash her hands. Marlie followed.

"Well, I guess I'll have to go. I promised. Mother has never allowed me to drive to the city, though."

Mingled with Judy's desire to see Marlborough show a little spunk, however, was a vague feeling of uneasiness. That Kentucky girl was certainly a bold thing. Imagine calling a man up and asking him to drive you to Albany shopping on such short acquaintance.

Marlborough had never realized quite what a wreck his old car was until he drove up to the Louellans. It was certainly no fit chariot for the vision that tripped down the steps in a black and white gown and a wide white picture hat.

Marlie felt the old self-consciousness return when Tucky smiled at him. She jumped into the car.

"We'll have to drive by and pick Lisa up," she pouted. "When she heard you were going to drive me shopping she just had to come along. I think it'd be more fun alone, don't you?"

Marlie was on a spot, but he said something about the more the merrier and started the old rattletrap. He'd certainly never noticed before what a noise it made.

Lisa was waiting at the gate. She piled into the front seat and Marlie took the side streets out of town. Even Marlie appreciated the fact that he was rambling down country roads on a perfect June day with two adorable looking debs. Both made play for his attention and he found himself expanding under the sunshine of their smiles and actually enjoying himself.

It was just outside of Albany that the car started to cough and jerk. After a few blocks it became apparent that they would have to go to a garage. Fortunately they were in the same block with one when the machine gave out altogether.

Marlborough was hot with embarrassment.

"Darn!" He got out and stood looking at the old wreck dejectedly. "I'm sorry this had to happen today."

"I suppose," Lisa said wriggling impatiently, "it'd never occur to you to buy a new one, Marlie."

Tucky defended him. "Suppose he can't afford another one, smartie. Did you ever think of that?"

"Don't be silly," Lisa sniffed. "He can afford a dozen good cars. Can't you, Marlie?"

Marlborough was in a quandary as to what he should say when Tucky said wonderingly, "My goodness, Marlie, are you rich, too? I knew there was something about you I was crazy about, but I certainly didn't know it was anything so unromantic as your money."

"I'm not really rich," Marlie flushed. "My father left me a few first mortgages, that's all. But they're to insure my future. Mother keeps them for me."

"I'll just bet she does," Lisa smiled knowingly. "But it's a wonder you wouldn't loosen up and buy a new car."

"I'll have to some day, I guess." Marlborough's face felt stiff when he tried to smile.

A man came out of the garage.

"Something wrong," buddy?"

"It—just won't go," Marlie said helplessly.

"Well, if it hasn't died of old age, maybe we can get enough life back into it to make it last a few more weeks." The mechanic scratched his head doubtfully. "But it looks pretty sick."

SHARKS OF THE PACIFIC.

The Pacific ocean has its share of sharks, perhaps more than its share.

Around the coasts of the islands of Japan live the so-called "Japanese sharks." They are not so "fierce" as many other kinds, but they are noted because of their strange shape. They grow to a length of six or seven feet, but their bodies are not more than four inches thick in any part! These long, thin fish may make us think of eels.

Gaffing a tiger shark.

Blue sharks live in the warmer parts of the Pacific, as well as in the Atlantic. They grow to a length of from 12 to 15 feet. Sometimes they cut into the nets of fishermen with their sharp teeth. This makes the fishermen look upon them as enemies, but far worse is the fact that they can harm people. Many persons swimming in the ocean have been hurt or killed by blue sharks.

White sharks are far larger than the blue sharks, and also are classed as "man-eaters." They reach a length of from 30 to 40 feet, and have large, sharp teeth of triangle shape.

The white shark has a pointed snout, and its mouth is of crescent shape. In the stomach of a white shark 30 feet long, a young sea-lion was found. The sea-lion weighed 100 pounds.

The largest of all living fish is the "whale shark." It grows to a length of 60 feet or more, and is found in both the Pacific and the Indian oceans. I am glad to say it is classed as "a harmless fish," that is, it appears not to eat people.

When I say that whale sharks are the largest of all living fish, I do not mean they are the largest ocean animals. Some kinds of whales are far longer (not to speak of their far greater bulk), but whales are mammals, not fish.

Over in China, I heard a great deal about shark fins. The fins are dried and "cured." Later they are boiled and the soft parts are eaten. Sometimes the fins are boiled in chicken soup to give them flavor.

In Shanghai, I was given a bill of fare listing many dishes served at a certain restaurant. Shark's fins were listed five times. You could get them with minced chicken, boiled chicken or shredded chicken, or with scrambled eggs. Shark's fins with brown sauce cost five dollars in Chinese money, or about $1.50 in our money.

TARZAN THE FEARLESS — No. 53 — By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan left the Zambeh village and plunged once more into the jungle. His purpose now was to find Mary and Jeff, to protect them from the perils of the wilderness. Now and then he called softly: "Mary! Mary!" Frequently he paused to listen, but in vain.

. . . Meanwhile, Jeff led Mary slowly along a jungle trail. Exhausted by her horrible experiences, the girl stumbled. Jeff put his arm around her to steady her. How thrilled he was by this delightful proximity! Some day, he resolved, he would have her for his own.

"What shall we do?" Mary asked sadly. "We'll try to find help and save Bob and your father," the man lied; "but right now you'd better get some sleep. I'll stand guard." Jeff made a bed of leaves. The weary girl sank down and quickly fell into a deep slumber.

Five minutes later Jeff heard a voice calling from the jungle: "Mary! Mary!" It was Tarzan's voice. Jeff trembled with eagerness. It was too good to be true. Here was his chance to draw Tarzan into his trap—to capture him, to kill him, if need be!

NATIVE OF CHINA DIES HERE AT 82

Protestant Rites for Sam Kee Set for Sunday.

Sam Kee, 82, born in Canton, China, died here yesterday in his room at 9 1-2 Piedmont avenue, northeast.

He had lived in Atlanta for more than 40 years, and once was proprietor of Sam Kee's Laundry, on Mitchell street. According to friends, a series of misfortunes 15 years ago had made him dependent on a nephew, Sam Long, secretary of the local On Leong Tong, and, until a few months ago, a cook in a Japanese restaurant.

Kee was a member of Gee Go Hong Lodge, Chinese Free Masons.

Funeral services, simple and Protestant, are planned for 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the chapel of Harry G. Poole. Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Members of the cat family are considered the most nearly perfect quadrupeds.

A THOUGHT STARTER

It is unwise to pay too much for a used car, but it is worse to pay too little. When you pay too much you lose a little money—that's all; when you pay too little, you will get a car that is unsatisfactory and lose everything because it does not give the service for which it was bought. Buy from "The Old Reliable" John Smith Co., who for over 69 years has been selling dependable transportation at a fair price. Remember, every purchaser is fully protected by our "Better Than a Guarantee Plan."

$40,561,886 RETURN IN EMPLOYERS' TAX TO STATES PLANNED

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The house appropriations committee had under consideration today a recommendation by President Roosevelt that a supplemental fund of $40,561,886.43 be granted by congress to the Treasury Department for return to certain states as portions of federal employers' tax for 1936. Of the total amount, Georgia will receive $2,467,192.82, it was announced.

During the summer of 1937, Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., of Georgia, joined with other congressmen in having enacted an amendment to the social security act making available to each state, including Georgia, which enacted in 1937 an approved unemployment compensation law, a portion of the proceeds from the federal employers' tax in the state for the year 1936.

The amount due Georgia under the estimate was obtained by first determining the tax collected on or before January 31, 1938, from employers within the state on account of employment during the calendar year 1936. From this amount has been deducted the amount of tax paid by employers within Georgia on account of employment in other states, and to the resultant figure has been added the amount of tax paid by employers in other states for employment within Georgia.

The final figure represents the net amount of tax paid for employment within Georgia, 90 per cent of which will be transferred to the state fund.

During this period the total tax paid the collector in Georgia was $2,155,717.90. The tax paid by employers in the state for employment outside the state was $108,577.56. The tax paid by employers without the state for employment within Georgia was $694,185.01, while the net amount paid for employment within the state was $2,741,325.35.

'GONE WITH WIND' SUIT IS SETTLED

Billy Rose Pays $3,000 and Apologizes.

The suit instituted by Margaret Mitchell over a "Gone With the Wind" number presented last summer at the Fort Worth Frontier fiesta has been settled out of court, the novelist's attorney announced yesterday.

Miss Mitchell received $3,000 in lieu of damages and a formal letter of apology from Billy Rose, theatrical producer, the attorney stated. He said the producer gave assurance a violation of the author's rights would not be repeated, under penalty of heavy indemnity.

It was charged in the suit that Rose had embodied a number entitled, "Gone With the Wind," in his production, "Casa Manana," at the Fort Worth show, after being hired by the Territorial Producing Corporation. The number took its plot and characters from the Civil War novel, it was set forth.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES BUY $2,500,000 U. S. GOLD

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP) The Treasury disclosed today the second sale within a week of $2,500,000 worth of gold to foreign countries. Secretary Morgenthau declined to explain the transaction.

The sales aroused particular interest because recent European developments were believed to have caused the sale of considerable foreign gold to the United States, and experts found the contrary movement difficult to explain. The sales were made out of the Treasury's inactive gold fund, which was reduced to $1,182,974,522.
